Pleasant Evening Reverles dedicated to tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

"My boy," writes a white-haired mother to her son, a busy man in a distant state, "write home often. You do not realize what your letters are to me, and how long it is between them." No, he had not realized it, and unhappily there are many absent sons and daughters who need similar reminder. They would be indignant at the They would be indignant at the suggestion of waning fillal devotion, but in the stress of business, in the society of new friends, in the happiness of a new home circle, how rarely they spare the hour-for a good long letter to the aging mother in the old home—the loving mother whose heartache as the passing days fail to bring the longed-for eletter, is one of the most pathetic travedies of old age. The decline of the letter, is one of the most pathetic tragedies of old age. The decline of the letter-writin; habit of an earlier gener-ation has often been deplored, but this setton has often seen deproted, out this feature of the decline can neither be excused or defended. The post-card substitute for letters is little less than a mockery when the cards are sent to the mother who wants, and should have, so much more than that. As youth lives in and for the future, so does old age always look back over the slope as it nears the summit. The parent is wrapped up in the son and daughter; but as the son grows to munhood and the daughter to womanhood they are absorbed in the plans and the process of building the structure of the coming year. Such is the law of life and the basis of all progress, but it is a pitiful thing when the son and daughter fail to keep in mind their obligation to the loyalty and love of their parents. oyalty and love of their parents. Rainbow Assortment, Resembling

BLOUSES FOR EARLY SPRING

Prominently displayed in the art edlework department of one of New York's most interesting shops is a rainbow assortment of dainty blouses in many pastel shades of handkerchief linen. At the first glance they resem-ble the smocks with which every one is familiar, but a closer examination proves them to be cut somewhat short worn either inside or outside the belt. Instead of the usual smocking for decoration, they are effectively broidered in the cross-stitch, which is now so much in vogue, worked in deeper hues of mercerized cotton. simply, with a V neck and turn-back collar of the linen. The sleeves, which are quite loose, are set in large armblouse, are gathered in snugly at the wrists and finished with a narrow, rather full ruffle, which falls over the

The embfoidery is placed across the front of the blouse, at the corners of the collar, as a finishing touch around the edges of the wrist ruffles and, oddly enough, on the upper part of the sleeve, just over the forearm. A skein of loosely braided embroidery floss makes an unusual and effective tie to blouses are made so as to allow free dom of movement, they are excellent their fabric is very soft, they may be worn inside the belt, if preferred. TO MAKE PRETTY KERCHIEFS

Roll and Whip Border Is Made Attract tive by Drawn Threads of a Deeper Hue.

The woman who delights in making dainty handkerchiefs is usually interested in novel ways of varying the plain square which she wishes to beautify. The handkerchief with the "roll and whip" border (the hem of which is rolled tightly by moistening it a little with the finger tips, and whipped around and back again with colored thread, to form tiny crosses for a border) has been such a favorite that it is now being ornamented by drawn threads of a deeper hue, inserted parallel to the edge, which give a most ef fective touch to the finished handker these through the linen if they are attached carefully to the e.ds of the threads of the original fabric, which are to be removed to make room for the colored ones. When the old thread is slipped out the new one follows automatically in its place. Two lines may be inserted parallel if preferred to give more color and character to the 'design. A simple initialing at one corner is perhaps the most satisfactory decoration to finish the gift. Handkerchief linen is obtainable in a variety of exquisite shades, which are most attractive when set off by a finishing touch in darker hue.

USE FOR OLD CORSET STEELS

Stays Dropping From Worn Garmen Prove Valuable Accessory to the Sewing Basket.

When a steel drops out of the halfworn corset there hardly seems any use to which it can any longer be put; but if you will save a couple of these steels, especially the wider and more pliable ones, they will prove a valuable accessory to your sewing bas-When sewing buttons, hooks and eyes or snap fasteners on a hem where it is desired that the stitching does not show through to the opposite side of the garment, as, for instance, when sewing the fasteners on the front of a fine lawn or crepe de chine shirtwaist, leave one end of the hem un stitched so as to insert your steel Your needle accordingly will pass through only one thickness of goods in sewing on the fastener.

Corset steels are also handy in making bags opening at the side and used for all sorts of utility purposes. Place the steel across the top of the bag to brace the stitching. It is strong and pliable, and in the end will serve its purposes far better than a piece of

The cutting and curing of hay is an The cutting and curing of hay is an operation requiring the exercise of prompt action and sound judgment if a maximum yield of hay of suitable quality is to be saved. Towards this end there are several factors which should receive consideration. The time or stage of cutting is of prime importance since it affects both yield and quality. Usually the most profitable yield is obtained when the crop is cut when in blossom or just past that stage, say when about one-third of the bloom has disappeared. Ordinarily the tensay when about one-third of the bloom has disappeared. Ordinarily the tendency is to leave the commencement of having too late for proper curing during the latter part of the season, due to over ripeness of the crop. It is advisable, therefore, to plan to do this work during the period when there is the least possibility of loss. Beginning hay early is good practice. Clover and affaffa cut slightly immature will make better hay under favourable weather conditions than left until-fairly ripe. Besides, an early start will allow for loss of time through broken weather during the haythrough broken weather during the hay-ing season and will ensure a heavier second crop which may be utilized for hay, seed and pasture purposes. With regard to methods of curing, no definite rule or rules of procedure can be definite rule or rules of procedure can be laid down to meet all requirements. A successful hay maker so to speak "knows his business," a knowledge that is acquired only by long experience with vagaries of weather, periods of cutting, conditions of curing, etc. To become efficient in this work requires one vigilant and with ability to contend with emergencies.

Clovers and alfalfa are more difficult

Clovers and alfalfa are more difficult o cure than timothy and other grasse They are more succulent, absorb rain more readily and the leaves, the most valuable part of the plant, are more easily broken off than the leaf blades of easily broken out than the lear black grasses. They should be cut when free from dew or other moisture, and dried, for placing in cocks, by the agency of wind rather than sun as far as possible wind rather than sun as far as possible. Exposure to rain or even heavy dew will hange the green leaves to dark brown d make them crisp and readily broken off by handling. Rain and dew will also extract the aroma of fragrance, a quality essential in making hay palat-ible and attractive.

A Tough Case

One of the briefest summings up on record was that of Justice Maule, who thus addressed the jury on a memorable occasion:

"Gentlemen of the jury." he is reported to have said, "if you don't believe the witness for plaintiff, you will find for the defendant. If, like myself, you don't believe any of them, heaven knows which way you will find.
