

From Day to Day

(Thursday's Daily)
SOCIAL.

The friends of Mrs. W. E. Nobles, 240 Sixth street, will sympathize deeply with her in the sudden death of her mother, Mrs. King, wife of Senator King, of Chipman, N.B. Mrs. Nobles will consequently not receive tomorrow or her regular reception day for some time.

Mrs. T. F. S. Jackson was the hostess at a very bright tea yesterday afternoon in honor of her sister, Mrs. Anderson, of High River. Mrs. Hislop and Mrs. Charlesworth did the honors of the tea-room, presiding at the tea table, which was centred by a silver basket of exquisite roses, ferns and hyacinths. Mrs. Allan Fraser served the tea. The young ladies assisting in the tea room were Miss McLean, Miss McKenny, Miss Pruyne and Miss Simpson.

A thoroughly enjoyable luncheon yesterday had for hostess Mrs. LeMaistre, who received her guests in a becoming reception gown of black silk, green and white, with jet trimmings. Covers were laid for twelve at the luncheon table, which was artistically arranged with carnations and hyacinths as decorations. The guests included Mrs. Beck, Mrs. Pardee, Mrs. Turnbull, Mrs. McManis, Mrs. Emery, Mrs. Cassidy, Mrs. Jellie, Mrs. Barnes, Mrs. Almon, Mrs. Barford and Mrs. Boucher.

The dance given last night in Rennie's academy by several young bachelors of Edmonton was a most enjoyable affair. The walls of the ball-room were effectively decorated with flags and the floor was in excellent condition. The stewards of the dance, Messrs. C. E. Barry, A. Boleau, H. A. Mackie, Louis Madore, H. Girouard and C. Gariepy, were untiring throughout the evening to ensure the pleasure of the guests. Excellent music was furnished by an orchestra. Shortly after midnight, a tempting supper was served in the supper-room, the long table being prettily decorated with crimson and white carnations and smilax. The chaplains were Madame Gariepy, who wore black silk with black lace trimmings and crimson flowers; Madame Lachance in black and white, with jet-trimmings; and Madame Tardif, who wore black mouseline de soie over taffeta. Among other ladies present were Mrs. Beck, wearing a rich gown of black silk and net with handsome jet trimmings; Mrs. Auguste Noel in a very handsome gown of black sequined chiffon trimmings, crimson carnations; Madame Tessier, wearing black mouseline de soie over taffeta. The complete list of the gentlemen who gave the delightful dance in Rennie's academy Wednesday night are as follows: Messrs. Arsenault, C. E. Barry, J. A. Bernard, A. de Bernis, A. Boleau, A. Bonneau, J. N. Bonneau, C. Bourgeois, Darrigan, A. M. Dechene, L. Dubuc, J. Durand, J. M. Dechene, A. Dubuc, A. L. Feypell, H. Girouard, J. C. Gariepy, A. C. de L. Harwood, P. Lacharme, P. Lambert, J. Landry, G. A. Leduc, H. L. Landry, J. E. Laurenceau, J. LeFranc, H. A. Mackie, Louis Madore, H. Milton Martin, C. J. McNeil, J. N. Tessier, Emile Tessier, J. E. Theriault, with the following committee in charge: Louis Madore, C. E. Barry, A. Boleau, C. Gariepy, H. A. Mackie, H. Girouard.

OUR WINTER.

The winter speeds his fairies forth and mocks Poor bidden men with laughter icy cold, Turning the brown of youth to white and With hoary women locks, And gray men young with roses in their cheeks.

"And when night comes, his spirits with chill feet, Winged with white mirth and noiseless windows, Across men's pallid windows peer and fleet, And smiling slyly, Draw with mute fingers on the frosted glass, Quiet fairy shapes of iced wickeries.

MODERN FICTION'S HEROINE.

A recent reviewer says some plain truths about the heroines of the majority of our short stories, and many of our books. It is a type new to the English literature, a product of the last decade—these "champagne-witted women" and "thin-lipped Delilahs."

This party reviewer accounts for them as an antidote to the breezy athletic type, which was becoming passe as an author's lay-figure. There are other and more disagreeable reasons for the introduction of this realistic late type of heroine, one would venture to say looking out upon modern social conditions.

But this is what masculine reviewer has to say, and says in picturesque fashion.

"It was in consequence of a misreading of what most interests man in womanly character that resulted, he says, 'in the importation of those formidable women into fiction who with all their wit and resources, have added nothing to its morality. First, she was the athletic, snuggled heroine who strided into or novels about ten years ago, slipped the hero on the back with the convulsed air of one who didn't care a fig whether he proposed or not. All the reviewers called her 'breezy' and she made a perfect padlock of fiction till the average reader discovered that she was a lad in books and out of them, a male-natured abstraction of femininity by no means as characteristic of womanhood as was the deer-eyed lambkin heroine who figured in earlier romances."

"Even the hero was gnawing his mustache with annoyance, and looking disgustedly after the young Diana who borrowed his leggings and carried ride belts with such a grotesque imitation of the sportsman air. And when we think what frightful pervasions of type the hero has had to contend with in the heroine of late years, it is enough to account for some of his unheroic and unloverlike manners to them!"

"Something had to be done and it was done. The 'good fellow' heroine gave way to that innumerable, single, capable company of mature women who have overrun fiction for the past five or six years. This lipped Delilahs who make anonymous confession of their shame, loto-s attracted married women who have been oppressed and so damaging to the opposite sex."

"No one will deny that they have femininity, but such Machiavellian femininity! It is not good for us. Nobody ever likes it, even if we have to admit its fascinations. What we want is more young, sweet, innocent girls in fiction and fewer champagne-witted women. The girls make the right kind of heroine for love stories. Married women with sons on the battlefield make the most suitable heroines for epics, but the place for such characters as Miss Ricker's 'Folly' is the house of correction, not a romance."

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The marriage and unmarried ladies of St. Joachim's church will meet at the Presbytery on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock to consider arrangements for some parish work. All ladies of the congregation are invited to attend.

Saturday's Daily. Speaker John Reid is home on Friday after the opening, he expects by the grace of good weather and a through train service to return in time for the trip much earlier on Monday. He will be back in time to make the connection.

Deputy arrived in the city yesterday from Pincher Creek having spent nearly a week on the road. He says that some years ago he made the trip much earlier, but he says though he has no particular taste for cross country riding at the present time.

Mr. M. McAuley will talk of old times in Edmonton at the Canadian Club on Monday. Mr. McAuley is a well known home relating incidents of the old days and a very interesting meeting is expected. The old office rebellion will be effectively described.

A proposition is on foot to hold weekly meetings of the Canadian Club during the season of the legislature, in a discussion of the subjects of each meeting. The executive of the club will make the members of the legislature honorary members of the club during the session.

A horse attached to an Acme Co. delivery rig created a stir on Jasper street this morning. The animal was released when he started running at the east end and made a record run westward as far as Howard street, where he was caught by a policeman while making the circle. No damage was done.

The trains from Calgary are running pretty well on time now as they are not waiting for any eastern connections at Calgary, the main line trains all being hours, and some of them days late. For three days there has been no mail into Calgary from the east. The snow blockade in the vicinity of Brandon is very high. Society promises to be well represented at "The Private Secretary" on Monday night. In home, at special functions and on the street corner on the play and the players is general. The Opera House will doubtless present an excellent evening of the last night of the season.

Mr. Burnett and D. C. Taylor, who were in charge of a party who left here in October for the Touchwood Lake country, returned to the city yesterday. There is plenty of snow in that country the trip from Lac La Biche having taken ten days. The weather, too, has been very cold, at least fifteen degrees colder than Edmonton.

There is an active movement in Edmonton real estate just now, particularly north of Jasper avenue. Whole blocks of property have recently changed hands at very much advanced figures. The streets running north from Jasper from Namyaw to First street are all being regarded as of important value, and prices are advancing accordingly.

The plan for the seats for the play "The Private Secretary" on Monday night was opened yesterday morning at tea and there evening almost all of the reserved seats were taken. Evidently they will be a very large attendance. The plan for Tuesday night is also being rapidly filled. The seats for the Government House party will be reserved for both nights.

Messrs. E. H. Riley and J. B. Holder were present at the meeting of the legislature on Monday evening. They will be followed by Mr. Robertson, leader of the opposition, who is being followed by Premier Bennett. This will be a very interesting session of the House and will probably be well attended. The debate on the address is not expected to last long as the discussion of the government's policy will be taken up more fully in EDMONTON CAPITAL IN P. C.

(Wednesday's Daily) A valuable area of timber lands has recently been acquired by the Edmonton Logging Co. from the government of British Columbia whereby the company has secured 20,480 acres of property in the northern part of Vancouver Island.

The company was incorporated under the laws of British Columbia some months ago and the president, Mr. Robert Lee of the firm of Craig & Lee has just returned from the coast where he had been in connection with the property.

The limits are situated on the northern part of the Island in the vicinity of Kim Lake and the Robert district. The area has not been operated before and is principally composed of fir with some spruce, cedar and spruce. It is estimated that there are 600,000,000 feet of lumber upon the holdings.

Operations were commenced several weeks ago by the owners and there are now two steam tug boats and two donkey engines in operation. The lumber is as yet being cut in log form only, but it is expected that mills may later be erected.
