

REX BEACH, NOTED WRITER, IN CITY

Hunting Outing at Upper Loch Lomond With W. G. McIntyre.

The fame of the hunting to be secured in New Brunswick has attracted another famous citizen of the United States to this province in the person of Rex Beach, the author, whose books are read the world over. He arrived here today from New York. He is here on the invitation of W. G. McIntyre, who will spend a week at the latter's camp at Upper Loch Lomond.

The well-known writer arrived with all his shooting paraphernalia, but he expressed his regret that he was unable to bring a few of his own English setters for the hunting. He has more than a dozen pure-bred dogs at his home on the Hudson about 20 miles from New York. He declared that he was only after birds this trip and added that he would rather shoot birds than big game.

This is his first trip to this part of the province, although he has been hunting big game once near Plaster Rock. He has often visited Quebec, being there on two occasions this summer. He added that he had a camp in Quebec, which he owned. Shooting, fishing and golf, he declared, were his chief diversions. He saw a long canoe engaged in writing a new novel, in addition to several stories for moving pictures. Rudolph Valentino, he said, had been started in one of his recent scenarios, and the picture was just completed. It was called "A Sainted Devil." Mr. Beach said, but added, with a smile, that he had nothing to do with the naming of it.

Referring to the recent baseball scandal in New York, he declared that the majority of the fans seemed to think there was something back of O'Connell's attempt to bribe a Philadelphia player, but thought that they had every confidence in the integrity of Judge Landis to purge the game of any crookedness. He saw a long canoe forming outside the Polo grounds when he was leaving New York yesterday morning, and he said he was just thinking there was something back of O'Connell's attempt to bribe a Philadelphia player, but thought that they had every confidence in the integrity of Judge Landis to purge the game of any crookedness.

Another picture, the scenario of which was written by Rex Beach, was shown here recently in the Imperial Theatre, featuring Valentino. This was called "Monsieur Beaucaire." Many other scenarios seen in pictures here have been originally written by this noted author.

Major J. Watson Webb of New York, a member of the U. S. polo team who competed in the International Polo Cup games which the Prince of Wales witnessed at Long Island, New York, is one of a party of big game hunters who arrived in New Brunswick yesterday.

Jack Doran will be in charge of the party. They are going to the same camp as "Guide" Doran's hunting grounds which were reserved last season for Jack Dempsey.

Ten Lives Lost In Virgin Island Flood
St. Thomas, Virgin Island, Oct. 7.—Ten lives are reported to have been lost at Dominica, in the West Indies, yesterday, when torrential rains caused the Roseau River to overflow. The town was flooded with four feet of water. The damage is estimated at several thousand pounds.

Mrs. Lloyd George Not For Election
London, Oct. 7.—(United Press)—Mrs. Lloyd George today quashed rumors that she would contest a seat in Anglessey in the next election. "My husband and my son are in the House of Commons," she said, "and I think that's quite enough from one family. I like outside political work but have no desire whatever to get into Parliament."

LISTS OF VOTERS.

The list of names of voters, as prepared by the revisors for the city, has been printed and posted in each ward. This year the lists are being looked after by merchants who take them in each evening and place them on the poles in the morning, thus preventing them becoming destroyed by rain. The time for filing applications to be added to the list has been extended until October 16 and any person over 21 years of age, by furnishing the required information, can have his or her name added in the ward in which he resides.

RETURNS FROM MONTREAL.

H. G. Rogers, of H. G. Rogers, Ltd., arrived home today from Montreal where he has been attending the funeral of his partner's mother, Mrs. John M. Farquhar. He said that his partner, Lloyd Farquhar, would return from Montreal in about a week. Referring to business conditions in Montreal he considered that there had been a vast improvement recently and he noticed a spirit of optimism which had been missing a short time ago. He reported himself as better than it had been for several years.

ARRANGE FOR CONCERTS.

The members of the Carleton Cornet Band and representatives of the St. John District I. O. L. held a meeting last evening when arrangements were completed to hold a series of concerts during November. Two of these are to be held in Pythian Castle and in the City Hall on the West Side. Arrangements have been made with a noted Scottish singer, Jack Elder, of Kingston, Ont., to be here for the concerts. The best local talent has also been secured. The band will contribute to the programme each evening. W. M. Campbell has been appointed chairman of the committee to look after the affair with C. W. Carville, secretary and A. L. Belyea, treasurer.

LIBERALS CLAIM LEAD AT NOON
Chatham, Oct. 7.—(Special)—At noon today the Liberals claimed they were leading in Chatham and seemed more confident than their opponents, but the latter were by no means discouraged. A continued stream of women voters is a feature of the contest here.

H. T. Brewer, provincial grand master of L. O. A., is expected on an official visit to St. John on Friday. There will be a conference of the executive of the grand lodge, the Protestant orphans' committee and local leaders in the afternoon and a mass meeting of all the Orangemen in the city in the evening. The evening meeting will be more of a social affair.

EXPECT MUCH AT WOMEN'S COUNCIL

National Meeting is to Open in Toronto Tomorrow—Last Till 15th.

Toronto, Oct. 7.—Toronto this week is to have the honor of entertaining the National Council of Women of Canada. The convention will open on Wednesday, 8th, and will continue until the 15th, both dates inclusive. Business sessions will be held at the general headquarters, the King Edward Hotel. Special evening meetings are also being arranged, one to be at the galleries of the Women's Art Association of Canada, which is affiliated with the National Council. There will also be a reception at Government House and by the city in the municipal buildings in honor of the delegates.

The agenda promises a large field for thought and debate. Opening day will be devoted altogether to committee meetings. The national president, Miss C. E. Carmichael of New Glasgow, N. S., and several of the expected speakers have but recently returned from Europe and it is anticipated that their contributions to the programme will be of exceptional interest. The president of the council in the United States will also be in attendance.

It was expected that the convention banquet will be an outstanding social event.

NOT IN FAVOR OF EARLY ELECTION
Lord Beaverbrook Discusses the Political Situation in Great Britain.

Lord Beaverbrook, writing in his paper, the London Sunday Express, is not in favor of an early election. He writes, "It would be a mistake to suppose that the transfer of a certain number of seats from the Conservatives to the Liberals or from the Liberals to the Conservatives, with 20 or 30 losses by the Labour party."

Lord Beaverbrook argues that the Conservatives and Liberals ought to defeat the MacDonald ministry on the issue involved in the dropping of the seclusion charge against Mr. Campbell, editor of the Workers' Weekly, which would in itself involve no election.

Premier MacDonald, says the writer, would have no right to ask for one, seeing that the blunder which has brought the Government's downfall was simply one of personal, or at the most, executive policy.

If, however, the Premier insists on asking the Sovereign for dissolution, it would be better to let the Conservatives to petition the King not to grant such a dissolution. Then it would be perfectly open to the Crown to send for any Conservative leader, such as Mr. MacDonald, to form a new government.

Concerning the proposal for dissolution over the Russian question, Lord Beaverbrook declares that the country, through the House of Commons and the press, has already expressed its opinion against the guaranteed loan to Russia, so why be threatened with a perfectly futile election to prove that the country is in favor of the loan?

Many outstanding men of high calibre, on both sides of politics, were behind this movement, and had given the matter a great deal of thought and time. It was believed by these men that a good deal of prosperity could be brought to the maritime by educating the public to the necessity of buying at home and asking for maritime-made goods.

In order for a community, province or group of provinces to be prosperous, money must be kept at home, or replaced by other money coming in from exports. This was not happening in the maritimes. We were sending our money out, but very little was coming in, and as the shortage developed, our young men were compelled to leave home and go after the money sent away.

All this could be changed. We could build up our industries, increase employment, increase production, by showing proper support to and appreciation of the industries we had.

The luncheon was presided over by Gyro Harold Scott.

GYROS HEAR "BUY AT HOME" URGE

Club Addressed at Luncheon in Matter of Maritime Industries.

In an address before the St. John Gyro Club at a luncheon in the Dunlop Hotel today, R. A. Macaulay, field organizer for the "Buy at Home and Maritime Made" Campaign, said that while the Maritimes welcomed new industries, there was a whole lot of work that could be done along the lines of developing those already with.

He said he had visited nearly all the principal cities of the Maritimes, and had found that industry was well represented in almost every line, but in nearly all cases the manufacturers were suffering from the want of a market large enough to warrant a good payroll.

It was only necessary to look at the list of manufacturers published in last night's Times-Star in order to be convinced that St. John was well supplied with industries. The list showed that nearly everything needed for the home was produced in the Maritimes. There were some articles not made here that were in everyday use, but not many. What was needed was public support of the industries we already had.

The same applied to the Maritimes. Most communities possessed industries, but an alarming number of these were undernourished by the lack of public support.

In the maritime provinces we had more than a million people. But we seemed to have reached our limit, and our population stood or even declined. Why was this? Because people are not buying at home.

From tests made with 100 citizens in all corners of life, it had been found that 75 per cent. of expenditures were for goods not made in the maritimes. The present time the available market was only one-fourth covered.

The outside manufacturer was supplying three-quarters of the needs of our people. Price, quality and design of course were important factors, but all three could be had in the maritimes. The present time the available market was only one-fourth covered.

Nobody could dispute the logic of this argument. These cards and others were distributed throughout the maritime provinces by the "Buy at Home and Maritime Made" campaign, of which the Hon. W. E. Foster, ex-Prime Minister of New Brunswick, was the champion.

Many outstanding men of high calibre, on both sides of politics, were behind this movement, and had given the matter a great deal of thought and time. It was believed by these men that a good deal of prosperity could be brought to the maritime by educating the public to the necessity of buying at home and asking for maritime-made goods.

MAKES HIGH MARKS IN BOSTON COURSE

John M. Fitzpatrick, Waterloo street, who is associated with his father, P. J. Fitzpatrick, in the business of funeral directors, has just returned to the city from Boston bringing honors won in a post-graduate course taken since August at the New England School of Embalming. He passed his examinations very successfully and was awarded marks just within striking distance of the perfect 100. Following this the young man wrote the state board of examinations at the State House and he is now awaiting word of them. He is receiving the congratulations of friends on the excellent success attained. Mrs. Fitzpatrick accompanied her son on a visit to Boston while he was taking the course.

MACDONALD MAKES GENERAL ELECTION ALMOST CERTAIN

Each party has obtained the viewpoint of the other after a very full and frank discussion of the problem.

Mr. Dalrymple Pleased.
When questioned regarding the outcome of the conference immediately following the meeting, Mr. Dalrymple expressed a Time-Star reporter to Mr. Dalrymple for any definite announcements. He, however, expressed himself pleased with the attitude taken by the local men on the various subjects. Beyond this, Mr. Dalrymple declined to go.

A member of Mr. Dalrymple's party, however, expressed the opinion that the conference was satisfactory to both sides. In a nutshell, he said, the attitude of the company was that to induce a greater flow of C. N. R. traffic through this port, it would be necessary to build a new station, and the railway was in a position to construct a new one. These repairs, he indicated, would be in the nature of roofing in of the train shed.

Hon. Dr. Foster.
Hon. Dr. W. E. Foster, when interviewed by the conference immediately following its close, expressed himself as being of the opinion that the attitude taken by the local men on the various subjects was satisfactory to all.

Visitors Entertained.
The visiting railway officials of the C. N. R. were the guests of the day today at one o'clock at a luncheon in the Dunlop Hotel. Those who sat down to dinner were the members of the port committee, the members of the Council of the Board of Trade and representatives of the press. The railway men will leave this evening at 6:15 for Halifax.

LOVE THE JEALOUS.
(W. H. Davies in the Tale Review.)
I praised the daisies on my lawn,
And then my lady moved them down,
My garden stones, improved by me,
She moved—and that was Beauty's foe.
When I loved the sunlight, she
Kept a bird in the fire-tongs for me.
She saw I loved the birds, and that
Made her one day bring home a cat.
She plucked my flowers to deck each room,
And makes me follow where they bloom.
Because my friends were kind and many,
She said: "What need has Love of any?"

FROM "THE LAST TAVERN."
Softly the darkness folds the sun away,
And on the hill-paths, treading to and fro,
Unwearied though they fared with me today,
The younger travellers go.
I lean across my window, looking down,
The court is dark with sombre pine and fir.
But the lighted places of the town,
The folk are all astir.
"And these," I said, "will jest tonight with a while,
Will sleep, and dream, and awaken with the dawn,
To take the road again for many a mile,
But I shall not go on."

I do not bid the good host waken me,
For when I sleep, I shall not soon awake;
Ah, rest me soon! I have no will to see
The path I may not take.

MANY WOMEN VOTE IN U. S. ELECTION

Registration This Year Indicates a New Record at Polls.

New York, Oct. 7.—Woman suffrage will not be a "failure" in the coming presidential election, as increasing registration and greater public interest promise a far larger vote this year than in 1920.

Figures compiled by Simon Michelet head of a national committee to increase the interest in elections, show that women will this year create the record they made four years ago. The woman vote is likely to be a controlling factor in the election, as the stay-at-home voter and the woman voter are the two unknown factors that make elections uncertain.

Ten million women voted in 1920 out of a total of 33,994,480 native and naturalized white women of voting age, according to Mr. Michelet. This was 48 per cent. of the possible woman vote. This year the women will increase that percentage. Already the registration of women has shown a notable increase.

In Vermont, where the women cast only 50 per cent. of the 1920 vote, they have registered to the extent of 42 per cent. In Los Angeles the women cast 45 per cent. of the August primary vote. In Kansas the registration of women is 44 per cent. of the total. Even in Baton Rouge in spite of the supposed indifference of Southern women to politics, the registration of women is this year 45 per cent. of the total.

Mr. Michelet's analysis of the woman vote is the most comprehensive ever made of a subject rendered difficult by the fact that in most states there is no separate registration. The size of the women's vote can be estimated by the difference between the vote for president before and after the granting of suffrage to women. Also, election officials sometimes obtain a fairly accurate list of women voters by checking their first names, though they are not compelled to do so, and seldom take the extra work upon themselves. In Illinois and in some cities and towns a separate list of men and women has 10,000,000 votes in 1920.

The conclusion has been definitely reached, however, that women cast 48 per cent. of the total vote of approximately 10,000,000 votes in 1920 or 87 per cent. of the total vote of 26,158,892 for president. Women voting represented 48 per cent. of the total woman vote, giving women a poorer showing than men, as the total of men and women showed 50 per cent.

The poorest showing was made in three Atlantic states, New York, where women cast only 30 per cent. of their possible strength; Pennsylvania, with 39 per cent.; and New Jersey, with 30 per cent. The eight mountain states (Montana to New Mexico) made the best showing, with women casting 60 per cent. of the total vote.

per cent. of the total vote, New England and the Pacific states and a women's vote of 40 per cent., and in other sections the ratio varied from 37 to 49 per cent.

The best showing in any single state was made by the women of Montana, where they cast 45 per cent. of the total vote and where 62 per cent. of them voted. Other western states where women made a good showing are those in which they had longer experience in voting, as in Colorado, Utah, Arizona, Wyoming, Oregon and Washington. On the Atlantic seaboard Delaware and Rhode Island are well at the top with 42 and 44 per cent.
