MRS. NANCY WESTCOTT, of Syracuse, N. Y., who declares Tanlac is the greatest medicine on earth. Says it built her up to where she is just brimful of new life and energy.

"I just think Tanlac is the greatest medicine on earth and I can never praise it enough for what it has done for me. For two years I was in a badly run-down condition. I had no appetite, and after every meal I would be in awful distress from indigestion and bloating. My nerves were on edge, and I could never get a good night's sleep. I felt tired and worn out all the time, was so weak I couldn't look after my household. I just felt miserable.

"Tancal helped one of my friends so much that I began taking it and it has certainly built me up into splendid health. My appetite is so big I can hardly get enough to eat now, and I am never troubled by a particle with bloating or indigestion. My nerves are as steady as clockwork, and I sleep like a child at night. I have recovered my strength and am just brimful of new life and energy. In fact, I feel better than I have in years. My gratitude towards Tanlac is unbounded."

lot of money for you without your investing a dollar.

This sounded good. Appelt and the "stock raiser from Texas" went to Turnbull Castle, on the Dixie Highway, a structure that had been rented and lavishly equipped by con men for the undoing of the unwary. Inside they found a big quotation board with the rapidly changing prices of the New York stock market, and they noticed, too, the tall stacks of currency upon the cashier's desk.

"Mr. Chambers" handed $500 each to Appelt and "Pogart" and told them to do exactly what he did. He promptly bought Vanadium Steel and Appelt and "Pogart" were joyful, as, after following his example, they saw Vanadium steadily rising. At "Mr. Chambers" signal they sold, and each received from the cashier $1,500. Then, still following their good angel, they tackled Crucible Steel, and in no time at all they cleaned up $5,000 each. Appelt's total profit was now $4,000, and he felt mighty good about it and mightily grateful to "Mr. Chambers."

"Now, gentlemen," said this person, "I have one more good tip, but it's going to take considerable money to swing it. Here"—and he rushed Appelt at this, the psychological "rush" moment of the bunco game—"sign this check payable to bearer for $40,000." Appelt signed, as did "Pogart," and they bought General Motors. Up went General Motors at once, soaring.

Chambers Not So Lucky.

When they sold the cashier handed Appelt handfuls of bills—$1,000 bills mostly—and he was about to turn away with his wealth when the cashier approached them and inquired politely if they had an account with the firm. None of them had, and the cashier requested them to return the cash, saying that they would have to return the money, since the firm did not take checks, and that they would have to prove that they could have made their $40,000 checks good if the stock had gone down. The cashier demanded $80,000 as a guarantee that they were men of substance who had not tried to bilk a respectable brokerage firm. It was very convincing.

"Mr. Pogart" said that he could get $40,000 if he had time to go to Texas. "Mr. Chambers" said he could obtain $25,000. That made $65,000, and all looked at Appelt. He thought a bit, and then said he would supply $15,000 to make up the $80,000 if he went home for it. Appelt and "Mr. Pogart" went after their money, and when they were absent "Mr. Chambers" remained at Turnbull Castle, keeping an eye on the market. He was tempted to try another turn or two, and by an astonishing visitation of bad luck lost every dollar of the profits that were coming to the combination. When Appelt and Pogart returned to Turnbull Castle to hear this "Pogart" went wild with anger. At least Appelt was deceived: He tried to kill "Mr. Chambers," and was only restrained by the frightened Appelt. The row was smoothed over for the time, and "Pogart" told his companions that he would himself make good their losses. He told them to go to their hotel and wait while he returned to Texas for $40,000 more. He never came back, of course, and "Mr. Chambers" disappeared also.

It was an old game in New York twenty years ago.
