"HUNTER RED" WALL PAPER-

A Fashion in Room Decoration that Ha Just Come Over From England.

The very latest fashion in wall decora-tion is a bizarre, staring shade of paper known as hunter's red. It comes in plain all-over red, and again variegated with figures and pictures. The grotesque and fantastic designs suggest the headless dragons, centaurs, and puzzling eccentrici-ties of the old-fashioned paperings of our grandmother's day.

dragons, century, and puzzing eccurriesties of the old-fashioned paperings of our grandmother's day.

The paper is used to decorate bachelors' dens and the bed chambers of country houses. It is essentially English in character and design, many of the designs depleting red-coated hunters in English fields.

So vividity green is the grass, so impossibly blue the water, so distorted the image of the wounded stag, repeated over and over again on yards and yards of papering, that the beholder wonders alike at the artist's powers of invention and the taste which makes such creations possible. Fashion decrees that with this wall decoration must go old-time English prints of hunting scenes.

With such wall decorations for bedrooms and bachelor apartments, the old-fashioned chintz bed curtains and valance of three generations ago have disappeared.

THE SENSE OF TOUCH.

Curious Facts About the Nerves Through Which It is Translated. Which it is Translated.

A writer in a German medical paper has the following on the sensatory nerves of the fingers: "The sense organs, which convert any irritation of the skin into nexvous excitation, are essentially alike in structure, although they vary considerably in size. Included among them are "Pacini's corpuscles imbedded in the subcutaneous tissues, especially under the skin of the palm of the hand and the sole of the foot, but also in other parts of the body, as in the joints, and in the messentery of the cat. These corpuscles are elliptical bodies, one to two millimetres in length. To the naked eye they appear to be clastic, semi-transparent bodies with white stripes. Other corpuscles resembthose found imbedded in the papillæ skin, and skin being a bad conductor of heat, the parts thus protected do not respond so quickly. We find this illustration in the hands. If we dip both hands into water slightly above the freezing point, with the palms toward each other, but not in contact, the cold is first experienced in the back of the hands, where the 'kkin is thinnest, but after about eight seconds' we begin to feel the cold more in the hollow of the hands and very soon we realize that the same water produces a far greater sensation of cold there than on the back of the hands." skin, and skin being a bad conductor of is ever gaining in popularity.

How the Saying Originated.

It is said that the expression, "There is a skeleton in every closet," arose from the following incident: A young Italiah student, finding he was dying, fearing to break the news to his mother, adopted "the following device: He informed her that he was ill, and that he had been forefold he would not recover until he had worn a shirt made by a woman who had not frouble. The widow soon discovered that it was no easy task to find such a person, but at length was referred to a lady who seemed surrounded with every comfort and happiness and possessing a husbuild who seemed devoted to her. The widow made known he request, and for an answer was shown a cluset where a skeleton hung suspended from a beam. She was told it was the remains of the lady's former lover, who from motives of jealousy had been slain by her husband, and that he compelled her to visit it every day. The widow concluded that no ore was without trouble, that "there was a long the form a beam should be the study of the widow concluded that no ore was without trouble, that "there was a spend several weeks at New-reas and spend several weeks at New-reas and spend several weeks at New-reas and spend several weeks at New-reas selection that he compelled her to visit it every day. Napoleon's Birthplace, A correspondent sends us the following account of Corsica, the writer having lately wintered there: "We love the country and the people, but it is as wild as the interior of Africa, with a rude, variable climate. Dirt exists to such a variable climate. Dirt exists to such a degree that you cannot walk a step without stepping into filth. Stench prevalls in every corner, even in the street of Ajaccio, leading to Napoleon's birthplace. In country inns no sanitary arrangements exist whatever, and you get nothing to eat whatever unless you telegraph the day before. Brigands are rare indeed, but you must have no quarrel with any man, or even look at any man disapprovingly, or he gets mad with anger, and then—beware! Yet the country is marvelously beautiful, and a trip in the latter part of March, April or early in May will repay all incredible inconveniences and horrors."—Lendon Dally News.

A project has been started by an en the top of Mont Blanc. The line would commence at the Miage Ravine, above Saint-Gervais, and would at once be carried through a tunnel 7,400 metres in length. From this point a "vertical shaft," 2,800 metres in height, would RHEUMATISM C shaft," 2,800 metres in height, would bring the traveler up to the summit. The engineer is not inclined to underrate the difficuties of the scheme, the more sas the height of his "vertical shaft" would be more than double those now in existence. He considers, however, that the feat could be accomplished in ten years, and at an expenditure of 9,000,00f. The tunnel would be carried in a straight line as far as the Italian frontier, which it would then fringe for about 1,500 metres. It is added that all this would be of great advantage in connection with the observatory which is being exceted at the top of Mont Blane, as it could thus be reached at every senson of the year.

closet with the barrel leaded, and found, upon extracting the cartridge to clean the gun, that the lead of the bullet had been esten away and poured out of the barrel in fine dust. With the dust there came the dried body of a common moth, and the appearance of the moth indicated that it had caien the lead from the bullet. He showed the moth and the lead dust to saveral friends, and all agreed that everything indicated that the moth had eaten away the lead. One of Mr. Johnson's friends happened to be acquainted with Mr. Frank Johnson of Brooklyn, N. Y., a famous entomologist, and suggested that the moth and lead borings be sent to him for examination and report. This was done, and a report was received. Mr. Johnson says that the moth was a common carpet moth, and that the gun, standing against the wall of the closet, had captured the moth as it fell from some article of clothing, and the moth, being unable to climb out of the smooth gun barrel, had attacked the softest part it could find, and had gone to work to bore its way out. He says that it is the second time on record, the first being where a French entomologist had placed several moths in a lead box and they had eaten their way out. He stated that the present case was most remarkable, as the moth had reduced nearly an ounce of lead to powder in less than two weeks, and that without food upon which to renew its energies.

The "jumping bean" is still fresh in the memory of the curiosity hunter. It seems that a worthy successor to it has been found in a little dry fruit growing in Java, and described recently in La Nature. The fruit is about an inch and a half long and cigar-shaped, and explodes with a loud report if placed into water after floating for two or three minutes. It can be shown in an ordinary water tumbler. The force developed is success, and the trouble was approaching a chronic state. At the suggestion of a friend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were tried and relief soon followed their use, and after a few boxes had been taken the editor was able to assert positively that he had been curéd of his dyspepsia by this remedy that has proved so great as a blessing to mankind. To any one troubled with his complaint he would strongly recommand Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.
