THE BOYS-WE NEED.

ere's to the boy who's not afraid To do his share of work; The never is by toil dismayed, And never tries to shirk.

And never tree to surk.

All lions in the way;

All lions in the way;

Who's not discouraged by defeat,

But tries another day.

The boy who always means to do

The very best he can;

Who always keeps the right in view,

And aims to be a man.

ich boys as these are apt to be The men whose hands will guide the future of our land; and we Shall speak their hames with pride

All hou'r to the boy who is
A man at heart, I say;
Whose legend on his shield is this:
"Right always wirs the day."

THE HOME.

Homelike.

BY SURAN TRALL PERRY.
an article written by Miss Frances

ed the mission of the ideal woman, and reply, "It is to make the whole nelike!"

chaps no sentence could be truer I more comprenensive than the forenge. To make "homelike" every starp of life, and every condition, under sting circumstances, so often adverse such a state of things, is, indeed, the hest mission a woman can fulfil. To ke earth a "homelike" place to every-ly, is to bring the kingdom of heaven to the sintul and sorrowing earth, he girl who would do this, must be asysthoughtful for others, preferring ers' need and happiness to her own, tonly ministering with love and unshades in the side of them as she may have opporting. Not a day passes that does not any with the preferring ers' need and happiness to her own, to make the side of them as she may have opporting. Not a day passes that does not any with it opportunities to make enough the propertunities to make out the sound that the sent of the side of them as she may have opporting. Not a day passes that does not any with it opportunities to make out the summer of the sent of the sent lived in a grand house, but she wasn't a bit stuck up about it, but always took notice of poor folka." The groose house was filled with respect for himself, because Miss Catherine thought it worth her while to be interested in him; that very thought belpead him to be determined to make himself worthy of her regard. We have spoken of making him to be determined to make himself worthy of her regard. We have spoken of making him to be determined to make himself worthy of her regard. We have spoken of making him to be determined to make himself worthy of her regard. We have spoken of making him to be determined to make himself worthy of her regard. We have spoken of making him to be determined to make himself worthy of her regard. We have spoken of making him to be determined to make himself worthy of her regard. We have probable moved to the say of the inside world of our own reason the say of the inside world of our own reason with the same of the same o regard. We have aposen or making use say of the inside world of our own respective homes?

A girl who is thoughtful and kind to those who are outside of her home, ought certainly to be the dearest and most loving of daughters and sisters in her own family circle. A home that is unhomelike, because of the thoughtfulses, selfish, wilful daughter in it, is indeed an unballowed place. Make father and mother happy and free from care on your account, by being all they can wish you to be. Do not do those things that keep them anxious and fill their hearts with unrest. Be the good counselor of your brothers; young people can influence "those who are pacing the same road with them," better oftentimes than older ones, who have passed on miles beyond. When father comes home tired with the cares of business, discouraged with the "way things have turned" that day, the thoughtful, loving daughter can do much to make the outlook bright and hopeful. And to the mother, the patient, loving, self-sacrificing mother, what a blessing it is to have a caughter in the home who is in full sympathy with the needs and troubles and happiness of every heart in it.

My (ear, dear girls, would you make the whole world "homelike?" Then give yourself to Christ now, while you are standing on the very threshold of womanhood. Take Him for your guide and helper. Remember while ministering to His shidten you are ministering to His shidten you are ministering to His children you are ministering to His child he hat hode who hat she could."

Strengthened by Example

At a large dinner-party a guest was asked if she would have some plum puding with wine sauce. "I will have some of the plum puding but none of the wine sauce," was her reply. Her friends laughed at heg, and rightsted that she should take some, but she replied, "I de cline upon principle: I take no alcohol in any form."

The conversation turned to other topics, but after dinner a young man whom she had noticed sitting opposite her at dinner, approached her, and requesting a word with her, said, "I want to tell you how much good you did me to the state of the
