

"We cleared an area some 200 metres long to receive the drop," radios the commander of research station, "and you dropped them in area one-tenth the size. The fir-tree landed almost spot-on near the main hut. The cakes are okay. Thanks!"

Our aircraft turns away and heads back to Moscow.

Izvestiya
3 January 1988
Page 6 (full text)

More than two billion industrial enterprises under its jurisdiction will be up holding the job of the their employees. However, the City Council Executive Committee managed to find the people who could panels, aligned have arisen with the involvement of a wide variety agencies, by spending in a co-ordinated way to target the different housing projects.

"We believe that the responsibility should be divided equally between the construction people and the clients," says V. Radach, Chairman of the City Council Executive Committee. "After all, so of an only the builders are blamed for missed completion deadlines. This way the clients never take responsibility for anything. The city council with the help of its deputies was able to convince the business community of the necessity of helping one another. It was worked for several years. This is Sverdlov looked for a way to help construction where the builders were being especially diligent entire city came to their assistance. They are the victory over the crisis."

Sverdlovskaya Pravda
27 January 1988
Page 1 (full text)