International Bible Lesson for To-morrow.

Jesus, the Good Shepherd.—John 10, 7-18.

Golden Text—"I am the Good Shepherd; the Good Shepherd giveth His life for the sheep."

This lesson is the first of the second quarter, 1905, and is a continuation of the first of the first quarter, 1905, in the parable of the Good Shepherd, when our Lord gave sight to the poor, low born blind, who though he was cast out of the earthly temple could find a home in the fold of Jesus Christ, the Good Shepherd.

The sheep fold was enclosed by a high stone wall for protection against wild beasts and robbers during the night, where the sheep could rest secure under the watchful care of their shepherd, who was responsible for their safety, when they followed him into the fold, for he led them there at night and out in the morning, calling them by their names. A stranger could not lead them, for they would not know his voice.

If all this is true of these sheep and their shepherd, it is equally true and more so of all who accept Jesus the Son of God as the Shepherd and Bishop of their souls.—I Pet. 2, 25—and follow Him.

V. 9.—The Lord leads His people out for service and in for rest.

V. 10.—The abundant life imparted to the sheep of the Good Shepherd, who laid down His life for His sheep, and He will lead them in their every-day employments and services, where we will find in the daily duties of this busy world He gives us fine pasture. He will prepare our table in the presence of our enemies, appoint our heads with oil and give us an overflowing cup.

Read the 23rd Psalm. "Is our spiritual leader."

V. 16.—Though preaching to Jews, we Gentiles were on His heart and we shall be gathered from East, West, North and South, into one fold.

Verses 17 and 18.—Our Lord has power to lay down His life, freely atoning for our sin, and power to rise from the dead as Prince of Life that we may have life, and life abundant and eternal.

FLESH BUILDER

The liver of the cod fish produces oil that is a wonderful flesh builder. No fat or oil can compare with it in that respect. To get the best out of it, it must be emulsified and made like cream. In Scott's Emulsion it is prepared in the best possible form to produce the best possible results. Thirty years have proven this.

IN THE NURSERY.

Every mother should be able to treat the minor ailments of her little ones. Prompt action may prevent serious illness—perhaps save a child's life. A simple remedy in the home is therefore an absolute necessity, and for this purpose there is nothing else so good as Baby's Own Tablets.

These Tablets promptly cure all stomach and bowel troubles, break up colds, allay fevers, destroy worms, aid teething, and make little ones healthy and cheerful. Guaranteed to contain no opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. Mrs. John N. Pringle, Forest Falls, Ont., says:—"I think I can thank Baby's Own Tablets for my baby's life. He was badly constipated, but after giving him the Tablets he was relieved at once. I also find them good when he is at all restless, and feel I cannot say too much in their favor." Sold by all druggists or sent by mail at 2 cents a box by writing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GAME OF SKILL

Why Poker Was So Declared by Missouri Jury—Interesting Case.

It is not merely in the United States that politics makes strange bedfellows and necessitates curious decisions. Even in the Duchy of Oldenburg it has become necessary to decide that poker is not a game of chance. This decision was requisite to convict certain editors of libels. They had said that the Minister of Justice, Mr. Rohstrat, was a gambler who participated in games of chance. Mr. Rohstrat stated that he had eschewed roulette, but admitted that he played poker. So he was, in effect, that poker is not a game of chance. The editors were convicted of libel, but are not yet satisfied that poker is purely a game of skill.

It is not at all surprising that this question should be treated in Europe as still an open one—res integra, as the lawyers sometimes say. At all events, if it is res adjudicata they wish to know it. It is recalled that our excellent friend, former Governor J. Erskine Knott, has a story of a case that occurred in the early history of Missouri.

According to the story, somebody in northeast Missouri—perhaps in Lewis county—was indicted for playing a certain game of chance known as draw poker. The defendant came daily and demurred to the indictment, on the ground that draw poker is not a game of chance, but a game of skill. The judge thought that the court, whatever might have been the experience of the judge as an individual, could not judicially show that poker is a game of skill, and not of chance. Accordingly, he decided that this was a question of fact, and not a question of law, and he let it go to the jury. The jury was made up of six skillful poker players and six whose knowledge of the game was rudimentary. When the jury took up the question of the nature of the game they divided themselves into two sections, the experienced poker players on one side and the inexperienced on the other. They went out for a sufficient number of decks of cards and sat down to see what chance would do for the men who lacked skill. The court, the lawyers and the defendant went to bed, but the jury remained in session all night, determined to find out by actual experience the real nature of the game.

When morning dawned the half dozen experienced players were victors of all the wealth of the jury. By the time that court reassembled in the morning the jury was agreed upon a verdict, and unanimously decided that poker is a game of skill, and not of chance.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary Lidster, relict of the late John Lidster, and one of the oldest and most respected pioneers of Zone Township passed into the rest beyond Friday, March 10, 1906.

The funeral services were held in the Methodist church on Monday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. J. J. Sinclair officiating, interment being in the Bethwell cemetery.

Mrs. Lidster was born in 1786 year. She and her husband came from England to this country 53 years ago and took up their abode at Hamilton. After a year in that place they moved to Ridgeway and a few months later settled in Zone, at that time only a forest.

Five children survive her—Mrs. Daniel Boon, of London; William, of Bothwell; Joshua and John, of Zone Township; and George, the youngest, still on the old homestead.

The deceased was possessed of a sweet disposition and kindly Christian character. She was willing to perform a helpful service. Her friends say that they never heard her speak an unkind or harsh word of anyone. Quiet in her tastes, she lived closely to her home surrounded by her relatives, to whom her devotion was constant. The deepest sympathy of friends and neighbors is felt for the family in the hour of their affliction.

Competent, but Unprejudiced.

In the course of the year Parson Whitaker received many calls to marry, christen and bury in the villages round Canby, so it often happened that his services were required in families of which he knew little more than the name of the person on whose behalf he was to officiate.

One day he was summoned to a lonely farm to perform the burial service. On arriving there after some vicissitudes he was met by a forlorn looking man who was evidently in charge of affairs.

"Are there relatives left whom I should mention," the minister asked, "and is there any special point of which I should speak?"

"No, there weren't any real points about Abner Saunders," said the man slowly. "I guess I'm an unprejudiced judge, and I should say there weren't. As for relatives, there's no one left but an aged brother. I guess you'd better mention him. I would like to pass him. You might say that he's always done his best and that 'twas a great privilege for the deceased to have him near by at the last."

"Certainly I will do so," said Parson Whitaker cordially. "I suppose from what you say the aged brother has had more or less trouble in the past."

"He's had his trials," said the man briefly.

When the service was over the minister stepped toward his informant.

"I didn't see the aged brother," he said in a low tone. "Is he in the house?"

He might like to have me speak to him before I go."

"I'm the aged brother," said the forlorn man, holding out a limp hand.
