THE FETISH OF CHEAPNESS.

(By Vincent Basevi.) Among a certain school of politicians and economists, an idea would seem to prevail that the aim and object of any nation should be to secure for its people the requisites of life at the lowest possible cash value. Food should be cheap, clothes should be cheap, and one Toronto newspaper which suffers from this obsession, even want so far as to get economic theories cheap, for they recently secured their fiscal opinions from a boy scout. ANNEXING VACANT LAND.

It is declared by some that the vacant lands in North Toronto are a reason not to proceed with annexation to the city, as they come into competition with vacant lands in the city. This view can only be advanced by real estate speculators in the suburps. If there are vacant lands in North Toronto, they will compete much more keenly while they remain outside the oncerning the interpretation of Scriptist than if they were included and had to pay city taxes. BEATTIE MAY RETIRE

Major of London Has Expressed Himself as Tired of Public Life.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(Special.)—The Conservatives will meet Saturday to decide on a candidate for the federal elections. Major Beattle has repeated ly expressed his opinion that he did not care to run again, so his name may not go before the members of the association. Billy Gray is the popular choice, and it would be like Major Beattle to retire at this time and give Billy his long-delayed chance of representing this city. Billy Gray has made money in business and mining recently and is qualified to fight an election here. The major rather feels out of the swim in a public ownership town such as this.

The Debats regards the treaty as a praiseworthy effort to reduce the chances of war, tho, as it understands difficulties will be a powerful brake on dangerous national passions, but the real efficacy of the commission, the paper thinks, will depend vastly upon the merits of the men composing it.

Application Was Enlarged.

By consent of both parties, the application for an injunction made by the Toronto and Niagara Power Company against the Town of North To-ronto was enlarged for a week. The first injunction expired to-day, and as no new order has been made, either party is now at liberty to put up all the poles they wish as far as the courts are concerned.
