Ordnance Branch Like a Vast Workshop

Many Types of Guns

Improvements Have Been Adopted by Other Nations—Skilled Workmen Recruited to Ensure Efficiency in Important Work

Central France, Sept. 8.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—American ingenuity is fast making itself felt in the construction of field guns in the vast workshop of the ordnance branch of the American army here.

One of the American designs which has won strong favor with the French experts is the "split trailer," which extends back of the gun from the wheels down to the ground. From the earliest days of gunnery this trailer has been a single piece. But the Americans have split it in two, from the ground up so that two great legs spread out backward from a cannon.

The results have been astonishing, permitting an ordinary field piece to be elevated to 80 degrees, or almost straight up.

The American design has now been adopted as the standard French model, and it is going into all the new guns made at French arsenals. Official photographs made by the ordnance branch are now going forward for public exhibition in America, showing this split trailer firing at an elevation of 78.40 degrees.

Here could be seen also every form of the death-dealing machine-gun which became such a formidable weapon in the present war.

The Machine Guns.

"This is an age of mechanical warfare," said the officer as he pointed out the different types, French, English, American, as well as German and Austrian. "There were no machine-guns used in the civil war, only a few in the Spanish-American and Boer wars; more in the Russo-Japanese and Balkan wars, and now they have developed to a foremost place as an effective and deadly means of warfare."

Most of the nations are making two forms of these machine-guns, the heavy type weighing about thirty pounds, mounted on a tripod and drawn by a mule, and the light automatic, fired from the shoulder like an ordinary rifle.
Both types of these guns fire steadily streams of lead as the belts of bullets are fed into the reservoirs, the only limit being the amount of ammunition which can be carried. With each automatic rifle are three men, one to fire and two to keep up the steady feeding of munition.

A New Type.

The new type of American machine gun makes a favorable appearance in this array of makes from all the nations.
It is coming over in large quantities now, and most of the American divisions now arriving come with their machine gun sections equipped with the new American model. At the training camps the tests have given the best results, but the real test of battle accuracy is still to come as most of the divisions on the fighting line obtained their machine-gun equipment before the new model was ready.

In this same arsenal one could compare the rifles and bayonets of all the combatant troops. The American bayonet looked like a long, sharp-edged knife. But the French bayonet was more like a slender rapier, two feet long and without cutting edge, meant for stabbing. The Russian bayonet has no sharp point but is like a screw-driver with a flat edge, cutting and stabbing at the same time.

And besides the guns of all kinds is the ammunition stored in vast quantities in arsenals and warehouses and in huge parks and ammunition dumps all the way from the coast up to the fighting front. The great stacks of shells are very orderly in arrangement, each stack representing a car-load, and each graded by caliber and lot-number. Each lot of shells differs in power, and the only way to insure uniform accuracy in the fire of a battery is to keep it supplied with the same lot of shells.

WET WEATHER AND PAPER CLOTHES.

Separate from the shells, are the grenades kept in small detached lots owing to their highly explosive character. In one of these grenade dumps there were eighteen different kinds of gas, hand and rifle grenades.

Skilled Men Used.

There are now some 8,400 men, formerly skilled mechanics in large American factories, who are enlisted soldiers carrying on this huge work of keeping up the supply of guns and ammunition.
Realizing the need of highly skilled men for this work in France, a special recruiting campaign was carried on in many of the American industrial centers last winter. The result is shown in the equipment of the ordnance branch with a staff of skilled workmen comparing with the best factory sections.

It is largely a patriotic service in which skilled mechanics have given up large wages to accept the soldiers' pay of $30 a month. The foreman of one of the extensive Detroit automobile factories, who received $200 a week, is now a volunteer among these enlisted men earning $30 a month. There are scores of cases of this kind.

On the way from the seacoast to this great center of American ordnance supply, one sees along the way not only vast stocks of material and guns, but other very vital factor of artillery.

"DOUGHBOYS"

(From the Stars and Stripes.)
A doughboy is an American soldier, and American soldiers, infantrymen, medical department, signal corps, sharpshooters and men alike, all are called doughboys. Our cartoonist is one, so is General Pershing. The term "dough-boys" dates back to the Civil War when army wit was aroused by large globular buttons on infantry uniforms.

Somebody (he must have been a sailor) dubbed the buttons "doughboys" because they reminded him of the boiled dumplings of raised dough served in ships' messes and known to all sailors as doughboys. Originally it referred only to an infantryman, but the A. E. F. applies it to all branches and all grades of the service.

GENEROSITY "COLOSSAL"

London, Sept. 21.—T. P. O'Connor, M.
P., at a committee meeting of the Armenian Refugees Fund, expressed his profound appreciation of the great work which he found on his recent visit to America, was being carried out by the American Committee for Armenia and Syrian relief, of the keen enthusiasm of their workers and of the hearty sympathy which he found on all sides.

He was deeply impressed with the "colossal" generosity of the American people, and with the report of the agents of the committee, both within Turkish territory and in the regions adjacent to the various battle fronts.

Wm. D. C. M.

Lance Corporal G. W. Adams, 140 Britain street, has received word that his brother, Regimental Sergeant-Major Thomas Adams of the 18th Battalion, has been awarded the D. S. M. He is a South African war veteran.

"I want to know," said the grim-faced woman, "how much money my husband drew out of the bank last week."

"I cannot give you that information, madam," answered the man in the cage.
"You're the paying teller, aren't you?"

"Yes, but I'm not the telling payer."
