HE WAS TERROR TO BANK ROBBERS

Sketch of Pinkerton, Noted
Detective, Dead in Los Angeles.

One of the first noted American criminologists to advocate and practice humanitarian methods in dealing with felons, William Allan Pinkerton, head of the Pinkerton National Detective Agency, was credited with having reformed more safe blowers and bank thieves than any other man in the country. Pinkerton died in Los Angeles yesterday, as announced in The Times yesterday.

Primarily a thief-taker, Mr. Pinkerton spent more than 50 years of his life running down criminals of all classes, yet he always stood ready to proffer a helping hand to the unfortunate malefactor whose repentance was genuine and whose desire to reform was sincere.

Knowing criminals and their methods, their weaknesses and their human side as perhaps, no other man of his time had known them, Pinkerton never sympathized with the theorist and the sentimentalist who sought to reform desperate, hunted men by kind words, but he did know that a little help and a little encouragement at the right time and in the right place were frequently more effective than imprisonment. Scores of former criminals scattered over the country are now living honest and useful lives as a result of the reform measures practiced by the arch enemy of their criminal days.

William Allan Pinkerton and his brother, Robert A. succeeded to the business of their father, Allan Pinkerton, when the latter died in 1884 after founding the detective agency which bears his name. This was before the powerful armor-plated vaults, electrically operated were in their hey-day. Determined to specialize in bank protection, William Pinkerton enlisted the support of prominent financial institutions of the country and then made a detailed study of the men who were preying upon them. He warned noted bank robbers as they were arrested.

"You leave my people alone and I'll leave you alone. If you don't I'll follow you to the end of the earth."

This warning made a deep impression upon many of the most dangerous thieves, and after a few convictions had been obtained there was a noticeable decrease in the number of bank robberies. Some scoffed at the big detective's warning but most of them were caught in time.

William A. Pinkerton was born in Dundee, Illinois, on April 7, 1846. He was educated in public and private schools and when ready for college entered Notre Dame University. At the age of 20 he married Margaret S. Ashling of Adrian, Michigan, who died in 1896. Two daughters, Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins and Mrs. William C. Fullman were born to them.

Mr. Pinkerton made his home in Chicago.

Victor Milner, photographing the

Fred Niblo production, "Thy Name is Woman," has been engaged in his present line of work for more than 10 years.

He started years ago as a news photographer and ended the globe-trotting places that had never seen a motion picture camera before. Once he made a round-the-world tour with the White Sox baseball team of Chicago, getting photographs of the players in action in Japan, China, England, France and Spain.

Mr. Milner was associated with Rex Ingram on the filming of "Scars-mouche."

A TRUE STORY.

A millionaire's son makes good in the movies. Malcolm McGregor comes of a millionaire family, holder of the Scottish crests of the McGregors, but he came to Hollywood with only a few hundred dollars of his own savings. He didn't use his family tree by which to climb. No one knew anything about it. He worked as an extra for a year, lived in a hall room and made the rounds of the studios like the other beginners. Finally he landed a small part in Rex Ingram's "The Prisoner of Zenda," and registered instantly. Metro, upon the advice of Ingram, put him under contract for three years. He now is building a home in Beverly Hills, and his income is a big one, but he earns it all himself.

An Illinois farmer has a concrete granary that is filled by a motor driven elevator.
