

BROWNS

The Autumn shade to be strictly correct should be Brown or have a Brown tint in it. It will never become a common shade by reason of the fact that it is a hard shade to get in fast colors. Among the hundreds of splendid Overcoats in our immense showing for this Fall and Winter we have introduced a nice sprinkling of very handsome Brown, Diagonal Saxony Wove Coats. They are tailored for men of good taste who want a really smart Coat and something out of the ordinary, price 28.00 each, other lines have touches of Brown worked into beautiful designs, moderately priced from 10.00 to 25.00.

Teacher Cured of Barber's Itch

Tells of Cures Among His Pupils That Were Remarkable

Raw, Inflamed, Itching Skin is Soothed and Healed by Dr. Chase's Ointment

Barber's Itch is a form of Ringworm, which, when once started, is most annoying and unsightly, and most difficult to cure. Barbers often refuse to shave anyone having this disease, for fear of passing it on to other customers.

But you can cure Barber's Itch and keep the skin wonderfully soft and healthy by applying Dr. Chase's Ointment. Just read what this teacher has to say about the healing power of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Chas. C. Poirier, Upper Carleton, N.B., writes: "Two years ago, while teaching at Shipigan I caught Barber's Itch. A friend told me Dr. Chase's Ointment would cure me, as it had him. When I went for a box I thought it dear, but when I found how good it was I thought it cheap. The ointment not only cured me, but it cured two of my pupils, and this too quickly to be believed. One of them, a girl, had a running sore on the chin, which the doctor tried in vain to cure. The other had a sore on the ear; water running out of it all the time. I can certify to the cure of these cases."

Government Dredge Lost

B., Oct. 5.—Piled up on the rocks near Misco Cove, five miles above this harbor, the government dredge New Brunswick, which was abandoned by three tugs in the Bay of Fundy during a gale yesterday, was found to-day, her hull a total wreck. It is believed her engine can be saved, but the huge boilers have pushed their way thru her bottom, completely ruining the hull. Two scows which parted hawsers before the dredge was abandoned, have not been seen since and they have either gone to the bottom or are drifting in the bay, a menace to navigation.

HAMILTON HAPPENINGS

MEDICAL INSPECTION IN HAMILTON SCHOOLS

Cost of $2500 Makes Some Trustees Hesitate—Theft Mystery Cleared Up.

HAMILTON, Oct. 5.—(Special).—The question of instituting a medical inspection department in the city schools was debated at some length to-night by the internal management committee of the board of education. The committee was introduced by Trustee Watkins' presentation of the report of the sub-committee appointed some time ago to go into the matter, and the report was read and the committee was appointed, and that a dental clinic also be made a part of the system.

The total cost would be $2500 a year, several of the members of the committee was too much to spend for such a purpose, and it was suggested that the matter be over to the trustees to consider.

Time to Consider. Dr. McGillivray concurred in this, on the ground that while the sub-committee had obtained considerable information on the subject, other members evidently were not any too well informed. The report will be presented again at a later meeting, while in the meantime the members of the committee will be allowed the opportunity to make up their minds as to whether a city dental clinic should be established at 20 cents a year for the purpose of safeguarding the health of each pupil in the public schools.

Cohen was arrested this morning, pleaded for suspension of sentence and a fine of $100. The magistrate indicated that if proper sureties were given for the lad's good behavior he would be released in the manner suggested by his lawyer. Cohen's family is highly respected here, and this is the first trouble he has ever been in.

RUSSELL AND THE PINKERTONS

MONTREAL, Oct. 5.—Pinkerton detectives were much in evidence at to-day's session of the Russell conspiracy case trial. The entire afternoon was taken up with the testimony of Allan Pinkerton himself, Supt. Dougherty, head of the Pinkerton New York office during the time in which the alleged conspiracy against Russell was being planned, and Mr. McNamara, Montreal manager.

Most of the evidence consisted in straight denials of the charges of conspiracy. All the Pinkerton men denied any knowledge of any conspiracy and the only other feature was Mr. Dougherty's description of the "Plaza" conference, to which frequent reference has been made during the trial.

Sent male to-morrow at Bell Place Co. Jessie Alexander Recital, Wednesday, Oct. 11.

HOW SENATORS WIN
Stephenson of Wisconsin Spent Over One Hundred Thousand Dollars.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 5.—When United States Senator Isaac Stephenson found that his expenses for nomination at the primaries in 1908 were running so high that the item for beer and cigars alone amounted to $80,000, and the aggregate was fast approaching the final total of $107,000, he remonstrated and told his campaign managers: "I want to win the nomination, but I don't want to buy it."

This was part of the testimony given to-day before the United States Senate committee which is investigating charges that bribery and corruption contributed to Senator Stephenson's election.

In reply to his complaint, Senator Stephenson was told that the three other Republican candidates for nomination—former Congressman Samuel A. Cook, who spent $42,000, former State Senator William H. Hutton, who spent $50,000, and Francis E. McGovern, now governor of Wisconsin, who spent $1,000—were making a hard fight, their expenses finally aggregating $23,248.

The decision of the U. S. Navy Department to discontinue the use of hardtack in the navy and introduce in its stead bread containing butter and sugar was perhaps read by nobody with greater interest than by Jonathan H. Butterick, the eighty-year-old hardtack baker of New Bedford, Mass., who since the Boston Globe supplied hardtack to the whaling fleet with the staff of life.

The most essential thing in baking hardtack, according to an interview with Mr. Butterick, is to drive every particle of moisture from it. This, he thinks, was only possible in the old wood heated ovens, and he has therefore scarcely more regard for the hardtack of to-day than for the new navy recipe.

The bread baked by Mr. Butterick in the old days, he maintains, was almost indestructible. Time could not wither or stale it if properly stored.

"I once baked some bread that was put in casks and was aboard a vessel for eight years. After the ship came home I gave a piece of hardtack to Edward Mott Robinson, the father of Henry Green, and could not convince him it was not fresh baked," he said.

"And that is not the best story I can tell. I baked some bread that went out on the barque Desdemona. When the vessel returned she was laid up in the dock at the foot of North-street. A cask of bread was left in the hold. The barque inclosed at the dock for many years and was eventually sold.

"Fifteen years after that bread was baked the cask was opened. The bread was perfectly good and was placed aboard a whaler bound for Hudson Bay, where it was finally eaten. The flour of those days was particularly good, but it was the oven that was responsible for the quality of the bread. The modern oven cannot produce it."

The Hooeoe of "1812." An Englishman with a sense of humor has reached Gotham, and he is regarded as such a rare one that they want to keep him as long as they can. When he registers the clerk assigned him to room 1812.

"O, I say, is there any method in your handling me that number?" he demanded. "That's not popular with Britisheers, you know."

He smiled and it dawned upon the clerk that there was a war called by that date. Later on the manager, passing by the open door of 1812, found the walls of the room fairly swathed with British flags.

"Must do something to ward off what you call the hoodoo," was the visitor's comment.
