The Supreme Court to-day granted a writ of error in the case of Edward S. Stokes, upon a stipulation by defence to take the case at once to the Court of Appeals. As that Court is now in session it will be unnecessary to resentence him him.

Dixon will be hanged on Friday.

They weep and saal be a sure guard against such a tace as threatens their father. They weep and moan unceasingly, and the wardenhesitates to separate them, until the last moment in which visitors are allowed arrives. Entirely unknown to the prisoner the preparations for his execution are already under way, the erection of the scaffold having been begun to-day. It is the same that did duty at the execution of Foster, Thomas, Real and Reynolds, and many o hers. The prison authorities have already begun the filling out of the blank invitations to the Judges of the Court of Records and other persons. The formula is the same as that always used, and the hour set is that of 9 o'clock on Friday morning next. Tuesday Nixon's counsel applied to Judge Millar, at Hudson, for a stay of proceedings, but falling, went to Albany and made application to Judge Grover, in chambers. (Special to Tribune.) REMOVAL MANCHESTER, ROBERTSON & ALLISON AVE REMOVED TO THEIR NEW PREMISES 27 KING STREET Opposite Canterbury St. The persistent efforts of the counsel of the condemned murderer, Nixon, to save him from the gallows, have thus far been of no avail, and the prisoner has given up all hope of a better fate than that which his sentence awarded him. The day appointed for the execution is close at hand, and as the hours go by, the decided man seems to grow stronger and decided man seem MOURNING more resigned, although he evinced more prostration and agony on the reception of his death sentence than has been known in the courts for a long time. He neither desires interviews nor avoids them, and without making any outcry or appeal from his lonely cell, he touches the hearts of his keepers as he frequently says to them in subdued tones, "I'm resigned to die, and don't desire to grumble. Perhaps it is all for the best." Occasionally the natural affection of the man for his family bursts out in fits of violent weeping, from which he recovers after a few moments. He receives the ministrations of his confessor with gloom and sadness, and, although apparently buoyed up by the cheeriness of his words, he finds but little consolation in them. His wife visits him frequently, and on these occasions the scene is enough to draw tears from the dryest eye. The prisoner talks to her of the future, forgetful of himself, and is constantly reminding her to teach their children to lead a life that
