

IN CONCLUSION,

It ought to be an unnecessary duty for this Committee to urge on Members of the Church of God, a spirit of liberality in aiding a cause, which tends to the good of our fallen man and to the Glory of our common Lord, but they are constrained to say, that though an advance has been made in the sum received towards the funds of this Society, it can hardly be said that we have all done our duty in this respect.

Let us hope however, that the increase of the present year, will be the precursor of a steady advance, and as our members grow in grace, and in the appreciation of the high and holy privileges which they enjoy, they will abound yet more and more in every good word and work to the praise and glory of God.
