Rosalind Still Aground.

The Rosalind is still on Cow Reef, Long Island Sound, according to a message received yesterday from Stamford, Conn. The Red Cross liner Rosalind was still fast aground on Cow Reef where she struck yesterday, while en route from St. John's to New York. Her crew is busy shifting the cargo preparatory to transferring it to a lighter which is standing by. It is expected the Rosalind will be refloated on high tide late today if her cargo has been removed. A wrecking crew from New York is in charge of the work. The hole in the ship's bottom has been stopped up, and the water pumped from beneath the boilers.

Obituary.

MR. WILLIAM FOOTE, AGED 97.

A very old resident in the Auckland district, Mr. William Foote, died on Friday at the age of 97. Mr. Foote was a native of Newfoundland and was engaged in the fishing trade till he came to New Zealand in 1867, arriving at the Manukau in his own vessel, the Clara, a brigantine of 160 tons. He worked at the Buia saw-mills for 12 months and then went to Greytown, where he erected a saw-mill and remained for 18 months. Returning to the Manukau, Mr. Foote was engaged for a few years in saw-milling, but subsequently sold out his business to Messrs. Guthrie and Larnach, in 1881, and removed to Opunahanga, where he took up land. His sons owned mills at Whakarewa, near Whangarei, in 1889. Mr. Foote married a daughter of the late Mr. John Gibbons, of Manukau, and had a family of five sons and six daughters.—Auckland (N.Z.) Weekly News, July 10th, 1919.

Personal.

Capt. T. W. Larder, of Halifax, is in the city.

Rev. P. Kelly, P.P. of Manuels, arrived here by yesterday's train.

Rev. J. Ashley, P.P. at Torbay, who had been in Canada, is on the incoming express.

Mr. T. D. Carew, of the Advocate's reportorial staff, and Miss Patricia Carew, who have been visiting friends in America, are passengers on the incoming express.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ashworth, with their son, arrived in town a few days ago on a visit to Mrs. Chas. Petrie, mother of the latter. Mr. Ashworth was formerly a writer on board H.M.S. Briton, and has since been appointed assistant to the naval secretary of the Royal Canadian Naval Service at Ottawa. It may be remembered that Mr. Ashworth took a great part in many patriotic concerts in this city, together with Pte. Gordon Green in their duet "The Rivals."

Popular N.C.O. Married.

Q.M.S. Wm. Newbury and bride returned by last night's train from their honeymoon. Sergt. Newbury is a member of "Ours" and is attached to the Militia Department. Mrs. Newbury is a daughter of Mr. J. P. Halford of this city and niece of Mrs. W. M. Halford. The ceremony was performed amongst a large number of friends at the residence of the bride's father, 129 Cabot Street, on the 17th inst. Rev. Mr. Bugden officiated. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Irene Halford, and the groom supported by his brother Chas. Newbury. After the ceremony the happy couple left by train for C. B. spending their honeymoon at various places and visiting friends, and returned from Bell Island last evening. Mrs. Newbury will be at home on Wednesday, Thursday of next week. The Telegram extends best wishes for many years wedded happiness, and bliss.

Givin's Out.

Being anxious to keep up its circulation, the Advocate yesterday started in on a new plan, and paid the news-boys four cents a dozen to give the delectable sheet away. Needless to say the public were not appreciative of the gift, and hundreds of Advocates strewed the pavement of Water Street last evening, having been thrown away by disgusted recipients. For the latest stunt to get up an opposition to the Government, this takes the bun. Next please!

"The New Ship of the Desert"

Rocks: little pebbles which work havoc with the soft surface of a motor car tire, and great boulders too large to drive over and nearly too numerous to drive about—

Ruts: negligibly small ones, and others so deep that the differential casing of the back axle frequently hits the road—

Sand: blistering hot, which scorches passengers and tires alike—

All on a road which runs through a dried-up river, elsewhere along smooth plateaus, in still other places up mountain sides so steep that one rises a foot for every three travelled—such are the obstacles to travelling in the great Gobi Desert, in northern China.

For years back through the centuries, this great glaring expanse of sand, almost devoid of vegetation and human life, has defiantly spread its waste area across the path of advancing civilization, forming a barrier penetrable only with oxen and camel.

Few have been the adventurous spirits who dared make the thousand miles journey from Peking to Irkutsk, for the tales told of the perils of the trip were too thrilling to tempt any but the most foolhardy. Wandering nomads, with their warlike appearance and peculiar customs, great herds of antelope, often a thousand in a herd, travelling in long single columns, wolves whose howling howls broke the stillness of the night, and sudden changes in temperature from the greatest heat to the most frigid cold all added color to the thirty day journey—and prevented all but the most intrepid of travellers from making it.

But, recently, the Chinese Railway Commission decided to experiment with automobiles as a swifter means of crossing this great glittering blotch of aridity. The results of the first trials are seen in the skeletons of cars left stranded along the road, sometimes reminding one of mechanical companions of the bleached human bones which dot the trail.

Difficulties without end were encountered and constant experimentation was necessary before a car was found to successfully displace the picturesque camel. It was a long and discouraging task, but when the outlook was most foreboding, a car was found capable of performing the difficult task. Now, after ages, a camel of modern standards has been found, and already it has been appropriately titled

At the Majestic.

Another packed house turned up at the Majestic Theatre last evening. Clara Kimball Young being the attraction that drew. She is seen at her best in this latest production, and her acting is well up to the standard of her pictures. Milton Sills and Jack Holt supported her in a manner that left nothing to be desired and altogether the feature was one of the most powerful screened at the Majestic for several weeks, notwithstanding the many excellent ones that have been put on in that period. The scenes are laid in South Africa, where the wild Zulus and the blazing landscape impress the spectator with the spirit that, in the story, is supposed to be forever present. "The Claw," a story of love, told in the usual inimitable Clara Kimball Young style, that must please the spectator, and consequently the full house last night was delighted. To-night the same show will be repeated.

A Little Worse Than the Child Whines.

Truly, that was an error of omission. For the one housemate has to bear the brunt of the six-year-old whine. The grown-up whiner. Not the least the day any more than the person who whines about his troubles. A growler isn't pleasant to have around, but I think I like growler better than a whiner. Men especially despise whiners, to give the male his due, they despise so much as women. It is more a feminine than a masculine fault (I rather think a growl is masculine of a whine). No woman who wants to keep her husband's love should ever permit herself a suspicion of the whole habit. It doesn't matter how much she has whined about. That won't excuse it in his eyes, or make her whining able.

Not Far From the Plaintiff to Whining.

By the way, here is a warning to the woman who specializes in a babyish manner. From the plaintiff's manner and intonation to the whine is only a very tiny step. I know a pretty young woman who married a man some ten years older than herself, whom she attracted partly by her babyish manner. She is in danger now of repelling him by the same manner—which has deteriorated into something very close to whine.

When one speaks of a whine one means primarily a tone of voice, but
