> DEATH OF MRS. GLASS. - One of the oldest settlers in Ontario passed away on Thursday norning in the person of Mrs. Christian Glass, relict of the late Henry Glass, registrar of Lambton. She was in her 82nd year. In 1811, while yet a child, she left her native place, the ale of Wight, with her father, and settled in the eastern part of the province. She camped at one time on the site of what is now the town of Perth. Upon the death of her husband in 1866, she left Sarma, where she had long resided, and took up her residence with her neice, Mrs. McLean, wife of Dr. Mc-Lean. She was a sister in-law of Wm. Kay merchant, of this town. Her remains will be taken to Sarnia today interment. Mrs. Glass had been in feeble health for several years past; but her interest in things of a religious and charitable character was keen and practical. She was a very benevolent woman, but made little noise about her benefactions, and she goes to a sure and certain reward. Among other things he said that the day was long gone when it was necessary to apologise for the work of the Union. The necessity was self-evident, and the result of their work was self-evident too. Their motto was a grand one, "For God, Home and Native Land." Their work would only be finished when that band of noble women come marching from would only be finished when that band of noble women come marching from victory bearing their cheaves with them. the grain of which would never again be crushed in a distillery. The W.C.T.U. stood before the county as representing the Home. The speaker glanced at the great work being done across the line by the Union. In Outario the Union had honeycombed the province, and branches were continually being estabbranches were continually being estab-lished. We had now 162 unions, with a membership of over 4,000. Mr. John-ston said that he never knew any society which accomplished as much work with so little outlay. The secret was that the work was planned by the members while on their knees. He then paid a tribute to the press, and showed how the Christian Temperance women had influenced that great social lever. The work of the Union was traced among the young, and also showed its benign influence in the arena of politics and medicine, as well as the more social aspects of life. The address gave evidence of a thorough grasp of the work done by the W.C.T.U.

Mr. A. B. Henderson. DEAR SIR, -On this the eve of your departure from among us, we, the mem-bers of the North St. Methodist Choir, desire to express our regret at the re-moval of so valued a member from our number. From your first association with us, (now nearly four years ago), up to the present we have been more than delighted with your kindness and geniality, and your readiness to assist in any and every good work, and we feel that it is largely owing to your cultured taste and richness of voice, combined with your unassuming demeanor, that we as a choir enjoy our present reputation, Wherever your lot may be cast, our thoughts will follow you in kind remem brance, and we are sure that if you continue to make "Excelsior" your motto, you, as a vocalist, will soon occupy an enviable position in the musical world. As the souvenir of the pleasant times we have had tegether be pleased to accept this ring, which loving hearts now pres ent to you, and whenever you look upon it, we hope it may recal to your mind pleasant memories in connection with our Choir; and, our earnest desire is, that if our voices no more combine in sweet harmony on earth, in the "Sweet By and By" we may all join to swell the pealing choruses of the skies.

It Knox church on Friday evening last. It is estimated that over 600 persons sat down at the refreshment tables during the evening. The tables were well stocked, neatly decorated and admirably served. Indeed, a more efficient corps of waiters it would be hard to find. The ladies who had the management of the proceedings down stairs, and their youthful assistants, deserve praise for their thoroughness and energy. After the large company had been served below stairs, the concert was proceeded with in the main body of the church. Rev. Dr. Ure occupied the chair. The choir in the main body of the church. Rev. Dr. Ure occupied the chair. The choir opened with an authem, and a brief congratalatory address was delivered by Rev. W. Johnson, of St George's church. An amusing and instructive address on "Our Boys," by Rev. G. F. Salton was received by young and old with tokens of appreciation. Mr. Salton is possessed of a rare fund of humor, and as his drollery was allied to instruction the speech proved to be a popular one. Miss Wynn sang "Send Down Thy Blessing" with sweetness and feeling. Blessing" with sweetness and feeling.

Mr. Maloomson gave a reading in his usual comical fashion, for of course the reading was a Scotch one, and a funny one. Mrs. Mc-Arthur, of Hamilton, sang "Must I Leave Thee, Paraduse?" in a style that captivated the vast audience, and an captivated the vast audience, and an encore was insisted upon. She was in beautiful voice, and its natural sweetness, her distinct articulation, and her modest manner delighted every listener. "Cloud Capped Towers," a chorus by the choir, was well rendered. Mr. A. B. Henderson gave "Gates of the West," in splendid voice, and was heartily applauded. A humorous recitation by Rev. Mr. Calvert, "The Charity Dinner," followed. Mr. J. Vizzard, tenor, made his first appearance in Goderich as a soloist in "Thou Art so Near and Yet so Far," but was so overcome with nervousness that he could not do justice to his voice. With more confidence in himself he ought to beable to sing a good solo. Mrs. McArthur again appeared in "Tender and True," and in response to a well deserved encore sang "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep," with great aweet ness and tenderness. The audience was delighted with the singing of this popular vocalist. Miss Wynn followed with "Guide me, O Thou Great Jehovah," "Guide me, O Thou Great Jehovah," which she sang with good expression. We are pleased to see that this young singer is studiously improving herself in the vocal art. Her singing on Friday evening was most creditable, and her kindness in assisting at public concerts in Goderich is deserving of recognition. The Lucknow Jeweller Again in the Tells

Charged with Counterfeiting, etc.

From the Hamilton Spectator. A couple of years since a reporter of the Spectator endeavored to convict O. G. Martin, a jeweller of Blyth, on the charge of selling and offering to sell begus money, which Martin had been doing under the assumed name of W. A. Garland. The game he worked was a deliberate swindle, somewhat amilar to the sawdust swindle that flourished to a great extent in the States some years the sawdust swindle that flourished to a great extent in the States some years ago. Martin had no bogus money, though he doubtless made hundreds of foolish people believe that he had, profiting well by their creduity. However, in the face of the strungest evidence against him he was found not guilty on two indictments made against him. The Martin family flourishes strong in Huron county, and their influence got him off. The jurors subsequently explained their failure to conviot by saying that he was somewhat shy in intellect and made him-The jurors subsequently explained their failure to convict by saying that he was somewhat shy in intellect and made himself a criminal, not for profit, but because a salary of $50. These circulars came under the notice of that clever Provincial de-tective, Joa. E. Rogers, who made vari-ous attempts to nab Martin again. Cun-ning Martin fought aby for a long while. After considerable inquiry the astute detective found a man in Guelph who had sent Martin $10, but had received no reply. Rogers induced him to write again and ask what he could get for another $10. In a couple of days Martin wrote that he would send $300 for this sum. The $10 was sent and the was marked. More, the letter was accompanied by a man who watched drawer 41 and finally saw the letter taken from there by O. G. Martin's young brother. He followed the brother, and saw him hand the letter to O. G. Martin, and saw O. G. Martin read it and stow it away. Conclusive evidence this, but better fellowed. A week elapsed and the individual in Guelph got no reply. Then detective Rogers appeared again upon the scene, and made things interesting for Mr. Martin with that determination and success that is characteristic of him. The detective swore out a warrant charg-ing Martin with offering forged bank ing Martin with offering forged bank notes; with receiving money under false pretenses, and with inciting the Guelph individual to commit a felony by purchasing forged bank notes. Last Wednesday evening the detective went to Lucknow, and on Thursday morning hearrested him at his store. Martin looked arrested him at his store. Martin looked as if lightning had struck him for an instant, but recovered enough to protest his innocence vigorously and make an extensive kiek when Rogers undertook to search the safe. He became so violent in his objections that he had to be handcuffed. The safe yielded 300 circulars and the safe yielded 300 circulars. culars, a large amount of letters from victims and a pile of crisp new Domin-ion $1 piles that he used for samples.
