ever rightfully earned. Tommy is a Ganadian of German parentage, but re-presents America. The year brought a few other fighters to the front, but they have not, as yet, reached the topmost rung of the puglils-lic ladder of fame. These were: Stanley Kétchell, who twice defeated that sup-presely invincible middleweight, Joe Thomas; Bill Papke, the Spring Valley Riddle, who went thru the year with a Ji dean record of victories, and "Packey" McFarland, the Chicago lightweight, who at present is within reaching distance of the championship title of that division. Packey's record does not show a defeat. Nethell recently declared he could fight at 145 pounds, which leaves him out of the middle running. Going back to the heavies, of which Burns is boss, we must not overlook the clever colored man. Jack Johnson, who, it is thought, will take Burns' measure should they meet. Tommy and Jack so far outclass the other men in their division that their names should not appear in the same category. The best of the outsiders, un-doubtedly, is Al Kaufman. In the middleweight class we still have Tommy Ryan, Bill Papke, Hugo Kelly, and Sam Langford as the best. Sam ap-pears the most formidable. There are cuite a number of welters, but we have had no simon pure champion since Joe Gans, after twice beating Champion Miks of that class. Ketchell, if he can fight at the weight, and Mike Sullivan appear in the lightweight class we still take in the lightweight class we still take

During the year the props were knocked from under the game in Davesport, Ia. and in the States of Indiana and Wash-ington. But it secured a foothold in sec-real parts of Connecticut and in Boston. Philadelphia is still doing business at the old stand, Baltimore slips one in now and then, and Ohio in some towns when the police are asleep. Milwaukee is the tanner city in the middle west. Death of Tack Hendry. William Hendry, one of the best-known lacrosse players of Montreal, well known in Montreal, in Toronto and in Brantford, died in the Homeopathic Hospital Thurs-day night of typhoid. Tho not an active player for a couple of years back, Tack, as his friends familiarly called him, was one of the best of home men. His experi-ence on the Shamrock team made him a player much sought after. He played with the champions in 1898 and 1899. Later he went to Nationals, and as about that time this western teams were searching after players, he joined the Brantfords, and in 1908-4 played against the Sham-rocks for the Minto Cup. After that he played with Montreal for a season, but had already began to grow stout, and was considerably under his form as a home man.

Hawdon on the Type and the fact is typical of his last early victories. As the reports said, Hawdon was a mere baby in Hanlan's hands. There was betting in those days, boat racing even being a better vehicle than even horse racing. In this match the odds were 6 to 4 on Hanlan, with few takers. On starting Hawdon was away first, on starting Hawdon was away nrst, showing half a length in front, but in two sweeps of the sculls Hanlan was level, tho only pulling 40 strokes to the Englishman's 42. Hanlan seeing he would be an easy winner eased up. Hawdon spurted and tried to bring about a foul, but Ned soon pulled away in beautiful style. Now on board the official steamer 10 to 1 was offered, with World subscribers in Toronto Junc register com-
