FINE CONCERT GIVEN AT BYRON SANATORIUM

London Variety Entertainers Delight Patients With an Excellent Program.

The London variety entertainers gave a very successful concert in the Amusement hall at the Byron sanatorium recently. Being the first entertainment for the patients this season, the concert was very much appreciated. Baby Peggy, Miss Marjorie Taylor, Miss Geraldine Smoothy, Miss Nora Bull and Miss Kathleen Taylor made big hits during the evening.

The excellent program was as follows: Song, I Missed My Swiss, by Kathleen Taylor; song, Honest Contuly, by Nora Bull; When You and I Were Seventeen, by Marjorie Taylor and Winnie Charlette; skip rope dance by Geraldine Smoothy; school times, by the Taylor sisters; Lancashire dance by Jack Kallahar; My Ain Folk by Laura Bull; Shin, a dance and song by four girls; Irish jig by Stan Kallaher; Jingle Bells by Baby Peggy; Barefoot Days by Kathleen Taylor and Winnie Sharrott; Where the Daisies Grow by Marjorie Taylor and Geraldine Smoothy; Irish tilt by Marjorie Taylor and Geraldine Smoothy; Down on the Farm by Kathleen Taylor and Winnie Sharrott; Alice Blue Gown by Nora Bull; Butterfly dance by Baby Peggy; Put the Cider in the Cellar and Let Nature Take Its Course by Kathleen Taylor, impersonating Lydia Pinkham; buck and wing by Jack Kallaher; horn pipe by Marjorie Taylor and Geraldine Smoothy; Don't Let Them Scrap the British Navy by Kathleen Taylor; Ship Ahoy by Marjorie Taylor.

HYDE PARK W. I.

Special to The Advertiser.

Hyde Park, Nov. 1.—The members of the Women's Institute and their friends, numbering about fifty, spent a pleasant and profitable afternoon recently at the home of Mrs. M. Skippon, Hyde Park. After singing in unison the institute ode, delegates for the annual convention, being held in London this week, were chosen as follows: Mrs. Austin Winter, Mrs. J. MacKillop, Mrs. J. W. Willoughby, and Misses Ida Routledge and Ethel Skippon.

The members voted unanimously to join the Farmers' club in their annual oyster supper, the date to be decided later. Mrs. E. Played and Mrs. R. Keays were chosen for the program committee. Arrangements were also made for the soldiers' annual thanksgiving pumpkin pie shower.

At the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Austin Winter, a jelly and jam shower will be given in aid of the Children's Memorial hospital.

The usual collection for the Soldiers' Comfort fund was taken, and amounted to $2.50. Refreshments were enjoyed at the conclusion of the program.

WOMEN PLAY LARGE PART IN POLITICS OF DOMINION

From Parliamentary Candidates To Simple Voter, They Do Their Part.

ENTER ALL FIELDS

Parties in London Discover Hidden Power in Women Workers.

The widening interest of Canadian women in politics was demonstrated in the federal election just past. From Anes MacPhail of Northeast Grey and Dr. Caroline Brown of Toronto who contested seats in the Dominion House, to the less aspiring little housewife who dropped her dishtowel on October 29, to drive voters to the polls, all were motivated by a single idea, to help "the party" into power at Ottawa.

In London the election had a noticable effect on social and club life and the same thing was undoubtedly the case in other parts of Canada. For days and even weeks before the election, there was a perceptable slowing down of "events." Organizations which usually got away to a good season's start early in the autumn, were making the excuse that it was no use opening up, until after the election. Many hostesses who thought about late October receptions and teas, decided that they might just as well be postponed until after the election.

In marked contrast to the rather tame social and club life, was the extraordinary activity which centered about the three women's political organizations of the city. The Women's Liberal club, the Women's Conservative association and the Women's Labor Party, all showed evidence of busy days and many meetings. Hyman Hall, the Conservative association rooms and the Labor temple saw them in almost as much evidence as the men.

Canvas for Votes.

They had their own district organizations, their ward conveners and sub-division workers, working always of course in harmony with the men's organizations. They went from house to house canvassing votes with the daring of veteran politicians and when election day arrived, they turned out in their cars and drove the voters to the polls, with the result that London cast a record vote this election.

And not only did these women workers come from the ranks of the typical club woman, who delights in organization and executive work. Many of them were young girls and young women fresh from the home, whose lives are mainly made up of household duties and social engagements. Women in business too, gave of their time, while the habitual club women turned out in large numbers to give executive help and inspiration.

In London, one woman, Miss Evelyn Harrison, sat among the revising officers, with the powers of a judge. Residents of East London within the electoral district of East Middlesex, wishing to have their names added to the voter's list, consulted her. Miss Harrison practices law in London and so could act in this capacity.

As Returning Officers.

Among the deputy returning officers appointed by Gordon Tennent were the following five women: Miss Christine McIntosh, Mrs. Rebecca McNevin, Mrs. Mary Nelligan, Miss Anna McInnis and Miss Elizabeth Bird, all of this city. Election day found them presiding over their particular polling booths with the keen judgment and tact necessary to such an office.

The different parties, agents found a large army of women among them, scrutinizing lists and seeing that the vote was brought out properly. Women too did their share of election work as poll clerks in many of the sub-divisions. And last of all, women as voters turned out in larger numbers than ever before.

The work of the women throughout the whole election was marked by a friendly spirit of rivalry. Personal bitterness had no place whatever in their dealings with each other, although they showed themselves to be keenly loyal to their own party. The women throughout the country seemed to say "We have entered politics to stay, but we're going to stay friends also."

Friends All The Time.

An interesting instance of this occurred during the election just past. In fact, it was the night before October 29. Mrs. Donald McLean, president of the London Liberal Women's club and one of the strongest supporters of E. S. Little was called to the telephone at her home on Piccadilly street.

Mrs. A. T. Edwards, one of the busiest campaign speakers for the Conservative party and an ardent backer of Frank White, was at the other end of the line.

"Want me to call for you tomorrow and drive you to the polls?"

Of course it was all in fun. But fun such as this on the brink of an election shows that women can be good sports as well as men.

"Delighted," replied Mrs. McLean, "I'll be ready when you call."

Mrs. Edwards tells of a similar experience during her campaign travels. Her trips up and down the London, Huron and Bruce line were numerous, as might be judged from the fact that she made 34 election speeches just prior to Oct. 29. Small wonder that hers became a familiar figure to the conductor on that line.

One day he came to her in great excitement as she was travelling north.

"Ha, ha," he said, "you're being followed. Miss Isabel Armstrong, the Liberal speaker, is up this line, too."

"He spoke jokingly, but as if we were deadly enemies," says Mrs. Edwards, in recounting the experience. "What was his surprise, then, to see Miss Armstrong board the train at Exeter, and, spying me, make straight for my seat and travel with me for the rest of the journey. We chatted and laughed together, while the conductor's eyes almost popped out of his head."

Miss Armstrong and Mrs. A. T. Edwards are but two prominent examples of women who spent a large amount of time before the election addressing meetings in the interest of their parties. Miss Constance Boulton of Toronto, who was heard in London, was also an important campaigner, speaking for the Conservative party.

All for Politics.

Miss Isabel Armstrong has given up her whole time to politics during the past two years as organizer for the women's division, national Liberal bureau, Ottawa. Two years ago she ran as the Liberal candidate in London against the late Sir Adam Beck and was defeated by him in the contest for a seat in the provincial house.

Miss Agnes McPhail, this time again the only woman in the federal house, was re-elected in Southeast Grey by a majority of 1,336, thus making Southeast Grey practically the last stronghold of the Progressive party in Ontario. Miss McPhail, although alone at Ottawa, has been by no means an insignificant figure in the house. She has made herself felt, and her re-election prophesies that women will remain in the dominion house.

Dr. Caroline Brown of Toronto ran as an independent Conservative in the Northeast Toronto riding at the past election and was defeated by the straight Conservative candidate. Hers is another instance of the active part which women are taking in politics, and what may be defeat in one instance may mean victory elsewhere.

Women have come into politics to stay. Always secretly interested in the working of the political parties, they gleaned indirectly from their husbands and men friends something of the political situation, even before the franchise was placed within their hands. Now they are eager to learn more and to take their part.

MISS AGNES MacPHAIL,
only woman member of the federal house at Ottawa, who was returned again with a large majority at the recent election, winning for the Progressive party in Southeast Grey.

CLUB NEWS

GOLDEN LINK CLUB.

A very jolly Halloween party was arranged by the members of the Golden Link club recently at the home of Mrs. S. Arbuckle, 979 Dufferin avenue. Mrs. J. Spring and S. Arbuckle, acting as judges, awarded Mrs. R. Collins first prize for the most complete costume. Mrs. Collins represented China. Mrs. D. A. Gray won second prize as a soldier; Mrs. C. Brown first for comic; Mrs. M. Robertson for most accomplished lady. Mrs. L. Kindree won the consolation prize as a tramp.

Mrs. L. Brooks represented a Halloween queen; Mrs. G. Webber, a clown; Mrs. C. Perrin, Red Riding Hood; Mrs. S. Arbuckle, a grandma; Mrs. R. Aitkins, a soldier boy; Mrs. E. Shildrick, "On the Square."

Games, music and dancing were enjoyed, Mrs. D. A. Gray winning first prize for cards; Mrs. C. Brown second, and Mrs. C. Robertson, the consolation.

The dining-room and table were effectively decorated with yellow and black. Each guest received a Halloween favor.

Mrs. R. Aitkins has invited the members to her home for Thursday afternoon of this week.

SACRED HEART MOTHERS.

A meeting of the Sacred Heart Mothers' unit is being held at the Sacred Heart school tomorrow evening. This will be a business session and a large attendance is requested.

RIVERVIEW MOTHERS' CLUB.

The regular monthly meeting of the Riverview Mothers' club is taking place tomorrow evening in the school and will take the form of a Halloween masquerade party. A splendid program of mystical illusions is being given by a number of young people. The mothers will appear in costume.

Rev. J. Bruce Hunter has been invited to speak to the club at the December sessions, when "Christ As Our Example" will be taken as the topic of discussion.

TRAFALGAR MOTHERS' CLUB.

A successful home-cooking sale was held in the kindergarten of the Trafalgar school on Saturday afternoon by the Trafalgar Mothers' club. Mrs. Fred Barned, the club president, was the general convener. The room was gay with Halloween decorations, cut-out pumpkins and ferns. The home-cooking table was looked after by Mrs. A. Mote, Mrs. G. A. Walde, Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Sussen, while the tearoom was in charge of Mrs. W. Greatorex and Mrs. Smithers. Mrs. W. Askew and Mrs. A. Hartop looked after the ice cream and candy. During the afternoon a short but delightful program was given, including solos by Mrs. J. B. Geddes, accompanied by Miss Alice Williamson, and piano numbers by Mrs. A. Chavener. Mr. Scafe was the mysterious fortune teller.

UNITED MINISTERS' WIVES.

The United Church Ministers' Wives' association is meeting in Metropolitan hall on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The meeting will be of a business nature and a full attendance has been requested.

Uncle Wiggily AND THE DOLL'S CLOTHES

By HOWARD R. JARIS.

By HOWARD R. GARIS.

Once upon a time, as I may have told you, Uncle Wiggily met in the woods the Lady Mouse Teacher from the Hollow Stump School. The Lady Mouse had a water gun which she had taken away from one of the animal boys in class, and, just as she was showing it to the rabbit gentleman, and telling him about it, a cry rang out in the woods—a cry of:

'Fire! Fire! Fire!"

"Oh, my goodness!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily when he heard this. "Suppose it should be my hollow stump bungalow. Maybe it has caught fire while I am here looking for adventures. I'm going to run!"

"Then I'll run with you!" squeaked the Lady Mouse Teacher, and run she did with the water gun. Uncle Wiggily arrived first and saw that his bungalow was on fire. The roof had caught from sparks that flew out of the chimney, when Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy made a blaze on the hearth to broil some carrot pancakes.

"Oh, my bungalow will burn, and all my little bunny children, too!" cried Mrs. Longears rushing out carrying a feather pillow, while Nurse Jane threw the clock out of the window.

"This is too bad!" shouted Uncle Wiggily. "Call the Police Dog! Telephone for the elephant fire engine!"

"Wait! Wait!" squeaked the Lady Mouse Teacher, scampering up the hill. "Here is the water gun! Fill it at the brook and squirt water on your burning bungalow, Uncle Wiggily!"

"That's just what I shall do!" answered the rabbit gentleman. And taking the water gun, he hopped to the brook. By pulling the handle of the water gun out the rabbit gentleman filled the hollow tube with water. Then he rushed back to the burning bungalow. One push on the handle and out shot a lot of water from the gun.

"Hiss! Siss!" the water fell on the burning roof, and soon the fire was out, so there was no need for the elephant to come and squirt water through his hosey nosey trunk, and no need for the Police Dog.

"Your water gun put out the fire very nicely, and I wish to thank you," said Uncle Wiggily to the Lady Mouse, most politely.

"Yes, indeed," agreed Mrs. Longears. "Come in and have a cup of clover tea." So the Lady Mouse did, and while she was sitting there, and while Uncle Wiggily was telling his wife and Nurse Jane about his adventures, all of a sudden Jingle, one of the rabbit girls, came into the room.

"Please, mother," she said, very politely.

"Yes, my dear, what is it?" asked Mrs. Longears.

"May Jangle and I go down to the brook to wash our dolls' clothes?" asked Jingle. "We couldn't go to school on account of the Lady Mouse Teacher not being there and—"

The bungalow was on fire.

"Oh, my good gracious!" squeaked the Lady Mouse. "In the excitement about the fire I forgot to open the school. But I'll have it open in time for this afternoon. Be sure to come, children!"

Jingle and Jangle said they would, and then they went down to the brook to wash their dolls' clothes, for it was Monday morning, the proper time to do washing.

"Perhaps you had better go with them, Wiggily," said his wife. "Jingle and Jangle might fall in the brook while washing the clothes."

So Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose, hopped down to the edge of the brook. In the distance he could see the little rabbit girls sozzling the tiny dresses in the water, wringing them out and hanging them on bushes to dry.

"I guess they are all right," said Then Jangle screamed, and there was hop along and have an adventure." He was just going to do this when all of a sudden he heard Jingle scream. The nJangle screamed, and there was a big splash in the water.

"Dear me! I wonder who has fallen in?" cried Uncle Wiggily as he hopped toward the stream. And what happened you shall hear in the next story; that is if the molasses cookie will kindly turn a somersault over the sugar bowl to make the vinegar laugh.

WEDDINGS

HICKS—NORMAN.

Wallaceburg, Nov. 2.—One of the prettiest of autumn weddings took place on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Norman, when their only daughter, Helen Bernice, became the bride of Dr. Elgin Hicks, son of Dr. and Mrs. George Hicks of Watford. Promptly at 6 o'clock, the bride entered the drawing-room on her father's arm, to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Elsie Shaw on the piano, with Miss Bessie Power playing a violin obligato.

The young bride looked lovely in her wedding gown of shell pink charmeuse, veiled with pale pink georgette, her wedding veil held in place on her pretty dark hair by a bandeau of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of pink Ophella roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Susie Taylor attended as bridesmaid and wore a gown of shaded pink georgette with trimmings of panne velvet and metal roses, a rich bandeau in her hair, and carried a bouquet of Butterfly roses. Mr. A. M. Lebel officiated as best man.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. M. C. Tait of Glencoe, assisted by the Rev. J. T. Johnson of Trinity United church, Wallaceburg, in the presence of about sixty guests.

During the signing of the register, Miss eBssie Power sang O Perfect Love.

After the ceremony a dainty buffet luncheon was served by the Misses Hettie McVean, Marion Vair, Blanche Fox, Myrtle Reynolds, Florence Vair and Lilian Fairbanks. The Rev. M. C. Tait toasted the bride, which brought a bright little response from the groom. Rev. Mr. Johnson toasted the bridesmaid and was responded to by Mr. A. M. Lebel. Mr. W. Hoskin and Mr. Charles Sauvey toasted the bride's father and mother respectively.

Mrs. George Norman, the bride's mother, wore a beautiful gown of olive green cut velvet with ostrich trimmings, and the groom's mother looked well in an autumn brown cut velvet with touches of flame velvet, both ladies carrying crimson roses. Little Miss Winifred Howard, in a sweet frock of white charmeuse satin, ostrich trimmed, admitted the guests. The house was a bower of beauty with its decorations of ferns, pink roses and shaggy 'mums arranged most artistically by Mr. Rollie Dulong. The bride's table looked lovely with its Venetian embroidered cloth and centered by a silver basket filled with pink roses and lighted by many candles in silver candlesticks.

The happy young couple left later in the evening on a short wedding trip, the bride travelling in a cinnamon brown Romaine, coat trimmed with stone marten, and small black velvet hat. On their return, Dr. and Mrs. Hicks will reside in town, where the groom conducts a successful dentistry practice.

The bride is one of the most popular young ladies in the Wallaceburg younger set, which is attracted by the large number of beautiful and costly presents which were showered upon her.

The out-of-town guests were Dr. and Mrs. George Hicks and daughter Marjorie of Watford; Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Hicks of Chatham; Thomas Hockin and Miss McCallum of Dutton; Misses Marion and Florence Vair, Blanche Fox, St. Thomas; Miss Hettie McVean, Dresden, and Mr. Lloyd Smith, Niagara Falls.

CLARKE—DETREECH.

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Nov. 2.—The marriage of Miss Josephine Detreech, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Detreech of Sarnia, and Mr. Horace Clarke, Detroit, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Clarke, city, was solemnized on Wednesday at St. Bridget's church, Detroit. The Rev. Mr. Halfpenny officiated.

After a brief motor trip, the young couple will make their home in Detroit.

SHIELDS—GRAINGER.

Wallaceburg, Nov. 2.—Word has been received of the marriage, which has taken place at St. Mary's Anglican church, Walkerville, between Leda M., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Grainger of Wallaceburg, and Mr. John A. Shields of Detroit; formerly of Windsor.

EATON—KEYS.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in this city recently, when Rev. T. J. Charlton united in marriage Miss Pearl Keys, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Keys, Moir street, and Mr. Alfred Eaton, also of London.

The bride was lovely in a gown of Asia blue. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Hazel Keys, gowned in pansy crepe, while Mr. William Springett attended the groom.

Following the service a dainty luncheon was served at the bride's home, where the tables were prettily decorated with blue and white streamers. The guests numbered about 30. Mr. and Mrs. Eaton will reside in this city.

REED—WESTMAN.

A pretty autumn house wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Westman, Queen's place, on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when their daughter, Ruby Ellen, became the bride of Mr. Wilmer Arthur Reed of Detroit, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Reed of this city.

Into the charmingly decorated room, arranged with clusters of large yellow chrysanthemums, came the bride on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. The wedding music was played by Miss L. Reed, sister of the bridegroom, and Rev. A. E. M. Thomson, pastor of Calvary United church, performed the marriage service.

The charming young bride was smartly gowned in pencil blue satin-back crepe and cut velvet and wore a corsage bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony a dainty buffet luncheon was served by four girl friends of the bride, the Misses Ida Parkinson, Reta Barlow, Myrtle Janney and Bernice Appleton. Later in the afternoon Mr and Mrs Reed left for their new home in Detroit. The bride donned a lovely fur wrap and chic purple velvet hat for travelling.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs George Westman of Granton, grandparents of the bride on her father's side and Mr. William Capling of Millverton, grandfather of the bride on her mother's side. All are over 80 years of age and in the best of health.

A fur coat for the little girl will wear and wear, and costs no more than a cloth coat. $25 will buy one. See them at the Royal Millinery & Fur Co. sale now going on.—Advt. b

Hyde Park, Nov. 1.—A jolly time was spent Wednesday evening when the young people of Hyde Park and vicinity, together with a few intimate friends from London, held a Halloween masquerade party in the community hall. Dancing was indulged in until midnight, and was followed by a delicious supper. Miss Rose McDowell was charmingly dressed in a pierrot costume, and captured the first prize, a string of pearls. Miss Mae E. Winter was a winsome gypsy girl, and winner of the second prize, a gold bracket set with brilliants, while Mr. Albert Taylor won the consolation prize. Music was provided by the Hyde Park orchestra.

YOUNG WOMEN'S SOCIETY.

Wallaceburg, Nov. 1.—The Young Women's Missionary society of the Knox Presbyterian church held a 15-cent tea in the parlors of the church on Thursday evening. It was largely attended. The rooms were prettily decorated with Halloween decorations. The conveners were Mrs. Wilfred Shaw and Mrs. A. Bowen, and $12 were realized, which will be devoted to the expense fund. Miss Margaret Logan is the president of this energetic society.
