Just then a sharp knock at the door.

"Come in," said the pastor.

The door opened, and the portly form of the publican from across the street appeared in the doorway. He said:

"Gentlemen, knowing this to be your negular meeting might, I decided to come over and inform you that I and my family have made up our minds to join your church, and help along the good work you are doing."

This speech was greeted with dumb astonishment by the members of the board. Dr Williamson (the pastor) was the first to speak.

"Have you given up the pupilic-house humans of and the stronger, the steadier and the safer to-day because the first to speak.

"Have you given up the pupilic-house humans of and varied population. We are corry enough that

"Harv you given up the pupiic-house business?" said he.

"No, sir," replied the publican.

"Are you going to?"

"No, sir," replied the publican.

"Are you going to?"

"No, sir," I am conducting a respectable place, and see no reason why I should."

"W-e-i-l," slowly replied the pastor, "our church rules prohibit us fr. m taking in flealers in intoxicating indurer, and for that reason we must refuse you."

"Oh," said the publican, a flush of anger coming into his already florid face, "I was not aware of that. On what ground does your church rules to feel the flush of the mare not such purblind fools as be a law to keep them out. We want lock as a law to keep them out want is as only the lock as a law to keep them out. No reply; but two very sed faces showed who had been hit.

'Do you know that I get my license fee?"

"Hold on," said Judge Grant; 'did not make the laws, and I am compelled by the licensing laws to grant license is therefore I am not responsible."

"Well, the law was en ct-d by Mr Smith there and other voters."

"You can't place the responsible to the wishes of showed who elected me. Had I been elected on the prohibition platform, I would have voted for a prohibitor, and I voted for the law."

"I would have voted for a prohibitor, and I voted for the law."

"I would have voted for a prohibitor, and I voted for the law."

"I now believed in license. Now, I am positively told that I cannot join the beaven and i voted for the law."

"I would have read that all that voted for you believed in license. The above are a few tenets in the devil's philosophy. How do they strike you? Are they sound! If they are, then saloons, horse races, gambling den, brothels, prize fighting, etc., should be asstained and encouraged as situators in morals. Stragge, indeed, that some professed Christians think the devil's philosophy is sound.—Religious Telazops.

A Short and Ever True Story.

The official board of a prominent Methodiat Episcopal Church was in session, discussing the advisability of giving letters to twenty-seven of its members who wished to withdraw because the Ohurch opposed their prohibition sentiments.

"I don't understand what these fanatiall prohibitionists want," as id the Hon.
Mr Smith, "Our Church, as a Church, has declared that the "liquor traffic cannot be legalized without sia, and nothing stronger than that could be uttered. The man who sells liquor for a living is worse than
