BRICK

Some contractors are short-sighted and stand in their own light by caring nothing as to the quality of brick used in buildings they erect, being satisfied if they get paid for laying "any old brick."

On the other hand, a few contractors will not use an inferior brick, as they claim their reputations would suffer, no matter how good the workmanship might be.

They are right, as a good workman must have good material to produce a satisfactory result—and the combination properly carried out makes or enhances their standing.

We want to establish relations with good contractors only—and they will continue our customers if they once use Mimico Red Pressed or "Panel Flashed" Brick.

They are superior in strength, form and color to any others in the market.
