Latest Advice—Talks With the Ex-Queen and the Queen Dowager.

How Matters Looked—U. S. Correspondent's Report on an Annexation Sentiment.

HONOLULU, March 11.—In an interview with Minister Stevens, on the question whether he thought Queen Liliuokalani should receive a pension or a certain sum in full, he thought that if $250,000 were appropriated as a lump sum it would be divided between the deposed queen and princess.

The government of the islands under annexation, he thought, as does President Dale, that the manner in which Louisiana was governed after its acquisition was best, but that the District of Columbia mode, with a board of commissioners, one of whom is to be nominally governor, would solve many local problems.

The United States, he contended, was disposed to be liberal in the matter of dealing with the Hawaiian people, and while the residents were willing to concede many points so that they secured annexation, the government would be turned into a homestead for the benefit of the Hawaiians under such restrictions that they would not be able to dispose of them in a trifling manner, and all taxes would be reduced to a nominal sum from the present rate.

The President and entire cabinet agreed that the power exists to issue bonds for the purpose of strengthening the treasury, and that this may be considered a necessary and appropriate measure.
