The fishing research at Charleston.

Tishing at Charleston.

The fishing season at Charleston lake has opened considerably earlier this year than for some years past, and in the last few days some very good catches of salmon have been reported. Several parties from Cornwall, Prescott, Brockville and elsewhere have already visited the lake, and in conversation with a Reporter representative sage, and this house promises of more popular than ever this season.

The snug, tidy, comfortable little school house at McIntosh Mills is receiving a finishing touch in enclosing the grounds with a handsome novel wire fence furnished by Mr. George Gardner, Yonge Mills. It will compare favorably with any other site in the township.

Mr. Jock Fergusson, Caintown, has a heifer and a bull calf eleven months old, (Ayrshire and Short horf), that surpass anything we have ever seen, near this locality, for beauty and size.

Mr. Fergusson must have some art of kindness and attention which everyone don't understand, for he certaintly at me were fed them any grain. Perhaps he learned it in the wild woods where he has spent a great deal of time in former years in camp life, having been one of the most successful local hunters we have any record of. But more of this anon.

Several parties from Cornwall, Prescott, Brockville and elsewhere have and in conversation with a Reporter representative the lake, and in conversation with a Reporter representative the beauty of the lake, the excellent fishing and above all the excellent accommodations and courtesy of the managers of the Cedar Park Hotel. In passing, we might say that Mrs. Armstrong, the owner, assisted by Mr. J. P.
