CHRISTMAS IN TORONTO.

The celebration of the great feast The celebration of the great feast of the Nativity was observed throughout Catholic Canada with undiminished solemnity. From all parts of the Dominion our exchanges bring us long reports of Christmas observance. In Ontario the attendance at the morning masses were everywhere large. In Toronto the Cathedral and parish churches were crowded with worshippers from early morning till after the last Mass of the day had after the last Mass of the day had been said and again in the evening. His Grace Archbishop O'Con-nor celebrated the High Mass at St. Michael's Linu the two preced-ing Masses. The sermons upon the jow and solemnity of the feast, and the music in all the churches were noteworthy.

London, Dec. 31, 1 a. m. — It is now possible to sum up the full ex-tent of the blow which Dewet in-flicted at Tweetfontein on Christ-lone so mucy good work.

GOD AND THE CONSCIENCE. Conscience considered as a moral sense, an intellectual sentiment, is sense, an intellectual sentiment, is a sense of admiration and disgust, of approbation and blame; but it is something more than a moral sense. It is always what the sense of the beautiful is only in certain cases — it is always emotional.

If, as is the case, we feel responsibility, are ashamed, are frightened, at transgressing the voice of conscience. This implies that there is One to Whom we are responsible, before Whom we are the week and the week whom we have the week are the week are the week as well as the week are the week as well as the week are the week are the week as well as the week as well as the week are the week as well as the week are the week as well as the week as well as the week as well as well as the week as well as wel ashamed, and Whose claims upon us we fear. To a mind carefully formed upon the basis of its natural conscience, the world, both of nature and of man does but give hack a reflec-tion of those truths about the One Living God, which have been familiar to it from childhood. Good and evil meet us daily as we pass through life and there are those who think it philosophical to act towards the manifestations of each with some sort of impartiality, as if evil had as much right to be there as good, or even a better, as having more striking triumphs and a broader jurisdiction. And because the course of things is determined by fived laws that consider that by fixed laws, they consider that those laws preclude the present agency of the Creator in the carrying out of particular issues. It is otherwise with the theology of a religious imagination. It has a liverage of the control of the carrying out of particular issues. ing hold on truths which are really to be found in the world, though to be found in the world, though they are not upon the surface. It is able to pronounce by anticipation what it takes a long argument to prove — that good is the rule and evil the exception. It is able to assume that uniform as are the laws of nature; they are consistent with a particular Pro-vidence. It interprets what it sees around it by this previous in-ward teaching, as the true key of that maze of vast complicated dis-orders; and thus it gains a more consistent and luminous vision of consistent and luminous vision of God from the most unpromising materials. Thus conscience is a connecting principle between the creature and his Creator; and the firmest hold of theological truths is gained by habits of personal religion. When men begin all their works with the thought of God, acting for His sake and to fulfill which live in their imagination, varied and unearthly as those truths may be. works with the thought of God, acting for His sake, and to sussill His will; when they ask the blessing on themselves and their life; pray to Him for the objects they desire, and see Him in the event, whether it be according to their prayers or not, they will find everything that happens tend to confirm them in the truths about Him which live in their imagination.

READING ALOUD.

The season of the shortest days and the longest evenings has come, and the leisure hours which are alwavs given so largely to outdoor recreation during the summer will now be devoted to indoor read-

The occasion seems a fitting one to say a word on behalf of a practice never so popular as it ought to be, and perhaps somewhat less followed now than in former times

- the practice of tending aloud.
The habit, like anercy, blesses him that gives and him that takes. To read to one's self is often to be satisfied with a knowledge of words as they appear to the eye. To read aloud in to account also a knowledge of words. as they appear to the eye. To read aloud is to acquire also a knowledge of words as they sound. There is nothing which will so surely correct mispronunciation. Nearly every reader will recall words which he has long known by sight, but with which he has never taken the trouble to acquire a speaking acquaintance. While he reads only to himself he can slur them over or over them some makeshift pro-nunciation, which serves to identi-fy them and sayes the trouble of consulting the dictionary. But let him adopt the practice of reading aloud, and sooner or later some of these old verbal acquaintances will meet him face to face, to reproach him with his neglect and shame him with his ignorance of their names.

In the cultivation of the voice lies a further recommendation. The practice of reading aloud brings increased vocal power and tends to establish he habit of an agreeable inflection and a distinct enunci-

Lastly, it makes the other members of the family partners in the pleasure and mental stimulus. It s not alone the reader who is en riched. The tired mother, busy riched. The tired mother, busy with her mending, is borne into far, strange lands. The stirring scenes of history or fiction march before her, and while she works she is also uplifted and refreshed.

It is one of those games at which "any number can play." and in which the pleasure increases as the circle of players widens .- The Companion.

That Catholic Forestry is a popular Catholic organization of the Province, and particularly of Tonto, was demonstrated on Thursday evening last at the annual election of officers of St. Joseph Court No. 370. This annual elec-tion is apparently set apart for the reunion of the members and their friends throughout the city and the Province, and Thursday even-ing was no exception to the rule. Representatives from the different courts in the city and representa-tive deputys from outside, were present in large numbers. The an-nouncement of the election, by ac-nouncement of the election, by ac-clamation, of the ever-popular L. V. McBrady to the highest posi-tion in the gift of the members, was the signal for a burst of ap-plause and enthusiasm, such as is rarely witnessed within the walls of a fraternal organization. When the excitement had subsided Depu-ty High Chief Banger Mandley ty High Chief Ranger Neanden, who was in the chair, called upon the C. R. elect to address the members. Bro. McBrady, in his usual eloquent manner (for which he has a Dominion reputation), thanked the members for the confidence they had placed in him, and promised that the interests of the or-ganization would always be upper-most in his mind, and though he felt sure the coming year would be a very besy one for a number of them, he would endeavor to make it a successful one for the Order.

Short iddresses were also given by Rev. Father Finnegan, Deputy High C. R. Neander. Past Chief
Ranger C. J. McCahe and others. The election of Bro. McBrady as Chief Ranger augurs well for the success of the Order. Few Catholic men are as throughout the Province of On-tario as he. The brilliant success he has achieved in his profession ne has achieved in his profession easily preludes for him a most distinguished career. He has earned a reputation as an orator that has placed him in the front ranks, and his friends auticipate his one day occupying a prominent position among the legislators of the coun-try. Polished, sauve, affable, concteous in a marked degree, he al-ways accessible to his friends, and no man is better pleased to fight the battles of his co-religionists than he.

The Catholic Order of Foresters

The Catholic Order of Foresters in general, and St. Joseph's Court particularly, his every reason to be proud of Chief Ranger McBrady. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: L. V. McBrady, C. R. (acclamation); J. J. Regan, V. C. R.; P. J. Murphy, Recording Secretary; Wm. Mitchell, Financial Secretary; W. F. Brooks, Treasurer; Dr. P. J. Brown, Court Physician, Trustees, John Culleton, John Erz, James O'Dea.
