Hampton Court

It was just before he became a cardinal that Thomas Wolsey, on Jan. 11th, 1515, took a ninety-nine years lease of the manor of Hampton Court from the Knights Hospitaller of St. of Jerusalem, and at once set about building the magnificent pile which remains his most enduring monument. There appears to have been here an earlier manor house or mansion, for there is a record of Henry the Seventh visiting it a few for there is a record of ars before the lease was granted; it probably Wolsey did away entirewith the older building and plan-the whole place anew. The whole palace was of red brick, and surmounted by many castellated topped by ornamental lead The western portion of the buildings probably gives is a very fair idea of the whole as it was planned though all the turrets from this aspect are wanting their cupolas, though the gatehouse is less lofty than it was originally and though some more westerly buildings have disappeared. scribed it as the most splendid, most magnificant royal palace of any to be found in England or any other king-dom, and the details which he gives seem to bear this out. More especial was he struck by what a later verse writer described as "that most pompous room called Paradise," a room which, according to the ducal description, "captivates the eyes of all wife enter by the dazzling of pearls of all and "in particular there is one apartment belonging to the Queen, in which she is accustomed to sit in beyond every tapesthies are garnished with gold, pearls and precious stones—one table cover alone is valued at above fifty thousand crowns—not to mention the royal throne which is studded with very large diamonds, rubies, sap-phires and the like that glitter among other precious stones and pearls is the sun among the stars."

The casual visitor to Hampton Court prebably carries away two or three definite impressions of the place, of a medley of decorated chimneystacks, of warm red bricks, of cool quadrangles, of broad lawns and blaz-ing flower beds, of an outlook over a boat-dotted river, of galleries filled with a bewildering succession of old paintings, of tapestried walls-and of the whole set amid stretching tree-grown levels. It is, however, necessary to know the place closely to appreciate it fully—it grows upon one, as the saying is; we should have seen the homely court of the Master Carpenter as well as the stately Fountain Court, the sculptures in the gardens as well as the encycluoyaedic clock, the kitchen as well as the pictuer galleries, to have lingered about the wilderness in the spring as well greatest heat, across the equator, as to have seen the Broad Walk in and then on to the southern edge of the blaze of summer, to have vistied some of the residences as well as to have passed through the public galleries, to have been about it at all seasons and not merely to have scampered through it as the central incident in a half-day's excursion. It is, indeed, properly a place for restful enjoyment rather than for hurried sight-seeing, though a hurried glimpse may well prove a provocation to further visits and more leisurely inspection.

The beautiful red brickwork, various castellated turrets, and the clusters of decorated chimneys, with the quaintly carved beasts se the quaintly carved beasts seemingly tobogganing down the gables of the wings, together form a fine example of Tudor architecture, though the appearance would have been still better had the gatehouse, when restored in the district the contract of the con eighteenth century, been kept its original proportions, and had the leaden cupolas not been removed from leaden cupolas not been removed from the many turrets. Two or three of those turrets that remain in other those turrets that remain in their these turrets that remain in other parts of the buildings retain their cupolas, to indicate how fine must have been the whole effect before any had been removed.—Walter Jerrold

HEALTH FOR THE BABY

The baby of to-day is the man or woman of to-morrow. Thus the suc-cess of the future man or woman depends upon the the baby is sickly and illnourished it is not to be expected that he will grow into a strong, active man who will hold his own in the business world a few years hence.

Mothers, it is a duty you owe the future to keep your little ones well now. This can be easily done if Baby's Own Tablets are kept in the house. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative, which regulate the box and sweeten the stomach, and thus make baby healthy and strong. Concerning them Mrs. W. Orser, Elginburg, Ont., writes: "I have a fine, healthy boy three years, and have used Baby's Own Tablets for him ever since he was a small baby. I certainly think them a splendid medicine." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealer or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE ARCTIC TERN.

Birds Are Greatest Daylight Savers in the World.

The greatest daylight saver in the world—the Arctic tern! Many years before the Clumsy Mortal began to puzzle his brain with a scheme to utilize the extra hour of daylight, the Arctic tern had discovered how it was possible to spend over half the year in regions where the hair the year in regions where the sun never sets. Could the above men-tioned C. M. follow his example, the lighting problem would vanish into nothingness. And this is how the ingenious bird manages:

He has his summer home in the Arctic circle, the Land of the Midnight Sun, where, for many weeks, darkness is unknown. When he sees the sun making his way alarmingly near the horizon, finally dipping for a few hours each day out of sight, he begins to think of his winter home in the Antarctic circle, even though twilight and dawn still overlap so that it is never dark.

"This is God's own country in the summer, but it belongs to the Prince of Darkness in the winter," he says to himself, and bids Mrs. Tern and children prepare for their yearly trip south. Nor do they stop at Palm Beach Nor do they stop at Palm Beach, for the tern is one who does every-thing thoroughly. If he wants day-light and sunlight, it is not for an eight-hour day, but for the whole twenty-four hours. If he goes south he stops barely short of the South he stops barely short of the South Pole. It is an eleven thousand mile trip, but the Tern family are good fliers, and can easily make two or three hundred miles a day without motor trouble

SAUSAGE RECIPES.

Nothing so quite fills the bill on cold winter morning as nicely browned sausage in some shape or form.
If you are one of those who disapprove of meat for breakfast then apply these sausage suggestions to your winter luncheon menus. They are suitable for either. PIGS IN BLANKETS.

Roll each link of sausage in either a thin slice of bacon or of cold boiled ham, fasten it with a toothpick and fry slowly, turning continually until the bacon or ham is crisp. There is just enough difference in the flavor of the two to give the dish piquancy SAUSAGE BAKED IN APPLIES.

Now fry your sausages, not too brown, put one link in the centre of each apple, set all into the over for a few mixtures. into the oven for a few minutes, sprinkling the apple with just the very smallest amount of sugar, and cover them with the sausage gravy.

SAUSAGE CROQUETTES This is a nice way to use left-ove cooked sausage. Roll the small pieces in left-over mashed potatoes into which a little milk and an egg have been mixed. Shape into croquette and fry slowly in deep fat. SAUSAGE OMELET.

This is also a suggestion for sausage left-over. Make your omeiet as usual, and just before you turn its assumption of the property of th as usual, and just before you turn its scatter over it your sausage sliced into very thin pieces. Season with a little parsley, if you like, but the beauty of all sausage dishes is that they need very little seasoning because of the highly seasoned forcement in the sausages themselves.

VIENNA'S IMPERIAL PLAY-HOUSES.

Occupying a full square block the famous Ringstrasse in Vienna stands the Imperial Opera House. Two bronze figures, symbolic of m left and right wings of the building. These and the ornamental candelabrae at the entrance were signed by Fritz Zenitsch.

The opera house, erected in 1861-9 is four storeys high, with five front entrances and six side ones, built entirely of white stone. It is of Vene tian style, principally of the Renaissance period, with a mixture of French architecture of the same time.

Directly on the main avenue is halcony above the entrance over are five arches, each having a statue of a renowned musician. At the extreme sides, slightly higher, are two imposing bronze figures seated upon a horse. This section, therefore, projects outward over the leading doorway the opera house itself seeming like the opera house itself seeming like a distinct building. One of the attrac-tive features of the interior are the 138 windows of French style which are latticed above by smaller round openings and railed in completely by white bars.

Scenes depicted from "The Magic Flute" form frescoes in the loggia. The foyer is resplendent in a color scheme of red and gold. Many heavy bronze doors lead into the foyer, some being draped with red plush curtains. An old marble mantelpiece stands one end, with a carved and gilded grating.

The ceiling is ornamented by rare paintings; at the sides are busts of composers. The walls are enriched with wreaths of flowers and fruits with wreaths of flowers and fruits a half bud of garlic, six cloves and chiselled in stone, making a decidedly seasoning. Boil gently for half an

Recipes for Fish

Flounders, politely called "sole" when filleted, have become a fish standby with the housewife, and it is a pity that more of the women do not learn to fillet em at home, as well as the art of serving them in greater varieties of ways. In buying fish we may pay for skin, bones and trimmings, then accept the fillets, and leave the rest behind. French women and their English sisters demand the trimmings for constant trimmings for fumettes, gravy stock for immediate use and rtock for chowders, souns or jelly foundations.

In choosing flounders, the short broad, thick and firm flesh are best Clastic to touch, skin firm, clean and cool, eyes full gills fresh and red-these are the points to judge fish by. Although the flat fishes are better for seeping than the large fat ones, it is seet to scale and clean them, rubbing inside and out with a little salt, then wrap them in a dry linen towel, and place on ice as soon as brought from the market. If they are to be used immediately they can be filleted befor

THE FLAVOR OF FISH.

The flavor of a fish depends largely a its feeding grounds, which also influences its color. To fillet a sole lay it on a fish board, head to the nand; sharp knife cut right around the fish just inside the ridge of side bones, then loosen the ridge of side bones, then loosen the fillet from the backbone, rolling the meat back over the left hand. Reverse the fish and repeat the operations on This leaves a fish the other side. This leaves a fish skeleton. Lay the fillets, skin side, down, on the board and run the knife down as close to the skin as possible, their cut the fillets into any shape and

If to be fried or cooked in a casserole, then they should be cut up in suitable pieces. Boneless fish put on in cold water require only a few minutes to cook, after it begins to boil, which it should very gently.

POILED FISH. Boiled or 'ric' fish should be carefully drained in each case and served in a napkin with the sauce in a hor gravy boat. Boiled fish may be placed on a buttered dish, after draining, dusted with seasoning, dotted with little lumps of butter and dusted with grated chees then lightly browned in the oven. A thin cream sauce is often served with fish cooked this way.

ST. HELENA

"Saint Helena, the island whose specialty is the entertainment of deposed monarchs, has good economic reasons for its reported design to have the kaiser for a prisoner," says a builetin from the U. S. National Geographic society's Washington headquarters.

"Napoleon was its most famous and best-paying guest, though not the only one. Dinizulu, a Zulu king, was a more recent exile, sent there after he led a rebellion against the British in the Transvaal in 1889. While Napoleon was at Saint Helena, "profiteering" at the expense of the Bonaparte household and the numerous members of the garrison sent to guard him, was reduced to a fine art by the island crizens.

"In fact it was the high cost of Saint Helena living which created part of the friction between Napoleon and the British governor of the Island, Sir Hudson Lowe. Instead of living within the 8,600 pounds sterling allowed for maintenance of Bonaparte and the half-hundred members of his entourage, the bills for a year mounted to three times that sum. Upon complaint of the governor, afteredy hone too popular, that furson the science of the galeries' by ordering his silver sold and his bed broken up for wood, which, when reported in England, created so; much criticism of the governor, afready none too popular, that furson, and the silver sold and his bed broken up for wood, which, when reported in England, created so; much criticism of the governor, afready none too popular, that furson these playing and digging in his garden. Like the former kaiser, he sperit many hours with the Bible. He professed no piety, however, franking in his garden. Like the former kaiser, he sperit many hours with the sanction, and he also spoke of wax making a study of certain Old Testand and 1,250 miles from the nearest land, Ascension island, and 1,250 miles from the nearest land, Ascension island, and 1,250 miles from the nearest land, Ascension priest riding horseback in a coat similar to Napoleon's believing the comparisor time.

s created considerable amusement. Sir Hudsson was greatly disturbed one day to find a newly-arrived Cosican priest riding horsebuck in a coat similar to Napoleons's, believing the compatriot is volved in a plot to deceive the guards. The French commissioner complained that the sight of a passing dog was enough to induce the governor to plant a new is sentinel on the spht; but perhaps the most extreme of the many amusing stories of Lowe's solicitude was the occasion of his protest against Napoleon's planting some white and green beans, sensing in this combination of colors a subtle-allusion to the white flag of the Bourbons and the distinctive Breen uniform of the general.

"Living almost wholly within two rooms and his garden, Napoleon insisted on all the pomp she ceremony pessible in such cramped quarters. Since his companions necessarily were much in his presence, is insistence tipos their standing synetimes brought them to the point of fainting. Note might speak unless spoken to and all became extremely bored with coint life in a shanty involving all the burdens without any of the splendors of a palace.

"At first the exile rode horseback, but soon abandoned that rather than have an English guard along. His secusion is best attested by the fact that for five of his six years stay he did not exchange a word with the governor; and of the three commissioners—Russian. Austlan and French-sojourning there by the previsions of a treaty to assure themselves of his presence, one saw him through a telescope cnee, a second looked into his face for the first time when he was to be buried, and the third assure the was to be buried, and the third assure the was to be buried, and the third assure themselves of his presence, one saw him he was to be buried, and the third assure themselves of his presence, one saw him he was to be buried, and the third assure themselves of his presence, one the when he was to be buried, and the third assure themselves of his presence, one that the saw the surface for the first time when he w through a telescope time, a second look-ed into his face for the first time when he was to be buried, and the third saw him not at all.

"Napeleon's days at Saint Helena were not whelly devoted to killing memories and military commentaries, while a num-ber of his associates lated added to these diaries, conversations and memories of their own, inaccurate or deliberately mis-leading in large-would se called gropaganda. It was highly effective propaganda, too. Though Napoleon's excape was prevented by vigilance to an absured degree, and though the effect of his winning personality was guarded against by forbidding visitors to see him, his writings and those of Montholon and Las. Cases resulted in the royalistic 'flareback' that put his nephew on the throne of France. It was to Napoleon III that Queen Victoria presented Longwood, where Napoleon lived and died while at Saint Helena. 'Geographically, Saint Helena is peculiarly fitted for an island prison. Its volcanle formation accounts for a half circle of mountains which permit only one landing place—that at the island's single port and city, Jamestown. Uninhabited when discovered 10 years after Columbus sailed for America, the island was settled by British, Dutch and Portuguese. In the days of sailing vessels and before the Suez canal was opened, the islanders thrived by providing supplies for passing vessels. With the passing of this market for their meats and vegetables, the island's principal industries waned and the inhabitants dwindled until there are now only about 3,500 persons as compared with twice that many residents 30 years ago. The island belongs to Great Britain and it administered directly by the crown."
