UMPIRE CRIES

This Week American and National League Teams Begin on Wednesday and Thursday.

NEW YORK, April 6.—"Play ball." Umpires in the American and National Leagues will say these magic words this week. On Wednesday at Ebbets Field the first National League championship game will be played by the Dodgers and Philadelphias as a special favor to the Brooklyn Club, which will formally open the magnificent stadium in Flatbush.
The pennant races all along the line will be cut loose on Thursday, with the following schedule:

AMERICAN LEAGUE. AMERICAN LEAGUE.

THE HARVEST.

For six months the big league teams will battle with one object in view—participation in the world's series in October. What will the harvest be? Basebail prophets have been trying to figure but the chances of the various teams for many weeks, but the uncertainty of the national game stands in the way of positive conclusions. Roughly estimating the playing strength of the sixteen teams which was shown last year, and taking into consideration the addition of new material, together with the engagement of some new managers, the prophets seem to think that in the National League the New York Glants will fight it out with the Pittsburgs for championship honors, the Cubs and Reds being next in point of skill. In the struggle for the American League pennant the prevalent opinion seems to be that the Red Soy, Athletics and Washingtons will be the competitors for first place.

SUNDAY BASEBALL.

How about that proxy that the Vancouver magnate was supposed to nold for New Westminster? It was rumored Saturday evening that Jones was thinking seriously of joining Querrie's Indians and of going west, via Cornwall and New Westminster, looking for scalps.
