It is probably at Winnipeg where the greatest difficulties will be encountered, considering the ardor of the past struggles and the prejudices which they provoked. The Catholics have five schools in Winnipeg at present, with a school population of 625 children, of whom 130 are French-Canadians. I have no doubt that it will be possible in the future to come to a 'modus vivendi' which will permit the Catholic schools to accept the law as it is amended and to have the grants which are so essential. The concessions made by the Greenway Cabinet assure the Catholic religious instruction, French instruction and Government grantsthe three elements essential in a school frequented by Catholics and French-Canadians. The professors qualified make deplorable mistakes in Manitoba, and a large number will have to be brought from Quebec."
