Making Puff Paste.

Dear Miss Grey.—I saw in Saturday's column of a reader wanting a puff paste recipe. I am sending one that I use myself and think it very good: 1 pound flour, 1 pound butter, 1 yolk of egg; mix the flour with the yolk of an egg and enough ice-cold water to wet the flour stiff enough not to crack, roll it out and put butter all on the top, then flatten it, roll out 3 times, put in a cool place for half an hour, roll out, then put out again for and hour, roll out, then put out again for and hour, roll out, then put out again for and hour, remained in impenebeyond appeared the dim outline of the higher bluffs. The slope between river and hill however, remained in impenetrable darkness. The minds of both fugitives reverted to the same scene—the wrecked stage with its dead passengers within, its savage watchers without. She lifted her head, and the soft light was reflected on her face. "I thank God we are not over there now," she said falteringly.

"Yes," he admitted. "They will be creeping in closer; they will not wait much longer. Hard as I have worked. I can't realize yet that we are out of those toils."
