PERCIE JOHNSON, Agent
MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES ALL GET IT CURE

Serving Two Masters.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

"But father says I can."
"That doesn't matter. You are with me now, and you must do as I say."
"But father says—"
"That will do, Philip. Run right along now, and don't say anything more unless you want me to take you right home."
The youngster turned away with an obstinate look on his small face which seemed to say, "Just wait till I get father to back me." While the little mother, who sat beside me on the bench in the park, gave a worried sigh. It was apparently a familiar situation with which she was dealing and quite evidently one which she did not like.
Can you blame her?
It is not the easiest thing in the world in these strenuous times for a father and mother to command a child's obedience with all the force of her united authority. What is likely to happen, then, when the house is divided against itself?
Suppose there were two supreme courts in the United States with equal authority? What a state of chaos we should have! And yet, in how many homes there are two supreme courts, each giving out judgments independently of each other, one most severe in its ruling in one direction and lenient in another; the other just the opposite. What wonder that the clever child learns to appeal from one court to another and to obey the decision which he likes the best! What wonder that the chief justices of these supreme courts often have very bitter disagreements as a result of this chaotic condition!

"My husband and I," she declares, "made it one of our strongest rules never to knowingly give the children conflicting orders and never to argue about their discipline in their presence. If I have given any command which he did not approve of, he would stand by it until we could get together privately and discuss the matter and come to some decision about it. When we had done that, if we thought best we sometimes reversed the command, but we did it together."
Perhaps that is not the simplest course in the world to follow, but surely you will own it is the wisest.

FOR WOMEN ONLY.

That is the nature of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—the one remedy for women which contains no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs. Made from native medicinal forest roots. Dr. Pierce tells its every ingredient on the bottle-wrapper. Prominent physicians and some of the best medical authorities endorse these ingredients as being the very best known remedies for ailments and weaknesses peculiar to women.

This is what Mrs. GENETT E. COFFEY, of Longstreet, Ky., says: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you what your medicines have done for me. I was a great sufferer for six years from a trouble peculiar to women, but I am thankful to say, after taking four bottles of your Favorite Prescription I am not bothered with that dreadful disease any more. I feel like a new woman. When I first wrote you for advice I only weighed 115 pounds—now I weigh 135. I thank you very much for your kindness. You have been as a father to me in advising me what to do, so may God bless you in every effort you put forth for good. I hope this testimonial will be the means of some poor suffering woman seeking health."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition, answers hundreds of delicate questions about which every woman, single or married ought to know.

Fads and Fashions.

The Directoire collar is the new note in neckwear.
Shoes in all colors are being worn to match the frock.
Deep rose brocade patterns in gold are much in evidence.
High collars are coming in again, and so are long, set-in sleeves.
Spats are much in favor, even striped ones being seen abroad.
Draped and pleated effects in skirts are gaining in favor.
Small flat bows of velvet ribbon or silk are popular trimming.
Touches of brilliant coloring are used upon many of the smart suits.
Wide belts and girdles of leather, ribbon, satin or silk are much worn.
Long sleeves and draperies are very evident in the newest costumes.
Piping as an ornamentation is still very fashionable on silk and wool suits.

The apache collar has close rivals in the Robespierre and modified Medical collars.
The normal waist-line will return. This permits of wearing belts and girdles.
Wraps both for day and evening show a tendency to the three-quarter length.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CO., LIMITED
GENTLEMEN.—Last August my horse was badly cut in eleven places by a barbed wire fence. Three of the cuts, (small ones) healed soon, but the others became foul and rotten, and though I tried many kinds of medicine they had no beneficial result. At last a doctor advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and in four weeks' time every sore was healed and the hair has grown over each one in fine condition. The Liniment is certainly wonderful in its working.
JOHN R. HOLDEN.
Witness, Perry Baker.

Swansdown is seen again on charming little shoulder wraps for evening. Hats are still rather low on the head, but show more of the hair than formerly.
Parasols are of colored and white linen, embroidered or plain, to match the gown.
In Paris sleeve frills are very important; also jabot frills with vests and revers.
Women are once more wearing the old cream-tinted Spanish lace for evening scarfs.
Leather handbags promise to have things all their own way rather than fancy bags.
The dominant style tendency is better described by Directoire than anything else.
Buttons of crystal, pearl with rims of color and covered moths are still being used.
Carved crystals are a charming jewelry novelty. Often they are mounted in platinum.
Embroidered batiste and voile is much used to fashion the large square, round or biblike collars.
The midsummer hat is made of tulle, and there is much use of aigrettes, paradise and wigs.

SOPER & MOORE

Cuba.

BY H. L. RANN.

Cuba is a three cornered section of uninterrupted hell with which your Uncle Samuel was gold-bricked by Spain a few years ago. It was discovered by Columbus, who never forgave himself. Columbus did not stay long after learning what band of climate the Cubans were using, and sailed away as soon as he could get rid of some of the insect life of which every Cuban is so justly proud. Soon afterward Spain, which was looking for a cheap form of slow death for some of her undesirable citizens, came over to Cuba and took down the smallpox signs which Columbus had hung on the brow of Morro Castle, after which she populated the island with bug-proof patriots and set them to counterfeiting the Havana filler. From that day to this Cuba hasn't grown anything but tobacco and nine different shades of pestiferous purgatory. Whenever Spain would send over her standing army to bring order out of chaos, the Cubans would collect a battalion of native tarantulas, milk-fed mosquitoes and unemployed typhus germs, and turn them loose upon the Spanish soldiery as they were wrapped in slumber and the well known Cuban jaundice. It cost Spain so much for quinine capsules and squirrel whisky that she finally agreed to let us have Cuba in exchange for the price of a new navy. The impartial historian will have to admit that this was the cutest thing Spain ever did, and it cost the American people more to subdue the Havana water mains and the proud, astilian soap spirit of the inhabitants than the whole Spanish navy would bring on a rising market. After remaining in Cuba long enough to introduce the Saturday night bath and fertilize the grape fruit industry with Americans certificates of stock, we took away our flag and plumbing tools and left the island to its fate. As soon as we left, Cuba set up the most torrid and pestilential form of government the inhabitants could think of, and is now scattering incense strife and busted stock companies from shore to shore. If Congress should trade Cuba for a good amly driving horse, nobody would protest loudly enough to disconcert her body politic.

Washington, July 4.—A frog lived for nearly a year in the stomach of Mrs. L. V. King, of Deandow, and was extracted alive by physicians of the Emergency Hospital.
The frog is now preserved in alcohol. It is a weak, colorless, wrinkled, shapeless specimen which bears a faint resemblance to the normal frog. It measures, all told, about seven inches.
