YACHTS IN WINTER QUARTERS.

Marble Cove is Accommodating Some of the R. K. Y. C.'s Beauties.

Marble Cove, Indiantown, that haven of all sorts of craft, is about filled up for the winter, though it has yet to make room for a few of the river tow-boats, which are still plodding ahead of wide and lengthy timber rafts.

Among the vessels of various types already laid up in this shelter spot is the flagship of the Royal Kennebec yachtsman, the Scionda. She has been partially dismantled and looks more like a cabin than a boat. A handsome steam yacht, Her yellow funnel, which shows signs of wear, is lying on the wharf alongside, as is also some of her interior works. These will be repaired.

The trim schooner-yacht Pahlinda (Oull frog), owned by W. Malcolm Mackay, is also battered down with canvas, and snugly tucked away for the snowy season. The staunch old Windward is lying further up in the cove, just ahead of the steamyacht Dream. R. C. Ekin's new steam cruiser Hudson is all fixed up for winter, as well as half a dozen smaller steam craft and many sailing boats. Beside these pleasure yachts the tugboat Maggie M., is lying at the Rowan shed undergoing extensive repairs.

To a second one, that of breaking out of the Water street lockup on July last, he declared that the doors were open and he walked out. It was shown, however, that he had tampered with the lock and he was remanded.

Frank McDermott found drunk on Britannia street was given two months. McDermott has not been supporting his wife and family as he should but has been spending his money as fast as he earned it. He is to be remanded to the Grand Union on Sundays and always come back more or less intoxicated.

Inspector Jones, who was present picked up his ears at this statement but could elicit no other facts in connection with the supposed sale. His honor told him he had better have gone to church and as he thought there was little likelihood of reform gave him the hard labor.

TUG DANIEL LAUNCHED.

New Addition to the Tapley Fleet

't the Ways Without a Hitch

A large number of spectators, of whom some were ladies, witnessed this morning the launching of Tapley Bros' new tugboat Daniel at Hilgard's shipyard. The launching took place just before high water and was carried out without mishap.

About eleven o'clock the cleats which held the tug fast on the launching ways were loosened and immediately the tug began to descend. As soon as the sliders upon which she rested came in contact with the greased portion of the ways, the motion of descent increased and the tug slipped into the water with a most graceful dip.

The tug is to be known as the Daniel, after one of her co-owners, Capt. Daniel Tapley. She will be employed on the river in the towing of logs. Her length is fifty-four feet over all, her beam fifteen feet and her hold five feet. Her draught, when the engine and other appliances are installed, will be something over four feet. Her material is Bay Shore spruce, birch and oak. Daniel McLaughlin, the well known shipbuilding contractor constructed the tug.

DREDGE DREDGING AT ISLAND.

Dredge New Dominion Finished Dredging On Saturday.

On Saturday the dredge New Dominion finished digging an approach to the wharf at Partridge Island and it is now possible for a vessel of light draught, say about seven feet, to unload or ship a cargo alongside the mooring place.

The work has taken over a month and though the job was not one of very extensive proportions it was a considerable one. The tug Captain of the Tapley fleet, Indiantown, was in attendance and working in conjunction with the digging apparatus, was constantly on the hustle.

In the past all the freight for the island had to be lighted, which was at times exceedingly inconvenient. With a deep-water mooring place this difficulty is now wiped out.

A NORTH END HUNTER'S LUCK.

While somewhat detached from the rest of the party, Mr. McArthur suddenly came across the moose. The big animal was unexpected luck and Mr. McArthur's first bullet won him his trophy. The head and antlers of the moose will be mounted.

MAY QUEEN REPAIRS.

She Will Probably Be on Her Route Again This Week.

The steamer May Queen, at present on Hilgard's blocks, undergoing repairs to the injuries which she sustained by grounding in the Grand Lake, will probably be back on her old route before the end of this week. The repairs which are being made to her now are of a permanent character though this winter it is the intention to give her a thorough overhauling.

The work of repairing the May Queen is being done under difficulties as only when the tide is out can the carpenters reach the portion of her which was injured in the grounding. The men, therefore, have to work an hour or so at night and for a similar length of time during the day. The work is being pushed forward and the expectation is that it will be completed by Thursday. All defective planks are being removed and new ones being put in their places.
