Level Crossing Protections of C. P. R. Would Cost Over $24,750,000.

OTTAWA, May 8-The special comtowns and villages, this morning examined Mr. G. F. Gutelius, chief en-gineer of the Canadian Pacific. Between St. John and Vancouver the C. P. R. has 1337 unprotected level crossings in cities, towns and villages; each gate would cost on an average $500, the necessary watchman would ccst $840 a year; repairs and supplies, $60; total cost per year, $900. Capitalbride was becomingly attired in a steel stallation and the annual cost would

He went exhaustively into the respective merits and disadvantages of these methods, declaring that the only positive protection is to carry the tracks either above or below the tracks. The average cost of a subway is from $40,000 to $45,000; the railway should not be asked to contribute more than one-third of this, or at all events should not be asked to spend more than the $18,500 which a gate would cost. Turning to the expedient of slowing down to ten miles when approaching a crossing, Mr. Grutelius estimated that this would increase the time betwen Montreal and Ottawa by o minutes. The time of a transcontinental train will be increased by 12 hours. The effect on freight trains would be similar, especially in those on fast freights. where time is an object. With heavy trains this would become very serious. It would involve an addition of one train in ten to carry the same amount of freight, or an additional $1,500,000 a year to the cost of operating freight quiet welcome was extended Prince Arthur of Connaught on his arrival at the metropolis at eleven o'clock this morning. Montreal waxes enthusiastic over principalities or powers. The weather was very unpleasant, with a drizzling rain, which made things uncomfortable for the few hundred citizens gathered to receive the representative of royalty. A guard of honor from the Prince of Wales Fusiliers, with the regimental band, gave the royal salute as the train pulled in. Immediately Mayor Ekers and Aldermen Sadler and Yates of the city reception committee, boarded the train and were cordially received by the prince. Curiously ough not a French Canadian alderman was present, although several were on the reception committee.

The prince seemed in great spirits and jumped off the moving train to inspect the guard of honor. A mild outcheers greeted him as emerged from the stateroom with his party, which included the leading officers of the Montreal district military headquarters. The whole party were rapidly driven off to Sir Hugh Montague Allan's residence, "Ravenscrag," where the prince will be a guest during his brief stay here. After luncheon the prince was escorted to the city hall, where he was presented to the aldermen and other civic dignitaries and later inspected the cadets on the Champs De Mars. This evening Prince Arthur will be entertained to dinner at St. James club, and later to an evening party at Lady Allan's. The main feature of his visit, however, will be the formal opening of the horse show tomorrow afternoon, which promises to be one of the most brilliant functions ever seen in Montreal.
