DESIRE OF THE WEST FOR INDUSTRIES WHEN BASEBALL DAYS ARE PAST AND GONE

And the Opportunities All Over the Country Are Still Very Inviting

One of the outstanding features of the wonderful development of the western half of the Dominion has been the great industrial progress which has gone on quietly. And there is everything to indicate that in the long run manufacturing will revolutionize conditions and result in a complete transformation of the entire west.

While grain growing will continue to be the greatest wealth producing factor of the west, it has long been apparent that the "one crop" policy is not the system which produces real and lasting prosperity. As the Canadian Miller and Cerealist says, mixed farming has been a splendid success, as the fine live stock now seen throughout the west indicates, and this success has led to the establishing of creameries and kindred industries. These have in turn made it apparent that practically any line of goods needed in the west can be manufactured there as successfully as elsewhere.

The industrial development of the last three or four years has been simply phenomenal. Not very long ago, the sole topics of conversation in the west were "real estate" and "wheat." Today, "cheap power" is the subject under discussion everywhere. Everybody has become imbued with the feeling that the real and substantial growth of the center of population depends mostly on industrial development. There is not now a point in the west which is content to longer remain a simple trading post. Everywhere, the demand is for factories, for all are convinced that with the building of permanent towns prosperity must come to the surrounding agricultural districts.

Winnipeg secured cheap power about a year ago, and last year seventy new factories were established there. Medicine Hat has cheap power, and industrial concerns are rapidly multiplying in that city. The story is the same everywhere—industrial development is one of the headliners in the program of western progress. In the little city of Souris, Manitoba, there is a big factory where as fine office fixtures and store fittings are made as can be turned out by any concern in America. At Redcliff, Alta., the most artistic ornamental iron work is being turned out in immense quantities, and factories are being established there to manufacture window glass and bottles. At other places, fire engines and farm machinery, and even automobiles are being made successfully, and great factories are working night and day turning out material of all kinds for building purposes.

With the great success made by these enterprises what must be the opportunities in the milling and grain business where the raw material is at the very door of the industry? The opportunities are simply phenomenal. There is room for the investment of millions in mills and elevators with the absolute assurance of splendid profits in legitimate business.

In 1912 there were 20,272 deaths in Minnesota from all causes. Tuberculosis claimed 2,286 victims.

At Greenwich, Conn., recently, while playing golf in a foursome at the Greenwich Country Club, A. New York city reports less for the first six months of the year reduced by $2,238,666 as compared with last year, and a dropping of the number of fires from 8,455 to 6,605. Fire Commissioner Johnson, of the city, attributes the change for the better to the war against the "arson trust," and the greatest care in writing policies and in enforcing fire-prevention rules that resulted from the revelations.

Henry Bellin, a French Boy Scout, has just performed a particularly plucky feat. A chauffeur driving a car along a crowded Paris street was suddenly taken ill, and the vehicle dashed along, to the imminent danger of wayfarers. Bellin leaped on the car as it passed and brought it to a standstill. The owner, who was inside, wished to repay him handsomely, but the boy would have none of it and hurried away. His identity was only established by accident.

France has adopted a most unusual means of checking the decline in the birth rate, it being nothing less than subsidizing parenthood. The Chamber of Deputies has passed an act by which needy French parents with more than three children below the age of 13 years will receive a grant of from $12 to $18 a year for each child beyond that number. Widowers with more than two children under 13 will get grants, and widows will get grants for all children, if they have more than one. The act will cause an annual expenditure of about $10,000,000, divided among the State, the departments and the municipalities, and it will become effective next year.

seen the bear. He was no longer there, but had judged it best to retreat, and we did not follow his trail very far. He was a silver-tipped bear, and his footprints were the largest the old man had ever seen, so he said, and he had killed many bears.

That was in the day when I was young and inexperienced, and had poor tools to work with. In hunting bears the hunter needs the most improved firearms, for bears are always dangerous. I have experimented with several, and have found the Remington rifle gave me the best of satisfaction. Incidentally I have shot ten bears, including a grizzly, the most feared animal on the North American continent, and I have only begun. Some time I will have more to say of my numerous bear hunts, and the time when I went into the wilderness of the great Northwest on the caribou trail. But I shall never have any more exciting adventure than the day I met the old silver tip in the woods

As a name intimately associated with the operation of military bands in England, that of Godfrey seems destined to enjoy a perpetual lease of life. The third Dan Godfrey has just entered the band of the Coldstream Guards, under Lieut. MacKenzie Rogan. After the usual formality of enlistment, and after qualifying service in that regiment, he will go to the Royal Military School of Music at Kneller Hall, as a student in "bandmastership." Then in due course he will receive an appointment. This Dan Godfrey is the eldest son of Dan Godfrey, the musical director of the Bournemouth Corporation, who brought a band across the Atlantic some years ago.

The unique idea of log cabins with main lodge that has been erected the past year by the Grand Trunk System on Somke lake in the Algonquin National Park of Ontario are now in operation.

The camp is built entirely of cedar logs, has accommodation in the several cabins and the main lodge for 70 people, is plainly but comfortably furnished, bathrooms in each cabin, with hot and cold water and is situated in the centre of one of the finest fishing districts in America.

The camp is run in connection with the Highland Inn, the Grand Trunk Hotel, seven miles distant and guests are able to reach their destination from Algonquin Park station either by carriage or by canoe.

The altitude of the territory is 2,000 feet above the sea level. Write to the Manager of the Highland Inn either for rooms at the Hotel or the Camp at an early date, addressing him at Algonquin Park station, Ont.

An amusing story comes from Cheshire, G. B., relating to a kidless Scot who fell in the hands of the police, and was sentenced at Brixton to 21 days for being drunk and for using bad language, and a month for wilful damage in the police cell. When removed below, prisoner tore his trousers in shreds. The police were equal to the emergency, and remembering that he was a Scot they improvised a kilt for him by cutting the bottom out of a sack and tying the upper part round his waist. In this garb he made the journey to prison.

An unusual situation arose on the early closing day at Saltcoats, where the annual fair was about to be held. Thirty show people left Kilmarnock in the forenoon intending to get their dinner when they reached Saltcoats in the afternoon. On arriving they found that all shops were closed, it being the half-holiday. They were unable to get anything but bread. To relieve the situation a permit was given by the shops inspector to the showmen authorizing shops to supply them with their requirements.

At Glasgow Charles Henderson was fined for having cheated a man out of a shilling by pretending that paper bags which he was selling, also contained money. He denied the charge. A detective watched the accused placing brass chains in a piece of paper along with three florins, and then apparently folding the whole lot up and offering them for sale for one shilling. He did not make any definite promise to purchasers that they would get the money, but they were led to believe that they had a chance of getting something more than the chain.

Compiled reports received from government engineers from Halifax to Prince Rupert show that the sum of $120,000,000 has been actually paid out on Grand Trunk Pacific construction so far, and that the total, when the road is completed in September, 1914, will reach the enormous figure of $165,000,000.

Except for the section between Cochrane and Quebec, the work is now practically complete, and it is expected that trains will be running over the road into Quebec early next spring, if not sooner.

A strong movement to have King George visit Canada in 1914 officially to open the road is on foot. It has been suggested that the King and President Woodrow Wilson meet at some point on the border of the two countries.
