A FAMOUS ACTOR. Probably no man in America has in his time played more parts than has Mr. Robson, who, for years before he became a famous star, interpreted all the stock company roles of the standard dramas of his time, besides creating no end of new characters in the struggling American stage literature than has sprung up and developed within his time. It is a matter for humorous contemplation that Mr. Robson's dearest dream once was to become a possible rival of the elder Booth or Forrest in the field of tragedy. He essayed tragedy once, with what success dramatic annals do not record, and Mr. Robson is significantly silent upon that point. He eventu-ally concluded that by devoting his talents in a new direction he might talents in a new direction he hight find his proper line. He did so, with the result of today finding himself occupying a niche in the gallery of fame such as he did not dream of for many years after his aspirations in the tragic had been crushed. A Question to Answer.

Will the Ministerial Association Father the Views of Its Members?

The church parade matter has evidently left the Ministerial Association with a live question on its hands to thresh out. At the regular meeting daughters, Mrs. Douglas Grant, of New day was entered upon, Rev. Geo. Fowler put the question whether the Affairs. sentiments expressed by members individually, namely, that if a member did not acquiesce with the association in a certain line of reasoning he could withdraw, was the sentiment of the association as a whole?

The chairman, Rev. W. Rigsby, said that he did not think Mr. Fowler should get himself before the public a reminder of many happy days and and make the association, as it were, boon companions here, when in his take backwater upon a question of so great importance. As honorable brethren, they should stand by each other on moral questions. If this was not so, he wanted to know what was binding them.

Mr. Fowler maintained that he had a right to speak, and Mr. Talling moved that the paper of the day be proceeded with, claiming that the association would derive more benefit from it than from such a desultory conversation as they were entering

Mr. Cunningham seconded. Mr. Fowler got the floor again, and denied "point blank" that he was trying to make the association take back-

Mr. Rigsby-If you are not asking said certain things, and I want to know what the association thinks of it. Mr. Rigsby-Well, then, the association does not see fit to answer it. When there is an important paper like this, it is out of place. Mr. Pedley-It was said at a recent conference of clergymen on the par

Mr. Stuart thought the subject under discussion was of more importconstitution of the association which should be considered. He thought that the association was not a legislative body. If anybody objected to any act of the association, he should enter his dissent. Two Wheels Stolen.

Bicycle Thieves Abound on the Main Street.

The Owner of One Recovers His and Insures It-The Other Owner Rides on the Cars Now.

On Saturday night the members of On Saturday night the members of the London Operatic and Dramatic Association were practicing for Girofle-Girofia at the residence of Mrs. Barnard, Dundas street, near William. Among the singers who took part in the practice was Mr. Cecil Webbe. He left his Comet wheel in front of the house, and when he came out at 11 o'clock the Comet had disappeared, not leaving even a starry trace to designate its path, as comets usually do.

So far the wheel has not been returned. On Friday night Mr. Geo. Hall, a clerk in Williams' music store, left his wheel for a moment in the hallway of the Duffield building. When he came downstairs it was gone, and being told that the thief had gone east he borrowed a wheel and started in pursuit. He was only a block behind, and the chase was exciting. Once he got close enough to shout at the fleeing youth, but this only seemed to give the thief fresh energy, and he scorched away, leaving the owner distanced on a strange wheel. In the East End Mr. Hall lost track of the fugitive, and with a friend ne started to walk towards the G. T. he started to walk towards the G. I. R. station to see if the man had gone there to take a train. Near the station they noticed something glittering in a brush heap, and investigation disclosed the wheel half hidden in the sand and brush. Mr. Hall thinks he knows the wouldbe thief's name. He has not prosecuted, being content to recover his wheel. It is insured now.

> A FAMILY QUARREL. In Which a Montreal Man Shoots His

Brother-in-Law. Montreal, May 18 .- As a result of a family quarrel, Paul Pons, a maker of artificial flowers, emptied the contents of a five-chambered revolver into the body of his brother-in-law, Jean Baptiste Rousseau. The shooting occurred at about 11 o'clock today, and was done in self-defense, Rousseau having threatened to kill the whole family. The dead man is said to have been a dangerous Socialist and Anarchist. He came from Belgium. "O-dol" in Europe is used largely by army officers and the educated and refined world at large. Every woman of fashion and taste knows what it is, and most use it. The name, though strange to us, is as well known in large European centers as the Grand Trunk Railway is to Canada.
