POBEDONOSTSEFF, THE REACTIONARY.

(Mail and Empire.)
Pobedonostseff, for many years the strongest single force in Russia, is dead. As the companion and tutor of two Czars, his personal influence was great, even before he became the Premier of the Russian Empire. He was a trained intellect of very high order, and by an absolute sincerity that would have made him suffer persecutions as readily as he inflicted them on Roman Catholics, Lutherans and Doukhobors. It was Pobedonostseff who gave the order for the execution of the anti-Semite outbreaks. He was the best hated man in Russia.

VERY SUDDEN DEATH OF DR. SHEFFIELD

Complained of Feeling Ill After Returning from a Walk, and Passed Away in a Few Minutes
THE MODERN TORQUEMADA.
"The Modern Torquemada" is the name Pobedonostseff won for himself, and for bitter, religious intolerance he had no peer among the leaders of our time; but anyone who imagines Pobedonostseff to have been a conscious scoundrel does him an injustice. Gen. Booth is not more convinced that he is doing a good work in raising the fallen, and preaching and practicing Christianity, than was Pobedonostseff when he persecuted the Jews and ground the faces of the poor. He was not an uncompromising democracy through ignorance, for he knew far more about the government of Great Britain, France, the United States and other progressive countries than the majority of his critics. He was a reactionary through principle; and his belief that the people of Russia were fit for nothing but the yoke of Caesardom was perfectly honest.

LIVED LIKE AN ANCHORITE.

Pobedonostseff's way of living recalls that of the anchorites of the middle ages. He was accustomed to retire to his study for several hours on the occasion of the great feast of his Church, and there fast until he was at the point of collapse. He would remain on his knees for hours at a time, praying and beating his head against the stone floor. His habits were extremely studious, and strange to relate, he was a devotee of the works of Whittier and Emerson. Although in a position where millions of money was in his hands he lived on a laborer's wage, and scorned all the delights of the flesh. In appearance he was frail to the point of emaciation, and his bespectacled face gave him an air of meekness that was hardly in keeping with his tremendous influence. Pobedonostseff retired from public life when the Czarist government was overthrown in October of the Thirties, and spent most of his time since in bewailing the modern tendency to democracy, and in praying for a return to the old order.

THE SPOT'S APOLOGIA.

In a remarkable book, written some years ago, Pobedonostseff set forth his point of view with unusual force and clearness. One by one he reviewed what we may call the institutions of progress, and in every case he found them wanting. His conclusion was that Russia, under the bureaucracy, was the best governed of all countries. He contended stoutly for the Church and State should be one. His most powerful condemnation was reserved for what he called "The Great Falsity," which he defined as the sovereignty of the people. He admitted that in the abstract the theory of a parliament was all right, but declared that it was utterly impracticable. Here is a specimen passage:
"The elections in no way express the will of the electors. The popular representatives are in no way restricted by the opinions of their constituents, but are guided by their own views and considerations, modified by the tactics of their opponents. In reality, ministers are autocratic, and they rule, rather than are ruled by, parliament. They attain power and lose power, not by virtue of the will of the people, but through immense personal influence, or the influence of a strong party which places them in power, or drives them from it. They dispose of the forces and resources of the nation at will, they maintain a multitude of idlers at the expense of the people, and they fear no censure while they enjoy the support in parliament of a majority which places them in power, or drives them from it. In reality, the ministers are as irresponsible as the representatives of the people. Mistakes, abuses of power and arbitrary acts are of daily occurrence, yet how often do we hear of the grave responsibility of a minister? It may be once in fifty years a minister is tried for his crimes, with a result contemptible when compared with the abuses which he committed over the continent, gave Pobedonostseff the modern institutions he needed.

CRITICISM OF PARLIAMENT.

It is surely not for Canadians in the present year of our Lord to take the truth of much of the old reactionary's criticisms. The administrative scandals of our generation, and the graft that has spread like a ranker over the continent, gave Pobedonostseff the modern institutions he needed.

THE UNPLEASANT TRUTH.

It is surely not for Canadians in the present year of our Lord to take the truth of much of the old reactionary's criticisms. The administrative scandals of our generation, and the graft that has spread like a ranker over the continent, gave Pobedonostseff the modern institutions he needed.

ELOPING COUPLE HELD AT HALIFAX

Game Out from England on Steamer Parisian
Man Has Wife and Family—Girl is Caring for Her

HALIFAX, N. S., March 31.—An eloping couple, who were travelling as man and wife, were detained on the arrival of the steamer Parisian from Glasgow today and the man and young girl accompanying him to Canada. They booked back to England, as well as the young man, who accompanied her. Acting upon instructions, Chief of Police Power and Detective Iannahan proceeded to Deep Water and with little difficulty apprehended the parties.
The man, whose name is Percy Kay, is an Englishman, with a wife and family. He was a clerk in a grocery establishment. By some manner of means he induced the young girl to accompany him to Canada. They booked at Glasgow as man and wife, and maintained that relation throughout the trip. The immigration agent took charge of Kay and will detain him until such time as he can be sent back to the shores of England. The young girl was taken in charge by a relative who had come from Boston to meet the steamer. He had been notified of the elopement and had been asked by relatives on the other side to look after her. She is now being taken care of by friends in this city and will be sent home. The young girl is good looking and is quite stylishly dressed.

RECENT DEATHS.

JAMES McLEAN.
ST. GEORGE, March 31.—This community received a severe shock when early Saturday afternoon the news of the death of Jas. McLean was heard. Mr. McLean has not been well for some time, and had been confined to his bed for about a week. Although it was known that Mr. McLean was suffering from heart disease, it was hoped that in view of the apparent improvement in his condition, he would soon be out of immediate danger. This improvement was maintained until a few minutes before his death, which took place shortly after noon today. Mr. McLean was a man who knew his thoughts, the Maritime Provinces and was very popular on account of his genial and kindly manner, thorough integrity and great worth. For years he conducted a large general business in Letete. Later he was connected with the Robinsons, Maine, Packing Company.
