Perhaps the archbishop feared that some mesmeric power had been exerted on the hundreds of those wh had visited the crypt and pro fessed miraculous benefits in virtue of their visitation.

He found that Frere Andre was a simple, happy lay brother who did not even lead worship pers in their worship-being a lay brother; but who urged upor all worshipers to pay specia homage to St. Joseph who, by the way, is the patron saint of Canada, The archbishop asked the questions that an archbishop is entitled to ask, for a reques had been made for the archbishop to grant the privilege of the tabernacle (reppository of the Host) to the oratory. The archbishop drove back to his palace, and Frere Andre returned to his altar of St. Joseph to pray for the intercession of the saint in behalf of the innumerable persons who had written to him or come to beg him for aid.

The cough accompanying pneumonia is at first frequent and hacking, and the expectoration tough and colorless which soon, however, becomes more copious and of a rusty, red color; the lungs become congested and the bronchial tubes filled with phlegm, making it hard for the sufferer to breathe.

On the first sign of a cold or cough you should get a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and thus prevent the cold developing into some serious ing trouble.

Mr. J. F. Crouch, Ennismore, Ont., writes:—"Two years ago I got pneumonia and a cough followed it. I coughed continually, and no matter what I used I could not rid myself of it. In November I was sure I was getting some disease, because my throat choked me up so.

"It is St. Joseph who does these things," he teadhes; "I am like you, simply a supplant. But the response to suppliance hinges to no small extent, even in reason let alone in faith, on the merits of the supplicant. Frere Andre is unquestionably a man of saintly life. Many clever and astute persons have expected to find him a learned, shrewd man, probably sincere, but unquestionably businesslike. Not a cent in any form is exacted or accepted by Frere Andre from those seeking his offices as porter of the crypt of St. Joseph. He has worn the same habit and the same dusty clerical hat for fifteen years. He has about him a neavenly humor and serenity and the simple, gushing childlessness of those who walk with God. I think the person he most resem bles is Marshal Foch—the two men have the same translucent gray of eyes, and the same energy f speech and motion. From the pulpit in the crypt ou will hear every day a priest ead out the intentions of the oung and old-the girls seeking faithful swains and heartsick youths appealing for ease. For person who is threatened with leath by cancer,' the priest intones. 'Of a troubled wife for the conversion of a husband of intemperate habits.' 'Of a merhant who is near bankruptcy, etc. And through the long hours of the night Frere Andre is on is knees before the statue of his beloved St. Joseph, praying for these things.

Some day the church on the little wooden oratory of Frere Andre, will be the glorious basilica of St. Joseph, and the little niracle man of Mount Royal will probably be enshrined as the saint which every soul in Quebec believes him to be.
