NOT YET PROVEN FLORENCE SAW MURDER

what amount of reliability we can place upon your statements?" he asked after she assented.

The whole drift of the final examination was in the direction of demonstrating the absolutely unreliable nature of Miss Kinrade's evidence. It is obvious that if it be shown that in a long series of instances she is the victim of hallucination, or the author of entirely foundationless stories, she is not to be regarded as a normal subject.

A survey of the evidence given on the last days of the enquiry indicates both hallucination and a fertility of mendacious imagination which belongs to certain types—hysterics and kindred cases. When these stories were compared with previous narratives gathered from Goderich, Kinrade and elsewhere, it is clear that the girl had the egotistic mania for publicity, which is associated with certain neurotic types. Her "press agent" accounts of the alleged receptions she attended and concerts at which she sang, were shown to be drawn out of the "viewless air," and letters she wrote seem to have had no other basis.

The important letter, signed "Elizabeth Elliott," is a sample. It was evidently intended to account to her parents for the non-appearance of Miss Elliott. The inference is clear that the letter was written by Miss Kinrade herself, as the envelope, part of which was torn away, had no postmark, and the stamp was uncancelled. The name was a detail, Elizabeth or Marion was all the same.

This is quite in line with the evidence given by Detective Pender, who made exhaustive researches in Manchester and Norfolk and Portsmouth, and found no trace of any person such as the Elliotts or the Warburtons he had described. During five weeks she stayed at the Virginia Beach Hotel she had no callers, and lived a very quiet life, like any respectable young lady. Emphasis was laid upon this point by the crown, and on the fact that she feared some unknown man, according to Mr. Bain's testimony. None of these persons appear to have existed outside her imagination any more than the choir engagement in Manchester, with the fictitious choir leader, Mr. Foster, and two other Mr. Posters described on previous occasions.

The obvious effect of all these falsifications is totally to discredit any evidence Miss Kinrade might offer on any point whatever. It is clear that her imagination runs riot on the slightest provocation. The crown is, therefore, in the dilemma of being unable to rely in any degree, as Mr. Blackstock's remark would suggest, upon the evidence she gave to the extent of the day of the tragedy. A sounder mind would have invented, had it been necessary, a simpler story to account for the murder.

Was She There?
 THERE IS ABSOLUTELY NO EVIDENCE TO SHOW THAT FLORENCE KINRADE WAS IN THE HOUSE AT ALL WHEN THE SHOOTING WAS DONE. Only her own unsupported story exists to prove it. She might have been out. Her sister had a separate engagement that afternoon to go skating with her sister-in-law. Florence might have gone previously and returning found Ethel murdered. With her extraordinary tendency to invention, she may have created the story of the tramp and it is from that source one would imagine that Florence Kinrade draws most of her inspiration.

The one thing clear is her inability to secure credence for any statement she may make. A mind unbalanced in this way is not responsible, and for irresponsible persons there should be no neglect of responsibility on the part of others.

Eczema, Salt Rheum.

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is often called, is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases. It manifests itself in little round blisters, which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust or scale is formed.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to any strong heat, are almost unbearable.

The pre-eminent success which Burdock Blood Bitters has met with in permanently curing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.

No other remedy has done, or can do, so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture, as our thousands of signed testimonials can testify to.

Mrs. John O'Connor, Burlington, N.S., writes:—"For years I suffered with Salt Rheum. I tried a dozen different medicines, but most of them only made it worse. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle and before I had taken half a dozen doses I could see a change so I continued its use and now I am completely cured. I cannot say too much for your wonderful medicine."

CITY TO ACCEPT TERMS OF MIDWAY ANNEXATION

Controllers Conclude That Obstruction Would Be Bad Tactics—Dovercourt Next.

The board of control will not oppose the terms of the order under which the "Midway" district of York Township was annexed to the city by the Ontario Municipal Board.

This course was decided upon yesterday, when it was agreed to forward to the city council, at the meeting next Monday, a report asking that the conditions attached, namely, a fixed assessment for five years, such as was granted Wychwood and Brantford, be accepted.

When the order was made recently, the controllers felt that the city was being imposed upon, but on later reflection they have concluded that, after all, the five years period is not a long time to wait, and that as the new district will have to pay full rates for street pavements, sidewalks, water mains, sewer pipes, etc., the annexation will not work out to the city's disadvantage.

"We felt that it would probably pass council anyway, and that it would not help matters anyway to go to the courts," explained Controller Harrison. It looks very much as though the next patch to be added will be the Dovercourt district, which is another "midway" lying as it does between the city's old boundaries and those of West Toronto. The controllers looked over the ground yesterday and agreed that it would be desirable to square off the city's northern boundary by taking Dovercourt in, thus making St. Clair-avenue the line dividing the city from county.

Controller Harrison is strongly in favor of widening St. Clair-avenue from its present width of 66 feet to at least 100 feet. He considers it is bound to be a very important thoroughfare, and any plan for the beautification of the city must include it as a boulevard or drive.

Orphans Get Exercise.
 The local board of health sat for a few minutes yesterday afternoon. The next weighty issue arose from a report by Dr. Sheard, on the request from Ald. R. H. Graham, for information as to whether juvenile inmates of the Protestant Orphans' Home, Dovercourt, could get enough exercise.

Dr. Sheard thought they did. There were 190 inmates and the bill of health was very good. The board was satisfied with the report, and the matter was dropped.

Ald. J. J. Graham, chairman of the civic island committee, reports that the bridge from Hanlan's Point to Turner's Baths is very unsafe. He wants the city engineer to inspect it. The controllers were auting yesterday morning. They called it an inspection trip. Among the things seen were the Lansdowne-avenue subway and the section of the sea wall in front of the exhibition grounds.

of Bathurst-street, in connection with the eastern entrance plan.
