

standing timber is cut, and that permits to the chief and head men defining the limits within which the dead and fallen timber may be taken should be moved from time to time by the Agent, and he should visit the scene of their operations from time to time and see that in cutting up the dead and fallen timber they keep within the prescribed limits and all of such timber is disposed of, and then give them new ground on which to work.

I am,

Sir

Yours obedient servant
