

What a happy life yours is and surely there is a power behind it all, guiding and directing, and you who are listening for the voice to speak, cannot but hear what He leads you to do —
Well may you date with delight the day that is opening out for you — so few understand it the beautiful language of the soul, you are certainly distinguished in a wonderful way, to speak to the hearts of men. No other way would have served the purpose in the midst of suffering such as must have been in that last strike. You managed it so wisely and

6763
I hope I have read the description with the greatest interest — your place in the world today is one of importance and you realize how much from it you are needed. I am so glad that everything is about to be accepted in time as you would wish. Your future will no doubt be a bright one, as you are now looking to the right source to make the way clear and plain —
I am glad you had such a pleasant visit in England, but oh how I wish you did not meet Lady Macdonald, my friend of other years. I had a charming letter from her last week. She has a villa at Allassio this winter, and

W. L. Mackenzie King Papers
Volume 7

PUBLIC ARCHIVES PUBLIQUES
CANADA