TO DRIVE AWAY THE BLUES.

Not long ago I received a pathetic letter from one of my letter friends, a widow with two grown daughters. She was unhappy and discontented and I was very sorry for her but at a loss to know how to help her, and so I was very glad to hear from her again to-day in this cheery vein:

"I think I have got down to the root of the trouble. Both of my girls have been at home. Both saw to it that I was eased of any part of the housework, leaving me with idle hands, a condition quite foreign to me. I was miserable because I was idle. Now affairs of their own demand their attention and I have to bustle around and do a big share of the housework as well as attend to the cooking."

Useful Once More.

"With activity came content; with content came happiness; my fit of depression vanished and mother is herself again."

In that last paragraph lies a splendid bit of counsel for two classes of woman:—the woman with time hanging heavy on her hands, and the woman who has gotten into a rut and whose days are drab and uninteresting because of the continued round of uninspiring duties.

Life teems with activity and interest for the younger folks, busy with school and with getting a start in life and with the making of new homes and the raising of babies.

But for the woman nearing 40 for whom time begins to lag, who is tired of the "same old work," and surfeited with the "same old amusements," I offer this bit of advice.

Get A Hobby.

A popular magazine announces a prize contest this month. The prize is to be awarded to the best letter on the subject: "Why I value my hobby," and the editor makes the following comment concerning it:—"Health authorities tell us again and again that any pleasurable side occupation, diverting us for a time from the every-day channels of effort, will preserve our bodies and stimulate our minds."

It need not be an expensive hobby. An Authority On Flowers.

I have a friend who has informed herself about wild flowers so that she can identify over a hundred varieties growing in the fields and woods about her summer home, and she enjoys the distinction of being considered an authority on the subject by her neighbors. "Whatever is this lovely little yellow blossom? I've never seen it before. Let's ask Mrs. B. She'll be sure to know."

Another friend has made a study of sacred art and can tell all sorts of interesting things that she has discovered for herself about the work of both the old masters and the modern artists in this field.

Still another friend who lives in a beautiful old city has read up on doorways, especially the old Colonial entrances, and has made for herself an ever present source of interest whenever she walks or rides about the country.

There is, of course, always club work and different forms of social service; and while these are good mediums for that diversion that the health authorities recommend, there is always the danger of the hobby becoming the rider in this field and of the mind being over stimulated and the body overworked.

"Moderation in all things" applies here as elsewhere, and the man or woman who finds himself jaded or discontented may well find useful relaxation, happiness and health in the pursuit of a hobby.

Inflammation

Of muscles, ligaments or joints disappears quickly after a few applications of Minard's.

WEeping ALONE.

I ask my friends to join me weeping for broken dreams and lost Lenore, but they refuse—they're busy keeping the wolves and bobcats from their doors. "We have no time for tears," they mutter, "we have to pay the bills now due, the wall-eyed grocer for his butter, the Volstead wintner for his brew. The winter blasts will soon be sweeping from Dr. Cook's world famous Pole, and we can't join you in your weeping until we've bought nine tons of coal." And so in silence and in sorrow I weep, the tears run down my cheek, and people say, "Perhaps to-morrow we'll join you in your briny-foam. To-day we chase the minted shilling, the useful groat, the good, long green, that we in season may be filling our tanks with sparkling gasoline. To-day we are busy planning to boost the town and make it grow, and for the present we are canning all symptoms of outrageous woe. To-day the skies are bright and shiny, there are a hundred things to do, so we can't pause to shed the briny—we leave the weeping until to-morrow." My active friends are round me, sailing, and every now and then they cheer, and I must do my weary weeping without an understudy near.

Texas Spends Four Years to Run Down Gang of Swindlers

Fort Worth, (A.P.)—Texas, most famous man hunter, J. Frank Norfleet, is back on his Hale county ranch satisfied with his years of criminal trailing. He set forth four years ago with the world as his field to get four men. Not one did he miss. They are either dead or in custody.

They had "lifted" $45,000 from him, so he claimed, and they were going to be punished. One by one they succumbed to his relentless pursuit. The fourth has just been arrested in Salt Lake City, and that explains why Norfleet has retired to his ranch, contented and happy at last.

It was while Fort Worth and Dallas—in fact all of west Texas—were in the grip of the oil boom, that a clever squad of stock swindlers appeared in these parts and proceeded to lay traps for the unwary. One of the first to happen along was J. Frank Norfleet, Hale county ranchman and deputy sheriff. He formed a hotel lobby acquaintance with one of the swindlers. He was dazzled by stories of great gains made in stock speculation, and he speculated in a stock which yielded him several thousand dollars. He was persuaded to risk a little more and then a little more. Each time his wealth grew. So did his confidence in his new found friends. Eventually, he was persuaded to put up $45,000. Then, everything blew up in the "stock" market and Norfleet's money and his "friends" disappeared.

The ranchman began his man hunt in 1919—or just as soon as he became convinced that he had been swindled. The net result was: Joe Purey, leader of the squad, died in prison at Huntsville, Texas, after having been convicted by a Tarrant county court. Norfleet himself arrested Purey two years after the commission of the crime and after chasing him 4,000 miles.

E. J. Ward killed himself in a Washington, D.C. jail, after having been convicted of the Norfleet swindle.

die and while he was awaiting trial in Washington on a similar charge, Charlie Gerber is serving a term in the Texas state prison for swindling Norfleet.

W. B. Spencer is now under arrest in Salt Lake City, and wanted in Fort Worth for the Norfleet swindle. Norfleet followed Purey through the United States, Canada, Mexico and into Europe. Finally, he overtook him at Jacksonville, Florida, and overcame him only after a struggle and a fight.

The pursuit of Spencer continued four years. In one phase of it, Norfleet unearthed another gang of swindlers in Denver, a number of whom were sent to prison after sensational trials.

Norfleet was assisted in the long chase by his son. When they would lose the trail, they would return to the ranch for rest and recuperation. Then, striking another clew, they would start out into the world again. Norfleet cannot estimate the amount of money he has spent in the pursuit but feels that he has been well repaid with results.
