

the cases of all applicants, and two other directors were appointed for the afternoon.

Wherever there was any one connected with the family capable of working at the stone shed, he was given an order to go there and particular enquiry was made by the visitor into the circumstances of the applicant, and relief was granted without reference to creed or colour.

DONATIONS OF CLOTHING

were acknowledged in the Press upon their receipt, and were distributed to the most needy cases. These very serviceable additions to the stores of the Directors relieved many cases of destitution, among women and children.
