

Appenings of the Week

During the past month, society events have been few in number compared to former weeks, so many are away that practically all items of interest are centred in the suburbs, the town being forsaken for the time being. The horse races at Moosehead have proved the chief attraction of the week, a goodly portion of society having shown their interest by their attendance at the different races. Tennis and golf are well to the fore, matches being played almost every week. It is to be hoped that the Opera House on Monday evening, under the direction of Mr. Theodore Bird, in aid of the Campbellton sufferers, will be largely patronized by every one.

The local council of women are indeed to be congratulated on the prompt assistance they have given, to aid the sufferers in the Campbellton disaster. A committee including Mrs. David McLeellan, Mrs. D. P. Chisholm, Mrs. J. H. Prink, Mrs. E. W. Murray, Mrs. H. A. McKenna and Miss Grace Leavitt, are in charge of the packing in Keith's Assembly Rooms, where donations of money, clothing, or provisions are gratefully received. Already three packing parties have been forwarded by the members of the council.

Precisely at 12.30 the bridal party entered the church and walked in procession up the central aisle, the organ pealing out the familiar strains of Lohengrin's stately wedding march.

The grouping was charmingly picturesque, the central figure on which all eyes were concentrated being the bride, who wore a gown of ivory satin with silver and pearl trimmings, and a large white veil. She carried a large white bouquet of lilies and roses, and a shower bouquet of carnations and lilies of the valley; while the long court train was borne by a tiny "train bearer," in white sailor suit, Master Archie Mitchell, the bride's small cousin.

The bridesmaids were Miss Helena Unalake and Miss Cecil Ritchie, who were charmingly groomed, alike, in princess dresses of pale pink crepe de chene, and large white hats, with pink ribbons. They carried sheaf bouquets of pink and white carnations, tied with long satin streamers.
