Where The Blueberry Grows

As I strolled up the walk of a great thoroughfare
And stopped at a fruitman's to taste of his ware,
I paused for a moment to study the hues
Of his fruits with their dainty yellows and blues.
There were oranges and lemons, bananas and limes,
And sweet, juicy fruit from the tropical climes,
There were peaches and pears and clusters of grapes,
In boxes and baskets of many queer shapes.

As I stood drinking in the color array,
My attention was drawn to a quaint wooden tray
Of little round berries in purple and blue,
As fresh as the drops of their mountain-home dew,
And my heart winged away to the tree-plumed steep,
Where the wild poppy nods and the mountain stream leaps,
And I questioned within if the city folks knew
Of the beautiful glades where the blueberries grow.

Where the musical ripples so tunefully sing
And the leaf-curtained thickets are all of a wing,
Where the wild bees are seeking the sweets of the flowers
And the butterflies spangle the walls of the bowers,
Where the world and its troubles are barred from the mind
And the pale cheek is kissed by the pure mountain wind,
There no worldlings disturb as the weary repose,
'Way up in the hills where the blueberry grows.

Where Nature holds fast to her motherly breast
The pine and the birch as they tower from the crest,
Where the eagle mounts high and the stag lifts its head
And stalks through the wood with a dignified tread,
Where the heart beats anew by the beauties inspired
And the toil-weakened soul of ambition is fired,
Where the wild flowers are fragrant and soft breezes blow
'Mong the harebells and ferns, there the blueberries grow.

Hair Splits

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for thirty years. It is elegant for a hair dressing and for keeping the hair from splitting at the ends."
J. A. Greenleaf, Grandport, Ill.

Hair-splitting splits friendships. If the hair-splitting is done on your own head, it loses friends for you, for every hair of your head is a friend.

Ayer's Hair Vigor in advance will prevent the splitting. If the splitting has begun, it will stop it.
