Toronto Globe Anticipates Controversy Over Hydro-Elec-tric Export Tax

Readjustments of the tariff as indicated in the budget brought down at Ottawa yesterday, discussed by Saint John business men today, were calculated to have a salutory effect for good in the Maritimes, in their judgment, especially the matter of slack coal, upon which a duty of 50c. has been imposed against United mines, instead of the 14c. impost of past years. This advantage to Eastern Canada and the country as a whole was stressed by several prominent merchants and manufacturers spoken to by The Times-Star this morning.

G. Clifford McAvity of the manufacturing department of T. McAvity & Sons, Ltd. said he had not had an opportunity of reading the tariff announcements carefully and therefore would be at a loss to express opinions. Since the changes indicated in the budget did not deal with many things affecting his business he would perhaps not have much to say any way. The only well drilling machinery manufactured in this section of Canada that he knew of was made in Sherbrooke, P. Q. As to the increased duty on slack coal he thought this would prove a good thing for Eastern Canada. The McAvity furnaces burn nothing but domestic coal.

LONDON, March 25.—Germany's proposals for a security pact, as outlined before the House of Comomns by Austen Chamberlain are received favorably by several of the chief London morning papers.

THE TIMES thinks perhaps the brightest feature is that Germany is prepared to accept establishment of a demilitarized Rhine zone, which it says, "appears indeed to offer hope of something like a practical, permanent guarantee of peace."

THE MORNING POST recognizing that much diplomatic work is necessary before an agreement can be reached believes that the proposals offer a chance of saving Europe from another war.

THE DAILY TELEGRAPH
says the magnitude of the German offer is much greater than was expected, and believes it furnishes a reasonable hope of settlement.
The foregoing comments are drawn from papers supporting the

THE WESTMINSTER GAZETTE (Liberal) is equally favorable in its comment. It thinks the German offer much more promising than was supposed, declares it deserves all the support it has received, and believes the country will endorse the government in pursuing the negotiations.

In his speech the Foreign Secretary made known to the world that Great Britain would seek to build a permanent European peace on the foundation of a mutual pact between Germany and her late enemies, and would have nothing further to do with the wreckage of the security protocol framed at the last league assembly, when the Macdonald Labor government was in power.

HON. AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN,

Secretary for Foreign Affairs, who told the British Commons yesterday of Germany's plans for peace com-

"The German government," said Mr. Chamberlain, in the course of his remarks, "is making a sincere and honest attempt to lead up to a better state of things. If I understand her proposals rightly, Germany is prepared to guarantee voluntarily what hitherto she has only accepted under compulsion of the treaty—a status quo in the west. She is prepared to eliminate war, not merely from the west but from the east, as the engine whereby any alteration in the treaty position is to be obtained."

REASON FOR REJECTION Any arrangement that Great Britain made must be purely defence in character, Mr. Chamberlain declared, and operated in close harmony with the League of Nations, and under its guldance, if possible. It was obvious that Great Britain's obligations could not be extended to every frontier, and that was the main reason why the British government had rejected the protocol.

"It must be made quite clear, however," he explained, "that in trying to underpin the covenant, and stabilize peace in the west, we are not licensing or legitimatizing war elsewhere. On the contrary, we hold that by the mere fact of stabilizing peace in the west, an additional guarantee will be given to the frontiers in the east."

WEAK POINTS IN PACT. Mr. Chamber on candidly confessed to a multitude of reasons that impelled the present British government to destroy the protocol. The present government, he said, did not think the protocol would lead to security, and thereby to disarmament. On the contrary, it called for increased naval forces to be supplied by Great Britain. Nor did it eliminate the pacts.

Furthermore there was that never unimportant thing in international affairs—the attitude of the United States.

Mr. Chamberlain wondered whether the Macdonald government gave much thought to the effect of the protocol on the United States policy. So far as he knew, the United States had made no efficial declaration with regard to the protocol, but he had tried to inform himself as to the trend of oninion in himself as to the trend of opinion in the United States, and unless he was wholly mistaken, the protocol "would have been viewed rather as a possible
