"These books are a MARVEL of CHEAPNESS and excellence. We know of no other work of similar value and extent that is sold in this or any other market for anything like so low a price."-Examiner, N. Y.

"A MASTERPIECE of history. The reader almost feels that the author has walked hand in hand with the heroes of almost prehistoric periods, so familiar is he with the facts of olden times. When he describes an Assyrian sunset, or a Chaldean home, the reader is led to forget the long centuries that separate these scenes from modern times. The deepest antiquity is imbued with the freshness of a bright and living present, full of realities, shrouded in the gloom of defeat, or made radiant with the glories of some Babylonian king. Remoteness of the times treated of has not obscured the author's work, but has invested it with the elements of romance. When he brings the bloom of health to the cheeks of those who perished 2.400 years before Christ, and analyzes character, describes cities, pictures battles, and sanctions all with the matchless accuracy of a vast erudition, his book leaves a telling impression stantiates the main narrative in excellent annotations and accurate references to original sources of imformation. It is the greatest historical work of the times."—Times, Kansas City, Mo.

"It abounds in ARTISTIC and SCHOLARLY details. It contains the studies of a learned lifetime, and the "The books, as books, are EXCELLENT. "The is a new and marvelously cheap edition of a standard work. It is one of a series of historical works Mr. Alden is publishing, in which he seems to have discovered or invented the art of combining standard literature, good type, tasty and strong binding, numerous illustrations, with the lowest prices. Mr. Alden certainly leads the cheap book movement at present, We do not know of any book that can supply the place of Rawlinson."—Christian Advocate, Buffalo, N. Y.
