DUKE OF CONNAUGH SPEAKS TO WOUNDED

Tells Them They Have Gone Route of Danger and Trial of Men

SUFFERED FOR EMPIRE

And Their Country is Glad to See Them Back From War.

Duke of Connaught spent yesterday afternoon and evening in Toronto inspecting the quarters of the troops at at Convocation Hall at night. He left for Ottawa at 11 p. m.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of his visit was his meeting the The soldiers, all just back wounded from the fighting line, were seated in the auditorium of the building. They were all dressed light blue suits, the regulation uniunique audience. They were de-lighted to be addressed by the governor-general. He mounted the plat-form and spoke feelingly of his appreciation of what they had done.
"You have gone the route of danger and trial of the men of the Canadian contingent," he said. "We realize to the full the good work you have done and meen to show it by every means in our power. You have suffered for the empire and your country and we are glad to see you back." He wished them "good luck" and a speedy rehealth.
