

JOHNSTON'S SWEET BLACK CAP RASPBERRY.

OHIO.—Originated in southern Ohio, by Geo. L. Miller. It is a seedling of the Kentucky. The plant is wonderfully vigorous, and about twice as prolific as its parent. This is its record at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment

Station, where it has fruited several years. Blossom pistillate. The originator writes that it is much more productive than Kentucky, bright red, and less inclined to show bruises. It yields one or two pickings after Ken-
