The Changes of Time.

The Liberal party has now been in power for fifteen years. During the early history of the Liberal Government the Conservative organizations all over Canada were wont to picture the late Mr. Tarte as the "Master of the Administration" and to describe him as a boodler and grafter of the worst type.

Previous to the election of 1909, Mr. Tarte had taken the ground that Canadian soldiers should not be sent to South Africa, and the Star and other hysterical organs had denounced him in the strongest and most violent language as a traitor to the British Crown. His objections were over-ruled and the Canadian soldiers went to South Africa and won honor for themselves and for the empire. Mr. Tarte never forgave Sir Wilfrid for overruling him in this question of public policy and shortly afterwards he was asked for his resignation and left the Administration. The Conservative party then received him to their fullest confidence.

Bourassa, too, was denounced as a traitor and as a renegade, but the Conservatives have him at the present time. Then it was Mr. Sifton, who became the nightmare to the Conservative party. They wanted to know how he made his fortune. Was it through graft and boodle? He went to Ottawa a poor man and in a few years, the Conservative papers charged, had amassed millions. Judging by the language that the Conservative organs used, Mr. Sifton was a disgrace to any political party, but today we find this same Sifton guiding and directing the Conservative forces in Canada. In fact the outcasts of the Liberal party seem to be good enough to become the leaders of the Conservative forces.

According to the estimates which the Conservative papers had put on Messrs. Tarte, Bourassa and Sifton in former years, they could not possibly become any worse than they were then. Yet with all the sins and iniquities charged against them, they seem to be good enough for the Conservative party at the present time.

Italy's "Moving Schools"

Rome, Sept. 5.—An interesting experiment is being carried on in the arid district about Rome, along the sea coast and among the Abruzzi Mountains, which has been possible only through private charity.

Illiteracy has always been a characteristic of the Italian peasant, especially in the south; so much so that while the percentage in the north is almost negligible that of the south is no great as to raise that of the whole kingdom to about 50 percent. Education is obligatory, but it is difficult to enforce when the peasant cannot even dress his large family decently, and the children perhaps have to tramp miles for the privilege of attending school, while in the mountains or in deserted districts there are often no schools available.

It is just this want which is met by the present plan. What are called "moving schools" have been established in districts where there are no regular schools and they are in one spot today and far away to-morrow. They comprise night schools for the workers, summer schools for the peasants coming down from the mountains to the plains, and children's classes in the open air or set up under any available shelter.

Says He Was Kicked Out of Liberal Party.

Montreal Herald: "I'm not taking any part in politics now," says Mr. David Russell to the Herald last night, "but I feel it my duty to put a stop to J. N. Greenshields running around the country misreading the public. He says he left the Liberal party on account of his not being able to swallow the reciprocity agreement. Great heavens, what next!"

said Mr. Russell. "The facts are that we were both kicked out of the Liberal party in 1904. We went to Ottawa after our defeat in that election to sell La Presse and get back in the ranks. The argument we put forward to the Premier was that the purchase of the French journal was merely a matter of business and that we had no hard feelings against Sir Wilfrid or his Government. Sir Wilfrid refused to swallow our story, claiming it was an insult to his intelligence. J. N. and I returned to Montreal thoroughly satisfied that our political career was at an end, and I was surprised to hear that he had come to life again."

Mr. Russell also told The Herald that Mr. Donald McMaster, K. C., had come from England especially to represent him in his case against the Pinkerton Detective Agency, and would remain until after the trial. Mr. Wm. J. Burns, the famous detective, is coming to Montreal direct from San Francisco on Saturday, when an important conference will be held with regard to the alleged asylum plot. - Ex.

Wm. Garnett a native and life long resident of this parish died on Tuesday morning at his residence about a mile up the river, on the Manor Road. He had reached the advanced age of 83 years. He leaves a wife, three daughters and one son to mourn their loss.

To-day (Thursday) the train is again at her winter tricks, two cars derailed near Duck Cove, expected here about 1 o'clock, but the wreck proved so late that the train was cancelled and mail will not arrive till Friday.

In fact the whole summer, the hours of arrival have been very little better than in the winter, it being from half an hour to an hour and a half late almost every day.

It left Lepreau in the morning for the junction where the St. Stephen train will meet it there both to St. Andrews. It is expected on its return it will leave St. Andrews about 6 p.m. The excitement did not seem to be very intense as only about 90 to 100 people including the two bands were on board, leaving St. George.

The Annual Convention of Charlotte County Sarsday School Association will be held at St. George on Sept. 25th and 26th. Each school is entitled to send two delegates besides its Superintendent and Pastor. It is hoped that all the schools in the County will be represented. It is very important that delegates be elected at once and their names sent to the chairman of the entertainment committee, Miss Edna O'Brien, St. George, on or before Sept. 23rd. All persons going to the convention over a railroad must ask and procure a standard certificate and purchase a single ticket at one first class fare. The certificate when signed by the President of the Association will procure a ticket for the return passage free if fifty attend or for one quarter fare if ten or more attend. Will all the Superintendents please attend to this that we may have a good attendance.

(Signed) W. H. Faruham,
President.

Obituary

The home of Mr. Enos C. Justason was again saddened on Thursday Sept. 7 by the death of his daughter Lois at the early age of 14 years and 11 months.

Much sympathy is felt for the family so lately bereaved of a wife and mother and now of a loving daughter and sister.

By her mild and loving disposition she became endeared to the hearts of all who knew her.

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon and was largely attended, testifying to the esteem in which the deceased was held. Services were conducted by Rev. J. Spencer.

Card of Thanks.

Enos Justason and family wish to express their heartfelt thanks to all the kind neighbors and friends who have aided them during the sickness and death of their daughter and sister, Lois E. Justason, also to those who sent flowers for the funeral.

St. Andrew's 500th Year.

Edinburgh, Sept. 12.—Delegates from the universities and learned societies of all the civilized world, noblemen and many others of note, assembled to-day in Scotland's ancient ecclesiastical capital at the opening of the celebration of the 500th anniversary of the University of St. Andrews. Among the Americans present were Prof. Josiah Kowce, of Harvard University; Prof. Bernard P. Moses, of the University of California, and Dr. Leonard Stejneger, representing the Smithsonian Institution.

St. Andrews was founded in 1411 by Bishop Warlaw and is the oldest university of Scotland. Prior to its founding the only opportunity for the education of the Scottish youth lay in pilgrimages to other countries.

The Minstrel Boy Died at a Green Old Age

An aged wandering singer, rhymster and story teller, who was said to be a descendant of one famed in the days of minstrelsy, died recently in the hospital in County Meath, Ireland. He was the last of the old school of so called poets who lived by story telling and verse making at farmhouse firesides. His name was Thomas Smith, and, according to report, one of his ancestors wore cap and bells and served as a jester to a prince. In his boyhood Smith, it is said, wore a faded doublet of alternating stripes of yellow and blue, which had been handed down to him as a relic of his great-grandfather's fame as a countryside fiddler. His stories for the most part had to do with the fairies, and always presented the good fairy in the part of straightening tangles and easing the path to happy marriage. His visits throughout the country were made with scheduled regularity and an evening with the poet was the occasion for a gathering of young folk. Like most poets he was not thrifty and died poor.

Bang! Bang!

He thought that the Germans were up on him. But he awoke to find that it was only the boots rapping at the door.

"What, what is it?" he grumbled.

"A telegram, sir," replied the boots, in breathless tones. "Will you open the door, sir?"

"Certainly not!" exclaimed Jones crossly. He was by no means anxious to leave his sheltering sheets. "Slip it under the door, my boy."

"I can't do that, sir," replied the boots anxiously. "It's on a tray."—Youth's Companion.

Bad Name for a New York Company

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The Secretary of State has refused to incorporate "H. L." A New York City law firm recently forwarded a certificate of incorporation with that name for a proposed concern to conduct cafes and restaurants. The secretary returned the papers with a letter in which he said:

"While the statute with reference there to does not specifically prohibit the use of such a name, in my opinion, it would be against public policy to permit it."

One of the oldest and best completed for international yacht races is that for the Fisher Cup, on the great lakes every year. This year it was between the much feared Seneca, of Rochester, and the Patricia, of Toronto. The above picture shows the start in the second race. While Seneca won this race, the Canadian Patricia took the race next, giving the Canadian two out of three and leaving the much sought after Fisher Cup under the Canadian ensign for a year.
