NOTHING EQUALS IT.

For The Cure of Catarrh.

A physician now retired from practice, but who still keeps abreast of the times, in speaking of the advance made in medicine in the last ten years, says: "One of the most obstinate and baffling diseases is the very common trouble, catarrh.

Nasal catarrh is only one of its many forms; catarrh of the throat, catarrh of the stomach, bowels, liver and bladder are very common but the sufferer usually thinks it is something else than catarrh and is treated for the wrong disease.

The best and most successful treatment for any form of catarrh is now admitted to be by internal remedies through the stomach, and the safest and probably the most efficient is in the tablet form, sold by druggists as Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

I have seen many remarkable cures of catarrh resulting from regular daily use of these tablets, which seem to act on the blood and liver, driving the catarrh poison out of the system through the natural channels.

I once had occasion to analyze these tablets and found them to contain no cocaine nor opiates, but simply a combination of harmless antiseptics like Eucalyptal, Guaiacol, blood root, etc.

At any rate, I have known of severe catarrhal headaches which were cured by Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and catarrhal deafness, hay fever, asthma and catarrh of the throat and stomach speedily show great benefit after a few days' use of the remedy, and when it is remembered how much more convenient a tablet is than inhalers, douches, salves and powders it is not surprising that this new preparation should so rapidly supplant all other remedies for catarrh.

POISON IN A LUMBER CAMP.

Fourteen Men Were Made Very Sick.

Between midnight on Sunday and six o'clock on Monday morning fourteen men were almost in death's agonies in Mosher's lumber camp at Fairfield, eight miles this side of St. Martins. All this, it is supposed, was brought about, by the men eating sweet, or molasses cake, made by the cook of the camp. The men were attacked with violent headache and vomiting, and until the doctor reached the camp they hardly knew what to do or what caused the trouble. There were some thirty men, including mill hands, in the camp, but the men who lived in St. Martins, as was their custom, went home Saturday to remain over Sunday, while the men who belonged to Sussex and other places remained in the camp. The cook, a man named Lennox, of St. Martins, used also to go home on Saturdays, but always cooked enough food to satisfy the men until he returned on Monday. All who partook of the cake were prostrated, while some were so badly affected that they are not yet able to leave the camp for their homes in Sussex. On Monday morning the teamster, who lived in another camp, on seeing no stir among the men, went to ascertain the cause, and when he found all sick he immediately drove into St. Martins and took out Dr. Ruddock, who reached the camp at one o'clock. The doctor found all quite ill. The men can form no idea of the cause of their sickness, but they think it strange the cook did not return to camp on Monday as was expected. One thing is certain, however, the men were poisoned.—Globe.

RAPID RISE OF A ST. JOHN MAN.

On or about five years ago, Albert Lockett, one of our west end citizens, sailed out of St. John as mate in Troop & Son's employ—he at that time holding a captain's certificate. Some time later he joined the Liverpool Steamship Co., sailing one of their steamers as third officer. During this service he met the manager of the Pacific Mail S. S. Co. in Yokohama, which resulted in his present position, this latter company having purchased on or about one year ago the steamer on which Capt. Lockett was sailing, and he was urged to stay with her as first mate, which he accepted, and within the year was promoted to captain. Capt. Lockett has been home some three weeks, and leaves on Monday for Frisco, taking with him his wife and two daughters. Capt. Lockett is a nephew of Mrs. J. J. Christie, his wife a daughter of Mr. Clark, long in charge of the beacon. Capt. Lockett is to be heartily congratulated on his success.—Star.

LOCAL LEGISLATURE.

claim had been a sort of bogey to him. He had heard it talked about ever since he was a young man. A generation had gone down to the grave leaving it unsettled, but now it was pleasing to know that the ghost was at rest, and we would hear no more of it. As this was a new century and the government was a new one, perhaps they would signalize their entrance into power by increasing the sessional indemnity to $500. He was not speaking for himself, for he did not expect to return again to a new house, but he was anxious for others. Some of those who were here had grown grey in the service of their country to the legislature and in the cause of good government, and he thought they should be properly recompensed. As a farmer, he desired to express his appreciation of the good work that had been done by the minister of agriculture, and he was glad to see that this important subject was receiving so much attention from the government. (Applause).

heartily congratulated the mover and seconder of the address. He was at a disadvantage in speaking upon the speech from the throne, inasmuch as the courtesy had not been extended to him as leader of the opposition of furnishing him with an advance copy of the speech, as is done to both the mover and seconder of the address in reply and to all the government newspapers. In no other parliament but in that of New Brunswick is it the practice to enter upon a discussion of the speech from the throne upon the same day as it is delivered. He had not seen or heard the address delivered today until he heard it from the lips of his honor. The leader of the government had, however, assured him that in future an advance copy of the speech should be furnished to the leader of the opposition. Mr. Hazen then referred to the changes which had taken place in the house since it last met; changes by death and by resignations. The reconstruction of the government was also referred to. The honorable member for Northumberland had been in the house twenty-seven years ago, and had taken a prominent and responsible part in the affairs of the house and country during that time, and it was but fitting that upon the resignation of the former premier he should have been called upon to form a ministry. It was a matter of surprise to everybody, that the member for Northumberland was passed over at the time of the lamented death of Hon. Mr. Mitchell, but it is well known that the political opinions held by the honorable member at that time did not suit the masters at Ottawa. The honorable member profited by the lesson taught him then and took the earliest opportunity to publicly declare that he had left the conservative party and entered the liberal fold. Yet he was found only a few months ago actively supporting the candidature of a prominent conservative. Any man who was not suited with the premier is hard indeed to please.

Referring to the speech from the throne, Mr. Hazen said that its most conspicuous feature was its extraordinary length. It contained the proverbial two grains of wheat in a bushel of chaff. Whoever drafted the speech tried to cover up the deficiencies in matter by a multitude of words.

The fourth paragraph of the speech refers to technical schools and indicates a complete change of opinion of this subject on the part of some members of the government. Upon a former occasion the present premier had introduced a resolution in favor of the establishment of technical schools in this province, and ably and eloquently the honorable member for St. John supported that resolution. Now we find the government putting words in the mouth of the governor which declared that the establishment and maintenance of a school for the teaching of purely technical branches for this province. He (Hazen) had pointed this out when the resolution was introduced, and suggested that it would be better to provide scholarships so that the youth of the land desiring to procure technical education would be assisted to go to McGill University or elsewhere. His proposition was ridiculed at that time and he was accused of not being in sympathy with the young men of the province. In this, as in many other matters, the government has now come to his way of thinking and has made in the speech a declaration identical with his own, and the government has adopted the policy of the opposition.

He approved of the proposition referring to cold storage, and hoped that before another year a large cold storage warehouse may be SEEN AT ST. JOHN.

The speech contains a paragraph relating to the coal deposits in Queens and Sunbury counties. A person would think from merely reading the paragraph that the government has just learned that there is coal in those counties, whereas its existence has been known almost ever since the discovery of the province. Coal mining is now carried on to a limited extent in those counties, but the operations are restricted by the difficulties and expense of getting the product to market. If the government is really desirous of assisting that industry, it can best do so by securing the extension of the Central railway to the mines and thence on to Fredericton.

Who ever drafted the paragraph in the speech referring to the roads and highways can rightfully claim the title of the humorist of the administration. It is a fact well known from one end of the province to the other that the present highways act is simply unworkable. The best way to expend the grants for the roads was to place it in the hands of the commissioners appointed by the county councils.

He was much surprised at the mildness with which the speech refers to the

which has been perpetrated in the county of Kings. He could almost hear the attorney general dictating the sentece "Certain irregularities and wrongdoing which have occurred, etc." No other man but the attorney general could speak of the Kings county crime in so mild a manner. The supreme court has characterized it as perjury, forgery and theft.

Mr. Pugsley called Mr. Hazen's attention to the fact that the judgment handed down by the supreme court does not use those words, which are the words of only two members of the bench, and to which some others of the justices dissent.

Mr. Hazen, continuing, said that he was pleased to hear the attorney general have something to say on this matter, as up to the present he had preserved absolute silence. The attorney general, however, does not seem to condemn the crime attempted in Kings county respecting the bogus electors' list. He rather supported it. He made no effort to have the list set aside. It was the duty of the attorney general to have taken all possible steps to have found out and punished the guilty parties. Mr. Hazen then reviewed the facts and circumstances of the attempt to illegally add about 400 names to the non-resident voters' list of the parish of Rothesay, and declared that if such attempts were successful there would be an end to responsible government and representatitve government by the people.

Mr. Hazen noted with pleasure that proposed change with regard to the auditor general, and thought the proposed measure should go further than is suggested and should provide that the auditor general shall be and dismissable only by a three-three-fourths vote of the house rather than as present, an official of the government who can be dismissed at the will of the administration. He rather approved of the promised legislation regarding district courts, and the Torrens system of land registration, but thought that the house should move very carefully in those matters.

It seemed to him that there were several important matters omitted from the speech which might properly have been referred to. One of these was the complete reversal of the government's former policy on bridge building. The former action of the government in giving out contracts without competition or tender for the construction of steel bridges, and at two or three times the market price was attempted to be justified by the government, on the ground that they were thus encouraging the establishment of a great bridge building industry at Moncton. The present premier had defended the action of the former chief commissioner of public works with the argument that it was not in line with the national policy of Canada and building up a home industry, and yet one of the first acts of the new government of his predecessors, and the concern which had been so bolstered up by the government had not even the enterprise to tender for a job when they came into competition with other manufacturers. Two years ago he (Hazen) had advocated the policy of submitting all public works to competition and to advertise for tenders for the same in the Royal Gazette. The government then ridiculed his suggestion, but as the present chief commissioner took office he had taken the advice of the opposition, and now tenders are invited for all bridges to be repaired or built. This shows how useful it is to have a live and watchful opposition.

The speech might well have referred to the revision of the statutes, which the house was told last session was a pressing need, and a bill was passed for the creation of a commission for doing that work and the sum of $20,000 was appropriated for the purpose. He would like to know why, if it was such a pressing necessity a year ago, something has not been done. No reference is made in the speech to the Canada Eastern railway, which, it is said, the dominion government proposes to acquire, and in which this house has shown considerable interest in the past. Neither is the recent trouble of the government in selecting a speaker mentioned. It would appear that we are to have government by caucus and not by the executive.

Mr. Hazen then referred to the Canadian boys who had fought in South Africa. He had said a year ago than none would do their duty more bravely than

OUR OWN NEW BRUNSWICK BOYS.

Events have sustained the high expectations and our boys now are heroes whose names are emblazoned upon the scroll of fame.

The speaker then reviewed the national crisis and the national aspirations at the time of Her Majesty's accession to the throne and spoke of the good wrought during her reign by the ability, personal purity of life and conduct, and devotion to duty of the late Queen. Today all Britishers are imperialists, and largely because of the beneficient influences of Victoria's reign. The little Englander has passed away "unwept, unhonored and unsung." Her late Majesty was a life long friend of the colonies, and had her views prevailed several years ago, we should never have had to endure the humiliation of Majuba Hill, and the empire would never have been called upon in these times to pour out blood and treasure in defence of the nation's honor. The happy, beautiful married life of Her Majesty was referred to by Mr. Hazen in closing his speech.

Hon. Mr. Tweedie moved the adjournment of the debate.

Moved by Hon. Mr. Tweedie, seconded by Mr. Hazen, that in future the house meet at 3 p. m. Carried.

Hon. Mr. Tweedie named as the nominating committee Hon. Mr. Tweedie, Hon. Mr. Pugsley, Hon. Mr. Labillois, Mr. Hazen and Mr. Shaw. Carried.

HON. MR. PUGSLEY

called the attention of Mr. Hazen to the fact that his notice of enquiry does not comply with the rules of the house, inasmuch as it makes statements of fact, or alleged facts. He (Pugsley) also took exception to the statement made that the supreme court had declared that perjury, forgery and theft had been committed in the Rothesay election lists case. The court made no such statement. He was satisfied that there was no perjury committed, and he could not permit those statements of two of their honors, who he believed had not given the matter due consideration, to go before the house as a statement of fact. He would suggest to the honorable member that he eliminate the statements of fact from his notice of motion. In case he did so he would ask the speaker to erase those statements, as the rules and practice of the house provide.

Mr. Hazen said that it was admitted by the honorable attorney general that forgery had been committed and he submitted that perjury had also been committed. He believed that the attorney general could easily discover who were the guilty parties. Will the honorable gentleman answer my enquiry if I strike out the word "perjury"?

Hon. Mr. Pugsley—I would have no objection to this notice of enquiry if the word perjury was struck out. He (Pugsley) claimed that there could not possibly be both forgery and perjury.

Mr. Hazen stated that he had struck the word "perjury" out of the original notice of enquiry.

Hon. Mr. Tweedie submitted a memorandum of the agreement made between Dr. Hannay and the government for the reporting of the proceedings of the house during the present session.

Hon. Mr. Tweedie moved the adjournment of the house.—Carried

A. W. REED DEAD.

A large circle of friends will learn with deep regret, though scarcely with surprise, of the death of A. W. Reed of the money order department of the post office, who was also chief clerk of the office, which occurred at his residence, Carleton Wednesday evening. For some days the sad result has been seen to be inevitable and it was thought yesterday morning that death was only the matter of an hour or two. His illness was of less than a fortnight's duration. A heavy cold developed into congestion of the lungs, and his case soon became dangerous, though, at first, it was hoped that his life might be saved.

Mr. Reed was about 47 years of age, and for over 30 years had been in the postal department, in which he rose step by step to the most trusted and important position in the Saint John office. Always careful and conscientious in the discharge of his duty, his worth was appreciated by all who came in contact with him, whether on the staff of the postal service or as members of the public.

For about 25 years he was a member of Carleton Union lodge, F. and A. M., of which he was a past master, in which he always took a deep interest, holding the office of treasurer for the past few years.

He leaves a widow, formerly Miss Alice Porter of Saint Stephen, and four children, all little girls. His father and mother also survive him, as well as a sister, Mrs. Frederick Bassett, who for many years resided in Washington, D. C. His father has lately been seriously ill and has only been able to visit his dying son at considerable personal risk to his health. The family have the deepest sympathy of the community in their serious and untimely bereavement.
