Mr. O. B. Sheppard, who spoke while the returns were still incomplete, said that the Conservatives were probably victorious. They at any rate deserved victory, for the Conservatives of the riding had worked as one man. He was confident that the complete returns would confirm the report of Mr. Maclean's election.

Secretary Summerhayes of the East York Conservative Association thanked those who had worked so hard in the cause, especially mentioning Mr. Thomas Mitchell, who acted with him. He said that the Reform party in East York was completely eclipsed.

Mr. Thomas Mitchell was then heard. He would say no hard word against Mr. Leslie, whom he had known as a personal friend for many years. Mr. Leslie, however, was not with the right party and therefore he congratulated the electors on their choice.

The same could not be said of the opposing party. Proofs had been obtained of various cases of personation by Reformers, and mere serious offences were known to have been committed. The Conservatives had fought on the N.P. and the patriotic idea and the result had vindicated the popularity of that platform. He would say nothing against Mr. Leslie. Dr. Nesbitt delivered an earnest address. As a man who believed in Canada he gloried in the redemption of East York. He told of the inconsistency of the Reformers' platform and their chameleon-like policy.

doctor thanked the Conservatives for their support.

Mr. William Milliken, the experienced president of the East York Liberal-Conservative Association, then declared himself to be the proudest man in East York. He deemed it a great honor to be president of the association at the time when the riding was won from the opposing party. Mr. James Baird then read the latest reports, showing that Mr. Maclean would have a majority of from 200 to 300. Tremendous applause greeted the announcement, and the grandest victories ever won in Canada had been achieved by the hard work and united efforts of the Conservatives of East York.

Expressing Satisfaction.

As the incoming returns began to indicate a Conservative victory the supporters of Mr. Maclean congregated in The World editorial room. By 7 o'clock, when it was practically certain that Mr. Maclean was the choice of the electors, about 300 enthusiastic Conservatives had crowded into the office. An informal meeting was held and a number of prominent citizens addressed the assemblage.

Sir William asserted that public opinion was rapidly maturing in favor of a bi-metallic coinage. The deputation, he said, merely asked the Government to join in the proposed conference with America. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Goschen, requested Lord Salisbury to reply in behalf of the Government.
