The Tholurn Inquirer accounts, that of it was sheer work to pass over The Speaker said it was the Sup. referred to the fine rain and that they should take advantage of it and improve their gardens. He said it was a fine

[illegible]

James Carpenter then spoke that last year he was appointed Pathmaster, he himself put in two weeks work but many of his young men would not work

Mr Thornton said he never observed any person like Mackay, North

Chief Carpenter said that Keefe did the two weeks to finish the dock, that the Customing allowance from the fact of some scuttling and others ~~the~~ refusing would not do what work was required.

The Sap" again impressed upon their minds the absolute necessity of each person doing his share of the town labor and to proceed in some systematic way about it
