TOOK THEIR TIME.
NEW YORK, June 24. After two days reflection and two false starts, the United States today smashed the British Government seals placed on the liquor stores that the Baltic and Berengaria brought into this port Friday to test the Treasury Department's ruling that no liquor may cross the United States three mile limit with bar supplies for the eastbound voyage. By nightfall last night there had been removed from the Baltic all the liquor supplies which Dr. E. K. Sprague, Chief of United States Health Service, considered in excess of medical needs, and it was announced the surplus goods would be taken from the Berengaria. The captains of both vessels entered a formal protest at the breaking of their Government's seals. Four trans-Atlantic passenger liners, two British, one French and one Italian, arrived at quarantine today with large quantities of liquor under seal.

Home Hints.

To clean silver, and make it look like new, place it in potato water for a time.

A strong solution of soda and hot water vigorously rubbed on will remove verdigris from metal.

Apply a little paraffin now and then to the soles of boots and shoes, to make them last longer and to keep out the damp.

Clean a lighthouse hat with a paste made of lemon juice and two teaspoonfuls of sulphur. Rub well into the straw, allow to dry on, and then brush smartly.

To prevent sticking-paste going sour, mix the flour to a cream with cold water, and add boiling water until the paste is of the desired consistency.

Keep a small cushion stuffed with emery powder through which to rub your needles and keep them from rusting.

Tepid water is better than very hot for scrubbing shelves and kitchen tables.

GREAT FASHION DISPLAY IN "GRAND LARCENY."

Some of the most striking gowns ever worn in Goldwyn's pictures, will be seen in "Grand Larceny," which is at the Nickel Theatre for three days, commencing to-night.

These costumes show the newest combinations of fur and lace, beads and chiffon, and the Spanish trend which Dame Fashion is taking. Claire Windsor, considered one of the most beautiful women on the screen, wears a stunning three piece street costume. It is a dress of gold lace and moleskin, with a three quarters cape coat of moleskin and chiffon, topped by a tricorne of mola.

A gown of solid, seed pearls is also worn in one of the scenes, while a striking coat of black velvet and white monkey fur is another outstanding garment. "Grand Larceny" is a society drama of the strongest type. As the wealthy society matron, Miss Windsor's wardrobe is worth a fortune.

Siki Disqualified.

PARIS, June 17.—Battling Siki was disqualified in the sixth round of his match with Morelle here last night. For the first five rounds the men fought evenly; then, in the sixth round, Siki landed a blow which crumpled Morelle up. He sank on the floor. The timekeeper immediately announced time out, and the referee made no motion to count. The judges hastily conferred and then unanimously decided that Siki had fouled Morelle.

While the judges conferred over Siki's blow the Senegalese stood nonchalantly in his corner in an attitude of complete satisfaction that he had won by a knockout. Surveying the crowd, many of whom were in evening dress, the batter bowed theatrically to mingled shouts of derision and applause, apparently assuming that the "boos," which almost drowned out the cheers, were not for him.

When the judges announced that Siki had been disqualified, the applause of approval rose above the shouts of derision. By this time Siki himself was convinced that he had not won and climbed out of the ring. Morelle, in the meantime, was carried from the ring half unconscious. Morelle holds the middleweight championship of France. No title was at stake, as the Senegalese had refused to weigh in, notwithstanding his appearance for that purpose in the afternoon.
